RACING DISPUTE IN HOME STRETCH?

by TOM WELLMAN

This year's controversy over night racing at Arlington Park may end abruptly and quietly at 10 a.m. today as the Illinois Racing Commission reconvenes to consider requests for specific racing hours at the track.

George Schaller of the Washington Park Jockey Club will submit a modified request for racing hours ending no later than 7:30 in the evening.

Schaller's request follows a ruling from the Illinois attorney general's office that Schaller's application must indicate specific racing hours between noon and midnight.

The ruling is a sudden victory for Arlington Heights village officials, who pressed the racing board on Saturday, Nov. 16, to seek a ruling on specific hours.

THE RACING BOARD also will announce that the attorney general's office has ruled that any decisions on racing hours must be reached in open session.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel, who asked the Racing Board for the ruling, said he was very gratified when he learned of the decision. He reported that he was notified by the board of today's morning meeting.

Siegel said that track officials will present requests for 4 to 7:30 p.m. hours, as well as alternate times — such as 2 to 5:30 or 3 to 6:30. The Racing Board can either grant or reject the requested hours, but it is expected to routinely approve the specific hours.

If a final decision is reached today, a complex three-sided battle over racing hours will be concluded for another year.

Racing officials, despite prodding and the threat of legal action from Arlington Heights, refused until yesterday to supply specific hours for their 3½-hour sessions between noon and midnight.

Village officials, such as Siegel and Village President John Woods, sternly demanded that the track's request be limited to 3½-hour sessions with the last race starting no later than 7:30 p.m.

HOWEVER, several village residents argued that the 7:30 hours would be the "foot in the door" for night racing in Arlington Heights.

Roger Martinell of 119 N. Wilke Rd. near the track, charged that the people in his area had been betrayed by the village. Martinell made his charge on Monday, Nov. 18, and was backed by a handful of residents from areas near Arlington Park.

The 10 a.m. meeting this morning will be held in a courtroom on the 19th floor of the State of Illinois Building, 190 N. LaSalle St. The office and meeting rooms of the board, located on the 10th floor, were too small on Nov. 16 to accommodate the crowd that showed up for the hearing.

UP AND DOWN: Democrat Gerald Chapman was on his feet to propose a sweeping amendment to prevent local activists in national political parties from being nominated for the village board by the Arlington Heights Caucus. The motion was met with a booming "NO" from Caucus participants.

Store Loses Battle

One of the remaining two supermarkets south of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Arlington Heights goes out of business Saturday night because of a parking squeeze.

The National Food Store, 17 S. Dunton, has become a casualty in the dog-eat-dog battle currently being waged among downtown merchants for customer parking space.

National had planned to expand its parking lot in the area south of the store, but news that the section was to be developed as the Evergreen Plaza shopping center caused the chain to turn down lease renewal.

Store manager Robert Frey said he regrets leaving the Dunton location because it is a good area for a chain food store. However, the limited parking facilities National can offer cut into his business.

FREY SAID customers who travel into the city by train have been parking their cars all day in the National lot. In some cases, although this may cause customer hard feeling, the National had the cars towed away at owners expense.

A sign on the store wall facing the parking lot insists the 90-minute parking is for National customers only.

Frey is being transferred to the National store on Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights.

Frey refused to speculate on what type business could move into the vacated National store.

"NO MATTER WHO comes in, they'll have a parking problem," he said.

Frey said he cannot understand why the village allowed the Evergreen Plaza, owned by Nick and Warren Lattof, to come into the area when the parking problem was obviously serious.

"He must know somebody," said Frey.

Lattof insists there will be no parking problems at Evergreen Plaza.

"WE WILL HAVE small stores," he told the Herald. "We have all the parking the village has asked. We paid $20,800 for additional parking."

Lattof was referring to the sum paid the village in lieu of parking spaces. The village allowed Lattof a reduction in parking spaces within minimum ordinance requirements for the sum of $20,800.

"We're paying the village for providing parking in other areas," said Lattof.

Harold Best, director of building and zoning, said the Evergreen Plaza parking will be more convenient than the National parking because cars will find it easier to get in and get out of spaces. They will be able to travel through the center from Dunton to Evergreen streets.

CARS ALSO WILL be able to park in the Dunton Court shopping area lot on Dunton Street, on the streets of Arlington Heights, at the Bowen Hardware lot and at the Bank lot, said Best.

Merchants will have to police their own areas to prevent unauthorized parking, he noted.

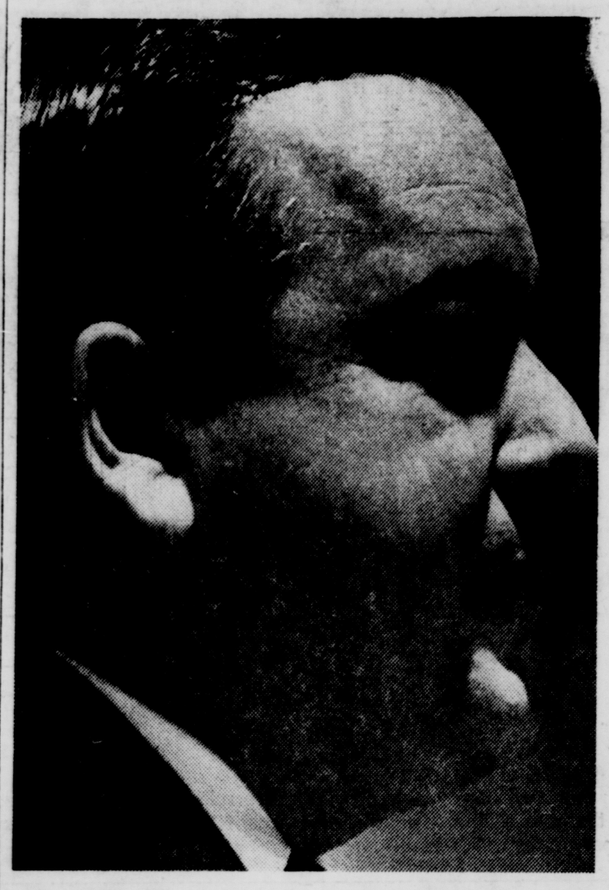
Much will depend on the type of stores renting the Evergreen Plaza facilities, Best said. Coin-operated laundromats and drug stores are preferable.

"The things that hurt are little restaurants," he told the Herald.

BARNEY ERICKSON of Krause and Kehe is handling rentals in the Evergreen Plaza area. So far Erickson has a meat market scheduled to go into the Plaza which should open in early February.

"We can only wait and see how it works," said Best.

Caucus Won't Snub Parties



STEPPING UP to the post of general chairman ofthe Caucus, Carl Pasquale ran a smooth meeting Monday night. An expert in bylaws of the organization, he quickly disposed of questions from the floor.

The Arlington Heights Caucus sailed smoothly into its seventh drive to find candidates for the village board Tuesday night, after rejecting an amendment to its bylaws that would have prevented its nominating active Republicans and Democrats for village office.

Victor Beisler, local insurance man and plan commission member, was overwhelmingly elected head of the candidates recommendation committee.

His election followed unanimous endorsements of Carl Pasquale as general chairman, Scott Ball as vice chairman, and Mrs. W. J. Marier as recording secretary.

Pasquale was vice chairman 1966-67 when Ball served as recommendation committee head.

ONCE STARTED the meeting went smoothly enough, but a Caucus founder and loyal Democrat, Gerald Chapman, took a potshot at local Republicans early in the evening and there was brief confusion.

Chapman leaped to his feet to propose that anyone who had served as an officer of any organization affiliated with a national political party within a year prior to the Caucus nominating convention in January be denied nomination by the Caucus.

He excluded from these provisions elected village officials such as Trustee John Walsh, a candidate for village president and an ardent local Republican.

"This amendment is offered in the spirit of the principle of the Caucus that national political parties are excluded from participation," Chapman said when asked to defend his proposal.

VIC BEISLER
Finding the leaders

ANOTHER CAUCUS organizer, Lester Ploetz, urged that the Chapman resolutions be defeated. It takes a two-thirds majority to amend Caucus bylaws.

"It is against the principles of the Caucus," said Ploetz. "We don't ask people their religious affiliation . . . this is unfair to the individuals. There is no reason to deny the village the use of the talents of these people."

The voice vote, when it finally came, was a thundering "NO!" and business moved on.

Village Pres. John Woods gave a brief accounting of his eight years in office. He cited the building of a new library, purchase of the historical museum and land for a cultural center and adoption of a fair housing ordinance.

THE SECOND candidate nominated by the Caucus for village president, he finished his remarks to enthusiastic applause.

Beisler, who has been active in the community and the Caucus for 12 years, was nominated for chairmanship of the candidates recommendations committee by a plan commission colleague, Ron Riba.

Also nominated were Gene Barnes, a former member of the candidates recommendation committee, and Owen Fischer, a teacher in Arlington Heights elementary schools.

Beisler won handily, with 158 votes to Barnes' 43 and Fischer's 36.

THE RECOMMENDATION committee will begin working immediately to line up candidates for screening.

"I want to streamline things as much as we can," Beisler told the Herald. "I don't want to have to do everything at the last minute.

The committee will begin its hunt for candidates for village president, trustee and village clerk by soliciting recommendations from local civic and fraternal organizations.

Any resident may nominate another resident or himself for consideration by the committee and the committee must screen all who present themselves.

THE COMMITTEE will recommend two persons for each position to be filled. Those recommended will be presented to the general Caucus meeting in late January or early February.

Each will present his or her ideas on village government and programs and the meeting will then vote the final slate of candidates.

To be filled in next April's elections are three trustee vacancies, the board presidency and the village clerk's office.

The recommendations committee comprises one representative from each of the Caucus' 21 precincts. Those attending Monday's meeting were seated by precinct and during the evening selected the person to represent them in the grinding task of screening the candidates.

BULLETIN

The Rolling Meadows City Council last night annexed the 118-acre Isenstein-Parker property, effectively ending the the battle between the city and Arlington Heights.

Rolling Meadows appeared to be the winner Tuesday afternoon in its tug of war with Arlington Heights for the 118-acre Isenstein-Parker property.

Judge Helen McGillicuddy dismissed the annexation suit filed by five owners of a 10-acre parcel south of Golf Road when they withdrew their petition to annex to Arlington Heights via a 100-foot corridor slashing through the larger tract.

Arlington Heights was not a party to the annexation petition filed in Circuit Court by Atty. Jack Siegel, representing the owners. But Siegel is the village attorney and has admitted that he and Village President John G. Woods were behind the maneuver to prevent annexation of the Isenstein-Parker property to Rolling Meadows.

THEY WERE counting on delays in court to tie up the developer for at least a year, hopefully forcing him to switch to Arlington Heights.

Siegel was taken by surprise when the petition to annex the 10 acres and corridor strip was withdrawn.

He asked for 10 days in which to contact the owners, Alma Leach, Alfred and Henry Schwake, Martha Schellin and Henrietta Wozny.

Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose opposed the delay, and Judge McGillicuddy gave Siegel until 2 p.m. When court convened in the afternoon, Siegel was silent.

THE OWNERS reportedly have sold the property to a contract purchaser for development.

Dismissal of the annexation petition in Circuit Court cleared the way for the Rolling Meadows City Council to resume its consideration of the annexation of the Isenstein-Parker property, and zoning for 1,300 apartments as well as commercial and industrial development.

North Western Relocating Track Section

The Chicago and North Western Ry. is relocating a section of tracks between Des Plaines and Cumberland to comply with the $1.4-million Weller Creek flood control project being done by the state.

A spokesman for the North Western's commuter and passenger service said movement of the tracks will cause no service delays to commuters.

The by-pass or "shoo fly," as railroad officials call it, will be about a quarter-mile long.

The Weller Creek project, which was begun in September, is expected to be completed by next summer.

'GRASSROOTS' SAY 'NO'

With GOP All Around, What Did Chapman Expect?

Gerald M. Chapman tried to do his anti-Republican thing at Monday night's caucus meeting. His failure surprised nobody.

Chapman, a Staunch Democrat — he is the husband of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-3rd) — has been alarmed about what he considers Rpublican inroads into the workings of the traditionally non-partisan Village Caucus.

He tried, abruptly and without smoothing the way with the local powers that be, to introduce an amendment to Caucus bylaws that would have effectively excluded from village office most of the people who showed up at Thomas Junior High to participate in grassroots politics.

CHAPMAN MIGHT have been worried just looking around the room. The GOP was everywhere. John Walsh, Robert Sir, Dwight Walton, Richard Cowen, a thumping bevy of people closely associated with the Republican Party.

Perhaps 75 per cent of those present were Republicans.

Question: What could you expect to find in Wheeling Township, which is approximately 75 per cent Republican?

What Chapman wanted was an amendment that would have excluded from consideration by the Caucus any person who held office in a partisan political organization during the calendar year immediately preceding next January's nominating meeting.

THE BLACKLIST would have also included officers in party affiliated associations such as Young Republicans, Young Democrats, Citizens for Humphrey — any group "affiliated therewith, directly or indirectly."

The only persons excluded from the rule would be incumbent, elected village officials — nearly exluding Trustee Walsh, who is considered certain to be recommended for village president.

The key words for many who refused to support the amendment were the "directly or indirectly" tacked onto the end of the first paragraph.

"He used too broad a paint brush," said Harold Klingner, also a Caucus founder. "If you had applied those rules to those doing the voting, 70 per cent of the people here couldn't have voted.

"THOSE WHO are most active in the community are going to be the ones that are active politically," he added.

Many people in the room, including Klingner, said they would welcome further insurance against control of the Caucus by either Republicans or Democrats, but agreed that the sweep of the Chapman proposal was too broad, its effects too exclusive.

In the post-mortems that followed the Caucus 1967 failure to put Kenneth Dougan on the board along with Charles Bennett and John Walsh, it was suggested that the Republican Party might do a better job of getting out the vote for qualified candidates.

Since then there has been speculation that, if the Caucus doesn't muster a top notch campaign 1969 effort for Walsh and other nominees for office, the Republican party might openly or secretly use its machinery to get the job done.

IT WAS THIS sort of GOP action that Chapman's amendment was intended to discourage. Keep the Republican big guns off the slate and the Republican Party will leave village elections alone. But there is real doubt that the GOP is interested in ruling Arlington Heights.

The last thing, officially, that the Wheeling Township Republican Organization wants is responsibility for village government and that's what a Republican slate of candidates would mean.

The Republicans would rule the village board and therefore, but to a lesser extent, the plan commission, the zoning board of appeals, the youth commission and the safety commission.

Township Committeeman Eugene Schlickman doesn't want village government dumped in his lap, not at the present anyway. And it would seem the safest course for the champions of non partisanship to steer is vigorous support for the Caucus nominees when they begin their campaigns in February.

One Vote or Two? Either Is Likely

Arlington Heights Memorial Library trustees weighed the advantages of holding one referendum in 1969 to raise the tax rate for general operating expenditures to 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation or to include a separate section in the referendum to include bonding for book acquisitions.

If board members decide in December that a tandem referendum is desirable, the amount asked for books will be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Trustees examined estimated revenue and expenditure forecasts for a five-year period. The committee worked with John Walsh, village trustee, and L. A. Hansen, village manager, in obtaining estimates of projected assessed valuation.

The forecast lists $10,500 as the amount remaining for the

Slides Show Village 'Isn't a Camelot'

The narrator said that "the names have been changed to protect all of us, the guilty," and slides of mangled automobiles and youthful car thieves were shown to those attending the annual inter-faith service in Arlington Heights.

Pictures of youths collecting clothing for needy children and teenagers assisting at Little City in Palatine followed and the narrator urged parents to really listen to their children. "They are really trying to tell us something."

The message that most young people are not delinquent was included in the audio-visual sermon written by Dr. Norbert Hruby, vice president of Mundelein College. Robert Hawley, a member of Village Theatre Inc., narrated the sermon Sunday at Arlington High School.

THE SLIDES, made from pictures which appeared in the Herald, included ramshackle residences inhabited by migrant workers in the area and overcrowded rooms in state hospitals.

The sermon concluded that "In a world full of violence and terror, we may sometimes see this handsome village of ours as a kind of Camelot, where we live in isolated enchantment. The picture album says otherwise."

The inter-faith service was sponsored by the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship. The brass choir of Wheeling High School band and the choir of Southminster United Presbyterian Church provided the musical selections.

The house lights were turned up following the sermon and the choir sang the first verse of "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee" (chorale from Beethoven's Ninth symphony). The congregation from many churches joined the choir for the remaining verses.

LOW MILEAGE TELEVISION

by ED LANDWEHR

There's a joke going around about the used car salesman who went into the television selling business. His sales pitch goes: "This used TV set has hardly been used. It belonged to an old lady with weak eyes."

Although our displays at LANDWEHR TV are all new and the latest in design, we do occasionally have a used black and white TV set that is like new, and they don't always come from old ladies. Many folks do succumb to the beautiful color sets and trade off their black and white sets. Some of these are like new having been bought from us originally. These sets have many years of service left in them and could be used in recreation rooms or at the summer homes. Stop in at 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights and look them over.

Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 for top quality TV and radio services.

Slides Show Village 'Isn't a Camelot'

The narrator said that "the names have been changed to protect all of us, the guilty," and slides of mangled automobiles and youthful car thieves were shown to those attending the annual inter-faith service in Arlington Heights.

Pictures of youths collecting clothing for needy children and teenagers assisting at Little City in Palatine followed and the narrator urged parents to really listen to their children. "They are really trying to tell us something."

The message that most young people are not delinquent was included in the audio-visual sermon written by Dr. Norbert Hruby, vice president of Mundelein College. Robert Hawley, a member of Village Theatre Inc., narrated the sermon Sunday at Arlington High School.

THE SLIDES, made from pictures which appeared in the Herald, included ramshackle residences inhabited by migrant workers in the area and overcrowded rooms in state hospitals.

The sermon concluded that "In a world full of violence and terror, we may sometimes see this handsome village of ours as a kind of Camelot, where we live in isolated enchantment. The picture album says otherwise."

The inter-faith service was sponsored by the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship. The brass choir of Wheeling High School band and the choir of Southminster United Presbyterian Church provided the musical selections.

The house lights were turned up following the sermon and the choir sang the first verse of "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee" (chorale from Beethoven's Ninth symphony). The congregation from many churches joined the choir for the remaining verses.

A Dream Realized: Museum Dedicated

The Arlington Heights Historical Museum was officially dedicated Sunday afternoon as a center for the preservation of the past to educate the future.

The program, held in the Evangelical Free Church, was attended by officers of the Historical Society, representatives of the village, and students.

Mrs. Stephen Jurco directed the program and the Rev. Edward J. Hughes and The Rev. Dr. Paul L. Stumpf delivered the invocation and dedication prayers. Mrs. H. L. Berthold, president of the society, gave a recognition speech.

"THE MUSEUM is never finished. History is always being lived," said Mrs. Berthold.

Albert Volz, 97, former village president and the man responsible for the original suggestion to build a museum, thanked the group for "making a dream a reality."

Mrs. Milton Daniels, museum curator, spoke of her plan to build an educational program to inform students of the past.

Virgil Horath, executive director of the museum, looked ahead to the day when the library, the museum, and the proposed cultural center, to be built on the site of the Free Church, will form an educational and recreational core in the village.

VILLAGE PRES. John Woods, defined the slogan "What is past is prologue" to mean "you ain't seen nothing yet."

"This is my view of the village in the next two decades," he said. "We are on the threshold of greatness."

Citizens dedicated to this vision are laying the groundwork for a village that should have a population of 100,000 in the next 20 years, Woods said.

Arlington Heights today has a larger population than the State of Illinois had when it was admitted to the Union, Woods noted. It has doubled in population and size in the last few years and become a transportation center for the area.

"AS WE DEDICATE this museum, we should pause and recall the countless blessings God has bestowed on Arlington Heights," he said.

Following the service, the museum was opened to visitors. The young gaped at old toys. Homeowners called attention to the craftsmanship on the doors and moldings of the restored Miller home.

Older citizens examined pictures of past Arlington Heights and exclaimed, "I remember that spot."

Christmas is a host of things
It's tinsel, trees and lights
It's candleglow and mistletoe
And many dazzling sights
It's the laughter and the spirit

It's the chiming of the church bells
And the voices raised in song
But Christmas time is most of all

Joy of Christmas

Christmas is a host of things
It's tinsel, trees and lights
It's candleglow and mistletoe
And many dazzling sights
It's the laughter and the spirit
Of the hustling, happy throng
It's the chiming of the church bells
And the voices raised in song
But Christmas time is most of all
Man's hope of peace on earth
And the glad commemoration
Of our Blessed Saviour's birth

At Thanksgiving

While Americans everywhere return thanks for their many blessings, may we express appreciation for the loyalty and friendship extended to us this past year.

THAT Was A Thanksgiving

BY MARY DRESSER

For those who are weary of Thanksgiving, 1968 style, with its punishing hundred-miles drives to Grandma's house, marathon football games on television, and turkey at 45 cents per pound, the Old Fashioned Thanksgiving would have its advantages.

There was no lack of entertainment in 1901, according to stories in the Cook County Herald.

"Hurrah boys!" says a story. "All aboard for Ed Scharringhousen's dance and raffle at Kelling's Hall, Arlington Heights, Thanksgiving eve. Twenty-five cents buys a ticket to the dance and gives you a chance on the watch."

A family in 1901 could attend ecumenical services at the Methodist Church with the pastor of the Presbyterian Church preaching the sermon.

"The right sort of Thanksgiving is not blind when the collection plate passes," notes the Herald.

The Thanksgiving meal could be prepared by calling Rennack's market by telephone and ordering meats, vegetables and canned goods.

"Free delivery to all parts of town." says an ad in the Herald. "You get the best quality and lowest prices at my market. Yours to please."

THE PRICES charged by markets such as Rennack's in those days allowed a bountiful Thanksgiving table.

Turkey was seven cents a pound; creamery butter, 28 cents; round steak and hamburger, 13 cents; porterhouse, 17 cents; bacon, 15 cents; and a "best ham" cost 18 cents.

Eggs were 22 cents a dozen; coffee ranged from 2? cents to 10 cents a pound; a three pound can of beets cost six cents; three pounds of canned tomatoes, eight cents; two pounds of peas, 20 cents; a three pound can of cherries, 20 cents; a quart of cranberries, 10 cents, and a package of mince meat, 14 cents.

For the kids, a quarter pound of Vienna chocolate cost five cents, and a pound of mixed nuts, 14 cents.

A gentleman could relax with three cuts of Horse Shoe Plug tobacco at 25 cents, while he read "James Jeffries, champion pugilist of the world, forced Gus Ruhlin, his challenger, to quit after five rounds of fighting. Jeffries pounded the Akron giant to pieces in the fourth round."

LADIES coming to the gala Thanksgiving dinner could wear a fur collarette costing $1.25 while their husbands wore lined overcoats of genuine Irish frieze for $10, and suits costing $5. Little boys wore wool knee pants costing 45 cents a pair.

After dinner, if families wished to read their newspapers, they could find the story of "Jimmy's Thanksgiving" by Paul Ingelow. Jimmy was "a poor but honest newsboy and waif" who saved the briefcase of the "nicest-faced, nobelest looking man he ever met" and warned the gentleman of danger in a hotel fire.

Jimmy was awarded $900, which he immediately put in his mother's bank account. His family's "merry dinner table was graced with two turkeys."

IF THE family of 1901 decided to have Thanksgiving dinner in a restaurant, they were welcome at Burcky and Milan Ladies and Gentlemen's Restaurant, 160 S. Clark St.

An evening at Burcky and Milan's cost 15 cents for steak, whitefish, roast beef, pork, mutton, or veal dinner. Soup was five cents and pudding five cents.

The restaurant advertised an "endless variety of good wholesome food, properly cooked and at moderate prices. Perfect service. Ladies and gentlemen's toilet rooms with hot and cold water and other conveniences."

The people of 1901 had an unsophisticated sense of humor. In those days before Playboy, such poems as this appeared in the local family newspaper:

THE POEM told of "Fair Dorethea, a goodly mayde,/ from Puritans descended./ In kirtle, cap and kerchief prayed/That famine sore be ended. Though plump and fair albeit she kept, /She tired of frugal living./ So prayed she while the Elders slept, Lord, send a true Thanksgiving."

Dorethea, it seems, was missing her lover, not the food. The gentleman "with his bullets, powder, match,/ in forests dense is living, /That he the bounding roe may snatch/ To make the first Thanksgiving.

Dorethea, that "goodly mayde" was quite a dish, "The roses in her saucy cheeks/ Are not by famine shrunken/ Her wholesome appetite bespeaks The pies of quince or pumpkin."

THE POEM ends with the gentleman coming home to Dorethea and says "May we, though centuries apart/ In grace and plenty living/ Voice her petition of the heart /Lord send a true Thanksgiving."

The prices were low, the food was good, there was dancing and laughter, but our wages are higher today, and we still have fun, we may argue.

However, we do not have the same things to be thankful for in these days of farm surpluses, devaluation of the franc, ghetto poverty and overpopulation.

No longer can we be thankful, as they were in 1901, for "the huge crops; the unheard of volume of trade; the increase in population, and the vast wealth of our nation. . . all subjects for thankfulness to the giver of every good and perfect gift."

1901 was a long time ago.

Narcotics Charge

Arlington Heights police booked four young men for possession of narcotics last Saturday.

James P. Karberg, 19, 529 Pinehurst, Des Plaines, James M. Didier, 18, 426 Alles, Des Plaines, Michael C. Bark, 19, 86 Westgate, Des Plaines, and Daniel Marcucci, 18, 441 S. Dwyer, Arlington Heights, were picked up after police traced them to McDonald's, Wilke and Brown streets in Arlington Heights.

According to police, an informant told them the group was coming into Arlington Heights to sell $40 in "hash," a form of marijuana.

AFTER discovering the young men and a young girl in the McDonald parking lot police followed them to the Open Pantry at Wilke and Brown streets.

They were taken from a car driven by Karberg and searched.

Police had observed them placing some item near a lamp post at Burgoyne and Illinois streets in Arlington Heights.

When the officers found nothing on the men, they returned to the lamp post and discovered packets of narcotics.

When the youths were taken to the station, Karberg and Didier made statements while the others refused.

Bond has been set at $5,000 and the court date is Dec. 13 in Arlington Heights court.

Cement Broken

Vandals did $225 damage to wet cement at the construction site of the Executive House, Arlington Heights Road and Oakton Street in Arlington Heights, Tuesday.

Police said footprints and obscene words were imprinted in the hardening cement. The footprints indicated the vandals were between 8 and 12 years old, police said.

James Atchinson, construction supervisor, said he was worried about the possibility of children falling into an open elevator shaft or a stairwell in the darkened building.

Five Injured

An Arlington Heights mother and her 10-year-old daughter were injured Tuesday afternoon when their car collided with a car containing three teen-agers at the intersection of Schoenbeck and Thomas St. in Prospect Heights.

MRS. JEAN BARON, 831 N. Rand Road in Arlington Heights and her daughter April were treated for facial cuts and then released from Northwest Community Hospital.

The three students Janice Reed, 16, 207 S. Stevenson, Mount Prospect; Gery O'Reilly, 17, 1509 Orchard, Prospect Heights, and Cheryl Grupe, 16, 1812 Ivy Lane, Mount Prospect, suffered minor cuts.

Fifth Subject OK Under New Rules

Students in Dist. 24 high schools who wish to take a fifth subject beginning next September had the way cleared for them Monday night. The school board adopted a policy placing no restrictions on such enrollment.

The new policy is in line with recommendations made by the North Central Assn. when Dist. 214 schools were surveyed last year.

The restrictive policy then in effect was criticized because it limited students who could not meet stringent requirements for a fifth class.

THE OLD POLICY allowed students to take a fifth subject if they were seniors who needed the credit to graduate, or were other students with an average of "C" or better.

Entering freshmen who scored in the top quarter on the composite score of their high school placement test were also allowed to elect a fifth subject. This was described as "inflexible."

A change to a full credit allowed for music established this as a fifth subject recently, and if the policy had not been changed all students now enrolled in music classes would have had to meet the old standards.

While no restrictions will be contained in the new policy, students who would be seriously overburdened by a fifth subject will be referred to their counselor. Final approval of the fifth subject enrollment will not lie with the counselor, but he will try to "counsel them out of it" according to Supt. Dr. Edward Gilbert.

Library Vote—

fiscal year ending April 30, 1969, which can be used to purchase new books and other educational material.

In 1970, revenue and expenditures equal one another, leaving no funds for books. The committee estimates that $96,000 for volumes should be spent during the same period to meet minimum standards set by the American Library Assn.

Projecting onward to 1973, the report shows a gross shortage of book purchase funds of $248,400.

Trustee George Beacham said that based on the estimated figures, "we may reasonably meet our goal for books by holding one referendum on the general operating fund." He urged board members, however, to continue to consider the possibility of a dual referendum as it might be more fair to village residents.

He explained that if a separate book referendum were passed, the operating rate would not have to go as high as 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The bond issue covering the books could be spread over the course of several years and be shared with those yet to move into Arlington Heights.

Trustees will obtain a chart of the cost of bonding procedures and consider proper timing of a referendum before making any final decision.

Industry Park Granted Okay

The Wheeling Village Board Monday granted final approval to Palatine Expressway Industrial Park, a 20-acre development on both sides of Palatine Road which houses the Skil Corp.

In a following action the board gave preliminary approval to the plat for the first addition to the industrial park.

The board held up the approval until assured by plan commission chairman Michael Valenza that sewer and water easements being used by the corporations invoived would meet.

Hunt Architect Now For Future School

Dr. Edward Gilbert, Supt. of Dist. 214, recommended to the board of education Monday night that it establish procedures for picking an architect in anticipation of a citizens' committee recommendation for construction of a seventh high school.

Presentation of a proposal for a seventh high school — to contain 3,000 students—will not be made to the board until Dec. 16.

Gilbert told the board that the school would be needed by the fall of 1971, and it would be well to take some of the necessary steps as soon as possible.

GILBERT was instructed to contact architects previously screened by the district for other construction and ask them to submit a statement with supporting material about the type of work their firm has done. The responses will then be screened and the board will set dates for future interviews.

Mrs. Leah Cummins, a board member, has arranged a tour of a new high school in McHenry on the morning of Dec. 16. The school in McHenry uses modular scheduling, is fully air-conditioned, and has a swimming pool, Mrs. Cummins reported.

Educational Center Denied $800,000 in Federal Funds

A request for more than $800,000 in federal aid to finance a proposed Northwest Suburban Education Center from 10 area school districts has been denied by the U.S. Office of Education.

The 10 districts had requested $815,038 in the form of a grant to consolidate and maintain existing programs funded by the federal government, which are primarily concerned with teacher training and research.

Funds for these programs, including the Elk Grove Training and Development Center, run out at the end of the fiscal year.

DIST. 59 Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas, who had the efforts for Districts 211, 214, 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 54, 57, and 59, said the reasons for the Office of Education action are as yet unknown.

He commented that the next step for the group will be to find another agency to fund the 3½-year program, the first 18 months of which will cost more than $800,000.

He said that the superintendents of the 10 districts are scheduled to meet Dec. 2, and at that time Thomas is planning to open discussion on finding an alternate way to fund the program.

"We still hope to go ahead with it," he said.

PROPOSED IS A center that would primarily train teachers, administrators, and other educationally related personnel. In addition to the 10 districts, a number of other sources are involved, including several universities.

The grant would have come under the Educational Professional Development Act, and was designed to replace programs funded under Title III, Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

In an interview Monday, Thomas said that the first step to be taken at this time would be notification of the other superintendents of the action, as well as adding the item of finding another means of revenue for the project to the agenda of the Dec. 2 meeting of the group.

Pick Mrs. Shirley As Head of Caucus

Mrs. Thomas Shirley, 1202 Highland Drive, Prospect Heights, was elected chairman of the 1968-69 general caucus of School Dist. 23 at an organizational meeting last week.

Other caucus officers are J. W. Dubisar, 1608 Jonquil Terrace, Arlington Heights, vice chairman; and Mrs. W. Kibler, 2126 Robinhood Lane, Arlington Heights, secretary.

Five civic and educational organizations are represented by the 24 delegates to the Dist. 23 caucus. These include the Dist. 23 PTA, Prospect Heights Women's Club, Prospect Heights Lions Club, Prospect Heights Improvements Assn. and the Arlington Vista Homeowners Assn. of Arlington Heights.

THE CAUCUS' purpose is to interview candidates for the school board and select the best qualified for caucus endorsement.

The terms of two school board members expire next April. To qualify, a candidate must have lived in the school district for at least a year, be a United States citizen and be at least 21 years old.

The seven-member nominating committee, charged with the responsibility of presenting suitable candidates for final selection by the caucus, includes Mrs. James Copland, Mrs. Edmund Spitzig, Mrs. Richard Sutherland, Robert Peterson, Mrs. E. Spriegel, Don Colby and Harry Hubenthal.

PERSONS interested in becoming candidates for the Dist. 23 board are asked to contact the nominating chairman, Mrs. Copland, at 392-5634.

The next meeting of the Dist. 23 caucus is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in MacArthur Junior High School, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Runway Reopens Tomorrow

An 11,600-foot, northwest-southeast runway, closed since June 27, is scheduled to be opened tomorrow at O'Hare International Airport.

Pat Dunne, airport manager, said yesterday he intended to make two inspections of the runway and expected it to be in operation within 24 to 36 hours.

THE CLOSING of the runway for five months for repairs has led to increased usage of the other five major runways, increasing the frequency of flights over north DuPage County, Park Ridge, Des Plaines, and Schiller Park.

During the construction period, 7,000 square feet of concrete have been replaced and center lighting installed, giving O'Hare two Category 2 runways.

This type of runway permits aircraft to land with a ceiling of 100 feet and visibility of one-quarter mile.

Test of New Runway Leaves Area Communities in Dark

O'Hare Airport's reopening of its 11,600-foot runway, scheduled for tomorrow, has already caused headaches locally — a power blackout affecting more than 23,000 homes in 10 suburban communities.

The blackout occured shortly after 5 a.m. Monday when a Federal Aviation Administration test plane, a DC3, snipped a "static" line atop a 100-foot tower near Lively and Oakton streets in Elk Grove Village.

The line dropped and crossed two live high tension wires, one of them carrying 138,000 volts.

WHILE THERE was only slight damage to the rudder of the aircraft and no injuries to the crew, Commonwealth Edison Co. workers spent most of the day repairing the damage.

FAA officials said that the plane was flying unusually low, about 300 feet lower than normal approaches at that point.

The crew was testing the accuracy of navigational systems of the airport, as well as the new glide-slope patterns and systems for the recently resurfaced runway.

It was the second such incident within a year, both at approximately the same location.

The aircraft involved, stationed at Battle Creek, Mich., is one of a number which test navigational systems in a four-state area in the midwest.

After the mishap, traffic was blocked in a square-mile area near the airport while workmen repaired the lines.

REPORTS said that the lines were cut shortly after 5 a.m., and that while Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates were hardest hit, parts of Mount Prospect, Glendale Heights, Carol Stream, Glen Ellyn, Bloomingdale and Wheaton were also affected.

Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl, in an interview Monday night, said that the village will press for some sort of warning lights on the Commonwealth Edison Co. towers in the area.

He said that the company is agreeable to it, although the FAA doesn't require it.

Pahl reported that the village aeronautics committee chairman, Thomas Hamilton, is studying the type of warning lights most suited for the job.

"This is the second time within a year that this has happened," Pahl said, "so naturally residents are nervous about it."

Assn. Approves 6 of 7 Dist. 214 Resolutions

Six of seven resolutions submitted by the Dist. 214 Board of Education to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards' annual meeting were passed by the association, Mrs. Ernest Beal, board member, reported Monday. A substitute for the seventh was passed after extensive revision.

Mrs. Beal credited the passage of many of the 21 resolutions presented on the floor of the meeting to the time element involved in discussion. Many delegates, finding that the meeting was running later than expected, began to vote hurriedly on motions, cutting short discussion.

Although two of the resolutions came from committee without recommendation for passage on written notice to the state school board members, Mrs. Beal argued for passage before the resolutions committee and was successful in changing their recommendation on one of the resulutions.

THIS RESOLUTION sought to increase the amount the educational tax rate may be raised at one time by referendum. At the present time districts who hold a successful referendum are limited to a total increase of 21 cents per referendum.

Dist. 214 also asked the complete revision and updating of the Illinois school code, the law by which school districts are run.

Mrs. Beal termed "idealistic" a resolution to seek an increase "to a more appropriate level in the bonding limitation of 5 per cent of assessed valuation now placed on school districts."

She said Dist. 214 had included this resolution as a guide to constitutional revisions. It was passed by the delegates.

A resolution to increase the amount of state aid to schools to a minimum foundation level of $600 and to increase the weighted factor in determining the average daily attendance on which this amount is awarded was withdrawn by Mrs. Beal at the request of the board of directors of the IASB. A revised version of this resolution was passed by the Association.

A REQUEST for revision of the present loyalty oath entered by Dist. 214 was passed with the explanation that an oath which stresses a person's support of his country would be more acceptable.

An amendment to a resolution that was a request for revision of the teacher tenure law would establish a special committee to consider the problem. Both the amendment and the resolution were approved.

Student pay from district funds for students performing work for the district as part of a special work-study program was submitted to the delegates "without recommendation" by the resolutions committee.

Dist. 214 has extensive work-study programs throughout the district which could be extended through use of school funds. It was passed by the delegates, although several oberservers felt it was because of the late hour.

The passage of these resolutions will have no immediate effect on Illinois school districts, however. Resolutions which survive the IASB meeting will be used as recommendations to state legislators who have the final say in school legislation.

HUAC Probe Idea Laughable

by TOM WELLMAN

Those blurred figures that raced through the village last week were not members of the Caucus promoting their happening at Thomas Junior High; they were two Congressmen rooting up the shrubbery in search of Commies.

The two Republican Congressmen from the metropolitan area — John Erlenborn and Eugene Derwinski — announced at the conclusion of their search that they might sic that aged watchdog — the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) — on the Suburban Liberation Front (SLF).

The SLF boldly handed out mimeographed leaflets near Prospect High School in September. The leaflets, among other things demanded "an immediate concession . . . the right to leaflet."

WELLMAN

The leaflet also snidely inferred that students felt trapped, unrepresented, threatened by arbitrary rules and sleepy when confronted with their quality education. It also charged that the world is chock full of "war, racism, oppression, and poverty," certainly brand new news.

PERHAPS THE tone of the pamphlets offended Derwinski and Erlenborn. Too strident, too pushy and sounding too much like red money lubricated the mimeograph machine. So, they contacted HUAC.

However, the chase will only begin in ernest if HUAC, the eagle-eyed beagle, sniffs onto the scene. However, I fear that our mutt might end up with egg on its nose, rather than with Commies in the pen.

The watchdog lumbered into Chicago in 1965, and it was promptly picketed by several hundred students and pointy-headed college professors. Two Chicago newspapers even urged that the mastiff should be quietly dragged back to its pen in Washington.

IN 1966, it seized and mauled attorney Arthur Kinoy. The civil rights attorney was dragged off to jail for objecting to procedures during a hearing on student travel procedures of Cuba.

Our mutt has been charged with trampling on innocent persons, barking in the darkness to terrorize persons enjoying the privileges of the First Amendment, and slobbering on due process. It has seldom received a bone for finding subversives.

The watchdog might consider several realities about Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and the SLF before it seriously considers rummaging around out here.

First, social discontent, however incoherently expressed, is fashionable in suburban high schools. Students do have minds, and the majority are now asking probing questions about politics, black people, poverty and other topics.

THE SLF, operating out of a home in Mount Prospect, is a small group of liberals asking those same questions in an organized manner. Like any unsponsored high school political group, it is an ad hoc committee, strong one year and gone the next.

Second, enlightened teachers and administrators, such as Dr. Lawrence Jenness of Forest View in Arlington Heights, are making a large effort to understand unrest.

Administrators in Dist. 214 seem especially aware of student dissent.

If administrators like Jenness, who has given the dissidents a role within student government at Forest View, continue to develop creative programs to absorb criticism, he may be promoting thoughtful inquiry among students, as well as reducing the threats of walk-outs and picketing.

Jenness' rational approach makes the cops-and-robbers antics of Erlenborn and Derwinski laughable. Arlington Heights has problems, but it does not need HUAC to sniff around for problems that are not present.

Republican Head-Knocking

Open dispute within area Republican ranks? Bruising maneuvering for position? Out-and-out conflict between Elk Grove and Wheeling Township GOP organizations? It's all true — the pageantry of political football unfolds tomorrow at 10 a.m. when the annual Political Bowl pits Elk Grove vs. Wheeling townships at the Mount Prospect High School football field. While the gridiron classic isn't expected to draw as much national attention as, say, the Rose Bowl, improved appetities for Thanksgiving dinners is expected to be a by-product of the game. Now let's see . . . you get two points for a home run, and . . .

An Arlington Heights mother and her 10-year-old daughter were injured Tuesday afternoon when their car collided with a car containing three teen-agers at the intersection of Schoenbeck and Thomas St. in Prospect Heights.

MRS. JEAN BARON, 831 N. Rand Road in Arlington Heights and her daughter April were treated for facial cuts and then released from Northwest Community Hospital.

The three students Janice Reed, 16, 207 S. Stevenson, Mount Prospect; Gery O'Reilly, 17, 1509 Orchard, Prospect Heights, and Cheryl Grupe, 16, 1812 Ivy Lane, Mount Prospect, suffered minor cuts.

Fifth Subject OK Under New Rules

Students in Dist. 24 high schools who wish to take a fifth subject beginning next September had the way cleared for them Monday night. The school board adopted a policy placing no restrictions on such enrollment.

The new policy is in line with recommendations made by the North Central Assn. when Dist. 214 schools were surveyed last year.

The restrictive policy then in effect was criticized because it limited students who could not meet stringent requirements for a fifth class.

THE OLD POLICY allowed students to take a fifth subject if they were seniors who needed the credit to graduate, or were other students with an average of "C" or better.

Entering freshmen who scored in the top quarter on the composite score of their high school placement test were also allowed to elect a fifth subject. This was described as "inflexible."

A change to a full credit allowed for music established this as a fifth subject recently, and if the policy had not been changed all students now enrolled in music classes would have had to meet the old standards.

While no restrictions will be contained in the new policy, students who would be seriously overburdened by a fifth subject will be referred to their counselor. Final approval of the fifth subject enrollment will not lie with the counselor, but he will try to "counsel them out of it" according to Supt. Dr. Edward Gilbert.

Library Vote—

fiscal year ending April 30, 1969, which can be used to purchase new books and other educational material.

In 1970, revenue and expenditures equal one another, leaving no funds for books. The committee estimates that $96,000 for volumes should be spent during the same period to meet minimum standards set by the American Library Assn.

Projecting onward to 1973, the report shows a gross shortage of book purchase funds of $248,400.

Trustee George Beacham said that based on the estimated figures, "we may reasonably meet our goal for books by holding one referendum on the general operating fund." He urged board members, however, to continue to consider the possibility of a dual referendum as it might be more fair to village residents.

He explained that if a separate book referendum were passed, the operating rate would not have to go as high as 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The bond issue covering the books could be spread over the course of several years and be shared with those yet to move into Arlington Heights.

Trustees will obtain a chart of the cost of bonding procedures and consider proper timing of a referendum before making any final decision.

The next library meeting is scheduled for Dec. 10.

Industry Park Granted Okay

The Wheeling Village Board Monday granted final approval to Palatine Expressway Industrial Park, a 20-acre development on both sides of Palatine Road which houses the Skil Corp.

In a following action the board gave preliminary approval to the plat for the first addition to the industrial park.

The board held up the approval until assured by plan commission chairman Michael Valenza that sewer and water easements being used by the corporations invoived would meet.

Hunt Architect Now For Future School

Dr. Edward Gilbert, Supt. of Dist. 214, recommended to the board of education Monday night that it establish procedures for picking an architect in anticipation of a citizens' committee recommendation for construction of a seventh high school.

Presentation of a proposal for a seventh high school — to contain 3,000 students—will not be made to the board until Dec. 16.

Gilbert told the board that the school would be needed by the fall of 1971, and it would be well to take some of the necessary steps as soon as possible.

GILBERT was instructed to contact architects previously screened by the district for other construction and ask them to submit a statement with supporting material about the type of work their firm has done. The responses will then be screened and the board will set dates for future interviews.

Mrs. Leah Cummins, a board member, has arranged a tour of a new high school in McHenry on the morning of Dec. 16. The school in McHenry uses modular scheduling, is fully air-conditioned, and has a swimming pool, Mrs. Cummins reported.

Runway Reopens Tomorrow

An 11,600-foot, northwest-southeast runway, closed since June 27, is scheduled to be opened tomorrow at O'Hare International Airport.

Pat Dunne, airport manager, said yesterday he intended to make two inspections of the runway and expected it to be in operation within 24 to 36 hours.

THE CLOSING of the runway for five months for repairs has led to increased usage of the other five major runways, increasing the frequency of flights over north DuPage County, Park Ridge, Des Plaines, and Schiller Park.

During the construction period, 7,000 square feet of concrete have been replaced and center lighting installed, giving O'Hare two Category 2 runways.

This type of runway permits aircraft to land with a ceiling of 100 feet and visibility of one-quarter mile.

Educational Center Denied $800,000 in Federal Funds

A request for more than $800,000 in federal aid to finance a proposed Northwest Suburban Education Center from 10 area school districts has been denied by the U.S. Office of Education.

The 10 districts had requested $815,038 in the form of a grant to consolidate and maintain existing programs funded by the federal government, which are primarily concerned with teacher training and research.

Funds for these programs, including the Elk Grove Training and Development Center, run out at the end of the fiscal year.

DIST. 59 Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas, who had the efforts for Districts 211, 214, 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 54, 57, and 59, said the reasons for the Office of Education action are as yet unknown.

He commented that the next step for the group will be to find another agency to fund the 3½-year program, the first 18 months of which will cost more than $800,000.

He said that the superintendents of the 10 districts are scheduled to meet Dec. 2, and at that time Thomas is planning to open discussion on finding an alternate way to fund the program.

"We still hope to go ahead with it," he said.

PROPOSED IS A center that would primarily train teachers, administrators, and other educationally related personnel. In addition to the 10 districts, a number of other sources are involved, including several universities.

The grant would have come under the Educational Professional Development Act, and was designed to replace programs funded under Title III, Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

In an interview Monday, Thomas said that the first step to be taken at this time would be notification of the other superintendents of the action, as well as adding the item of finding another means of revenue for the project to the agenda of the Dec. 2 meeting of the group.

Pick Mrs. Shirley As Head of Caucus

Mrs. Thomas Shirley, 1202 Highland Drive, Prospect Heights, was elected chairman of the 1968-69 general caucus of School Dist. 23 at an organizational meeting last week.

Other caucus officers are J. W. Dubisar, 1608 Jonquil Terrace, Arlington Heights, vice chairman; and Mrs. W. Kibler, 2126 Robinhood Lane, Arlington Heights, secretary.

Five civic and educational organizations are represented by the 24 delegates to the Dist. 23 caucus. These include the Dist. 23 PTA, Prospect Heights Women's Club, Prospect Heights Lions Club, Prospect Heights Improvements Assn. and the Arlington Vista Homeowners Assn. of Arlington Heights.

THE CAUCUS' purpose is to interview candidates for the school board and select the best qualified for caucus endorsement.

The terms of two school board members expire next April. To qualify, a candidate must have lived in the school district for at least a year, be a United States citizen and be at least 21 years old.

The seven-member nominating committee, charged with the responsibility of presenting suitable candidates for final selection by the caucus, includes Mrs. James Copland, Mrs. Edmund Spitzig, Mrs. Richard Sutherland, Robert Peterson, Mrs. E. Spriegel, Don Colby and Harry Hubenthal.

PERSONS interested in becoming candidates for the Dist. 23 board are asked to contact the nominating chairman, Mrs. Copland, at 392-5634.

The next meeting of the Dist. 23 caucus is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in MacArthur Junior High School, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Test of New Runway Leaves Area Communities in Dark

O'Hare Airport's reopening of its 11,600-foot runway, scheduled for tomorrow, has already caused headaches locally — a power blackout affecting more than 23,000 homes in 10 suburban communities.

The blackout occured shortly after 5 a.m. Monday when a Federal Aviation Administration test plane, a DC3, snipped a "static" line atop a 100-foot tower near Lively and Oakton streets in Elk Grove Village.

The line dropped and crossed two live high tension wires, one of them carrying 138,000 volts.

WHILE THERE was only slight damage to the rudder of the aircraft and no injuries to the crew, Commonwealth Edison Co. workers spent most of the day repairing the damage.

FAA officials said that the plane was flying unusually low, about 300 feet lower than normal approaches at that point.

The crew was testing the accuracy of navigational systems of the airport, as well as the new glide-slope patterns and systems for the recently resurfaced runway.

It was the second such incident within a year, both at approximately the same location.

The aircraft involved, stationed at Battle Creek, Mich., is one of a number which test navigational systems in a four-state area in the midwest.

After the mishap, traffic was blocked in a square-mile area near the airport while workmen repaired the lines.

REPORTS said that the lines were cut shortly after 5 a.m., and that while Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates were hardest hit, parts of Mount Prospect, Glendale Heights, Carol Stream, Glen Ellyn, Bloomingdale and Wheaton were also affected.

Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl, in an interview Monday night, said that the village will press for some sort of warning lights on the Commonwealth Edison Co. towers in the area.

He said that the company is agreeable to it, although the FAA doesn't require it.

Pahl reported that the village aeronautics committee chairman, Thomas Hamilton, is studying the type of warning lights most suited for the job.

"This is the second time within a year that this has happened," Pahl said, "so naturally residents are nervous about it."

Assn. Approves 6 of 7 Dist. 214 Resolutions

Six of seven resolutions submitted by the Dist. 214 Board of Education to the Illinois Assn. of School Boards' annual meeting were passed by the association, Mrs. Ernest Beal, board member, reported Monday. A substitute for the seventh was passed after extensive revision.

Mrs. Beal credited the passage of many of the 21 resolutions presented on the floor of the meeting to the time element involved in discussion. Many delegates, finding that the meeting was running later than expected, began to vote hurriedly on motions, cutting short discussion.

Although two of the resolutions came from committee without recommendation for passage on written notice to the state school board members, Mrs. Beal argued for passage before the resolutions committee and was successful in changing their recommendation on one of the resulutions.

THIS RESOLUTION sought to increase the amount the educational tax rate may be raised at one time by referendum. At the present time districts who hold a successful referendum are limited to a total increase of 21 cents per referendum.

Dist. 214 also asked the complete revision and updating of the Illinois school code, the law by which school districts are run.

Mrs. Beal termed "idealistic" a resolution to seek an increase "to a more appropriate level in the bonding limitation of 5 per cent of assessed valuation now placed on school districts."

She said Dist. 214 had included this resolution as a guide to constitutional revisions. It was passed by the delegates.

A resolution to increase the amount of state aid to schools to a minimum foundation level of $600 and to increase the weighted factor in determining the average daily attendance on which this amount is awarded was withdrawn by Mrs. Beal at the request of the board of directors of the IASB. A revised version of this resolution was passed by the Association.

A REQUEST for revision of the present loyalty oath entered by Dist. 214 was passed with the explanation that an oath which stresses a person's support of his country would be more acceptable.

An amendment to a resolution that was a request for revision of the teacher tenure law would establish a special committee to consider the problem. Both the amendment and the resolution were approved.

Student pay from district funds for students performing work for the district as part of a special work-study program was submitted to the delegates "without recommendation" by the resolutions committee.

Dist. 214 has extensive work-study programs throughout the district which could be extended through use of school funds. It was passed by the delegates, although several oberservers felt it was because of the late hour.

The passage of these resolutions will have no immediate effect on Illinois school districts, however. Resolutions which survive the IASB meeting will be used as recommendations to state legislators who have the final say in school legislation.

HUAC Probe Idea Laughable

by TOM WELLMAN

Those blurred figures that raced through the village last week were not members of the Caucus promoting their happening at Thomas Junior High; they were two Congressmen rooting up the shrubbery in search of Commies.

The two Republican Congressmen from the metropolitan area — John Erlenborn and Eugene Derwinski — announced at the conclusion of their search that they might sic that aged watchdog — the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) — on the Suburban Liberation Front (SLF).

The SLF boldly handed out mimeographed leaflets near Prospect High School in September. The leaflets, among other things demanded "an immediate concession . . . the right to leaflet."

WELLMAN

The leaflet also snidely inferred that students felt trapped, unrepresented, threatened by arbitrary rules and sleepy when confronted with their quality education. It also charged that the world is chock full of "war, racism, oppression, and poverty," certainly brand new news.

PERHAPS THE tone of the pamphlets offended Derwinski and Erlenborn. Too strident, too pushy and sounding too much like red money lubricated the mimeograph machine. So, they contacted HUAC.

However, the chase will only begin in ernest if HUAC, the eagle-eyed beagle, sniffs onto the scene. However, I fear that our mutt might end up with egg on its nose, rather than with Commies in the pen.

The watchdog lumbered into Chicago in 1965, and it was promptly picketed by several hundred students and pointy-headed college professors. Two Chicago newspapers even urged that the mastiff should be quietly dragged back to its pen in Washington.

IN 1966, it seized and mauled attorney Arthur Kinoy. The civil rights attorney was dragged off to jail for objecting to procedures during a hearing on student travel procedures of Cuba.

Our mutt has been charged with trampling on innocent persons, barking in the darkness to terrorize persons enjoying the privileges of the First Amendment, and slobbering on due process. It has seldom received a bone for finding subversives.

The watchdog might consider several realities about Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and the SLF before it seriously considers rummaging around out here.

First, social discontent, however incoherently expressed, is fashionable in suburban high schools. Students do have minds, and the majority are now asking probing questions about politics, black people, poverty and other topics.

THE SLF, operating out of a home in Mount Prospect, is a small group of liberals asking those same questions in an organized manner. Like any unsponsored high school political group, it is an ad hoc committee, strong one year and gone the next.

Second, enlightened teachers and administrators, such as Dr. Lawrence Jenness of Forest View in Arlington Heights, are making a large effort to understand unrest.

Administrators in Dist. 214 seem especially aware of student dissent.

If administrators like Jenness, who has given the dissidents a role within student government at Forest View, continue to develop creative programs to absorb criticism, he may be promoting thoughtful inquiry among students, as well as reducing the threats of walkouts and picketing.

Jenness' rational approach makes the cops-and-robbers antics of Erlenborn and Derwinski laughable. Arlington Heights has problems, but it does not need HUAC to sniff around for problems that are not present.

Republican Head-Knocking

Open dispute within area Republican ranks? Bruising maneuvering for position? Out-and-out conflict between Elk Grove and Wheeling Township GOP organizations? It's all true — the pageantry of political football unfolds tomorrow at 10 a.m. when the annual Political Bowl pits Elk Grove vs. Wheeling townships at the Mount Prospect High School football field. While the gridiron classic isn't expected to draw as much national attention as, say, the Rose Bowl, improved appetities for Thanksgiving dinners is expected to be a by-product of the game. Now let's see . . . you get two points for a home run, and . . .

CONTINENTAL TOUCH is applied by Brigitta Loris in floral arrangement at her new shop, Gitta's Flowers, 206 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights.

Roses, Mein Schotze, You Give Them One at a Time

Behind the sign of Gitta's Flowers at 206 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, is a story of courage, hard work and the fulfillment of a dream.

Brigitta Loris fled from East Germany to the West five years ago with her husband and child and brought with her a bit of continental flavor and sentiment which she expresses in her custom flower shop.

Gitta tactfully guides her customers in their choices for different occasions, accenting sentiment not flashy displays, telling the language of flowers in the European tradition. She feels flowers both fresh and artificial should be used to make a house a home and used all year around, not just for special occasions.

For a dinner guest, she advises fresh cut flowers for the hostess herself to arrange, perhaps with a box of chocolates from West Germany which she has on display.

THE HOSTESS should have a floral centerpiece to suit her tableware and room color, or tiny nosegays at each place setting that a guest may take home as a remembrance of the evening.

Brides get very special attention, as Gitta takes into consideration her stature, gown and personality. There were, in a recent open house, hospital arrangements with fruit and flowers, distinctive funeral pieces in subtle elegance and Christmas arrangements.

A European Christmas includes the advent wreath, noting the four Sundays preceding Christmas and the three main ingredients of a traditional Christmas tree — white lights on a fresh green tree, color brought in with the ornaments, which should include homemade cookies also hung on the tree, and the wonderful smells of the cookies with pine greens.

UNUSUAL business floral arrangements with a masculine touch are a specialty, such as the Hawaiian antherium, a piece combining red ginger, ti leaves with the varied colored croton leaves and birds of paradise.

Gitta goes soft on the language of love with flowers. She readily senses the American male has a fear of "looking cheap" and usually tries to impress his lady with a dozen long-stemmed roses. Roses are traditionally the flowers of love, but, mein schotze, one rose at a time, on certain days, means more to a woman than most men realize. She was impressed recently by a bearded young man who left his long-haired lady-love outside and purchased one white rose.

Arlington Heights takes on a continental air when Gitta greets you graciously with her accent. She is a charming, uninhibited woman, just bursting with love for her work, which truly makes an art out of a job.

Indoor Pool Okayed By District 214

The Arlington Heights Park District indoor swimming pool, now dubbed Olympic Park, was approved by High School Dist. 214 Monday night.

The pool, adjacent to Arlington High School, will be used by both park district residents and high school students.

The pool will extend 232 feet north and south along Ridge Avenue and 200 feet west from Ridge immediately south of the tennis court fence.

The school will construct four new tennis courts to bring the total to ten.

TITLE INFORMATION on the plans showed a utilities easement running through the middle of the property, although utilities are not installed there. The district owns this easement, but use of the property would be limited if the easement remains. Therefore approval of the plan is subject to approval of the easement as part of the property.

When a use agreement for the property and pool is completed, the school board must pass a resolution asking the school trustees of Wheeling Township to transfer ownership of the land to the park district.

GOP Election Diagnosis: Bigger '70 Margins Needed

by JAMES VESELY

Elk Grove Township Republicans gathered to perform an autopsy of this year's election issues Monday night, but found instead that the party is alive and well and living in Springfield.

About 40 precinct captains and other party workers met in Mount Prospect's Community Center to watch a methodical examination of the anatomy of this year's election.

Wielding the scalpel was Elk Grove Township GOP Committeeman Carl Hansen, who effectively laid open the essentials of the election from the Republican viewpoint.

Nov. 5 was a case of high voter turnout in predominantly Republican precincts, with 67.9 per cent of the Elk Grove vote going for President-elect Richard Nixon, Hansen reported.

HIGH VOTE-BETTER in the township was U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13th), who received more than 79 per cent of the vote, while the low total went to Robert O'Rourke, candidate for state's attorney. O'Rourke took slightly more than 65 per cent of the vote in the township.

Hansen underscored the relationship between Hansen's Republican township and the rest of Cook County, especially Chicago.

Despite the fact that GOP candidates Sen Everett Dirksen and Gov.-elect Richard Ogilvie took commanding leads in the election and rolled up margins exceeding 100,000 votes in the state, both candidates lost Cook County.

Local Republican votes offset Democratic votes in the city, Hansen explained, but the important percentages statewide were those which showed the number of free and clear votes delivered by Illinois Republicans.

BY FREE and clear votes, Hansen meant the number not offset by comparable Democratic votes.

"Out of 4.6 million votes cast in the state on Nov. 5," Hansen said, "the margins of victory for winning Republicans were only 2 to 3 per cent of the total."

With such slim margins for any candidate of either party, Hansen explained that more sophisticated techniques may have to be used in the township to gain the most free and clear votes.

"From a purely partisan standpoint," Hansen said, "we do not necessarily want a 100 per cent voter turnout. Perhaps we are not looking for a high turnout in some areas of the township where we know there are Democratic voters."

HANSEN told his workers that most local townships delivered sufficient free and clear margins, but that those margins must be increased for 1970.

Although the local party faithful were generally pleased with the state and national results, it was clear that they were used to losing to the highly respected Chicago Democratic machine.

One of the losers to that machine, GOP judicial candidate Anton Valukas of Palatine, shared some thoughts about the election with local Republicans.

Valukas said he got the impression six weeks before the election that Cook County Democrats had shifted their appeal to the voter to local races.

"I THINK that they conceded the national and state tickets at that time," Valukas said, "and the one complaint I have is that we did not counter-react fast enough to meet that shift in emphasis."

The defeated judicial candidate also told the Republicans that the party should place more emphasis working with young party workers. "I like to think that the GOP is not the Grand OLD Party in spirit," he said.

Despite the expected heavy turnout of Republicans in Elk Grove and surrounding townships, party leaders admitted this week that they were not entirely satisfied with the total vote and are plainly worried about possible Democratic inroads because of new construction.

They now are aiming their efforts at 1970, an off-election year in which the Cook County Sheriff's race will probably lead the ticket.

THE GOP is after more Cook County public offices and will undoubtedly make a major bid for the assessor's office, the County Superintendent of Instruction's post and to retain the Sheriff's office.

They also will try to unseat the Democrats from the County Clerk's office.

If they do, it will be a measure of their strength. — the Republicans have not held that post during this century.

Harris Trust Wins Race for Park Bonds

Harris Trust and Savings Co. in Chicago beat the competition to buy $1,300,000 in Arlington Heights Park District bonds by slipping 3 per cent interest into its 20-year rate schedule.

The 3 per cent was applied to the last and largest bond series, a $100,000 bond issue, payable in 1987.

"Harris was out of the ball game until the last inning" said board member Douglas Thompson. He congratulated Harris Asst. Vice President William Hawley on winning the eyelash-close bid by offering $13,000 less interest over 20 years compared to the second lowest bidder, A. G. Becker and Co.

THE INTEREST rate offered by Harris is 4.6515 per cent compared with Becker's 4.66896. The national average on municipal bonds is now 4.7.

Hawley said Harris was able to give the unusually low interest rate on the $100,000 long-term issue because a client had turned up requesting long-term, low-yield bonds as part of a trust fund.

The low rate is possible because the customer is swapping other 3 per cent bonds for municipal bonds as a tax saving.

Although the Harris rates on the bond issues preceding 1987 was, in some cases, higher than their six competitors for the Arlington Heights park bonds, the 3 per cent pulled the over-all rate down.

THE BOARD had hoped for a lower rate following the November elections but no turn-down is in sight and bonds had to be sold before Dec. 31, 1968 in order to raise the tax rate on the assessment roles.

"The market is glutted," Hawley told the board. "There are too many school district issues across the country."

Although voters are turning down more bond issues than at any other time in history there are still many issues coming onto a market that is the highest it has been in 35 years, he said.

THE FACT that the Arlington Heights Park District had seven bidders on its bond issue indicates the respect financial institutions have for this area, Hawley noted.

The bond issue will be used to expand the Arlington Heights Park system. Three community parks with swimming pools, one indoor pool, and seven small parks will be developed. Plans for the parks are under way.

The bids received Monday night were: Harris Trust and Savings, $680,055, with interest at a rate of 4.6515; A. G. Becker and Co., $682,563, at 4.66869 per cent; Northern Trust Co., $687,652, at 4.70350 per cent; John Lavin Co., $688,908, at 4.7121 per cent; Van Kampen, Wauterlek, and Brown, $693,585, at 4.744083 per cent; First National Bank of Chicago, $694,205, at 4.748324; and Continental Illinois National Bank, $695,721, at 4.75869 per cent.

Roses are traditionally the flowers of love, but, mein schotze, one rose at a time, on certain days, means more to a woman than most men realize. She was impressed recently by a bearded young man who left his long-haired lady-love outside and purchased one white rose.

Indoor Pool Okayed By District 214

The Arlington Heights Park District indoor swimming pool, now dubbed Olympic Park, was approved by High School Dist. 214 Monday night.

The pool, adjacent to Arlington High School, will be used by both park district residents and high school students.

The pool will extend 232 feet north and south along Ridge Avenue and 200 feet west from Ridge immediately south of the tennis court fence.

The school will construct four new tennis courts to bring the total to ten.

TITLE INFORMATION on the plans showed a utilities easement running through the middle of the property, although utilities are not installed there. The district owns this easement, but use of the property would be limited if the easement remains. Therefore approval of the plan is subject to approval of the easement as part of the property.

When a use agreement for the property and pool is completed, the school board must pass a resolution asking the school trustees of Wheeling Township to transfer ownership of the land to the park district.

GOP Election Diagnosis: Bigger '70 Margins Needed

by JAMES VESELY

Elk Grove Township Republicans gathered to perform an autopsy of this year's election issues Monday night, but found instead that the party is alive and well and living in Springfield.

About 40 precinct captains and other party workers met in Mount Prospect's Community Center to watch a methodical examination of the anatomy of this year's election.

Wielding the scalpel was Elk Grove Township GOP Committeeman Carl Hansen, who effectively laid open the essentials of the election from the Republican viewpoint.

Nov. 5 was a case of high voter turnout in predominantly Republican precincts, with 67.9 per cent of the Elk Grove vote going for President-elect Richard Nixon, Hansen reported.

HIGH VOTE-BETTER in the township was U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13th), who received more than 79 per cent of the vote, while the low total went to Robert O'Rourke, candidate for state's attorney. O'Rourke took slightly more than 65 per cent of the vote in the township.

Hansen underscored the relationship between Hansen's Republican township and the rest of Cook County, especially Chicago.

Despite the fact that GOP candidates Sen Everett Dirksen and Gov.-elect Richard Ogilvie took commanding leads in the election and rolled up margins exceeding 100,000 votes in the state, both candidates lost Cook County.

Local Republican votes offset Democratic votes in the city, Hansen explained, but the important percentages statewide were those which showed the number of free and clear votes delivered by Illinois Republicans.

BY FREE and clear votes, Hansen meant the number not offset by comparable Democratic votes.

"Out of 4.6 million votes cast in the state on Nov. 5," Hansen said, "the margins of victory for winning Republicans were only 2 to 3 per cent of the total."

With such slim margins for any candidate of either party, Hansen explained that more sophisticated techniques may have to be used in the township to gain the most free and clear votes.

"From a purely partisan standpoint," Hansen said, "we do not necessarily want a 100 per cent voter turnout. Perhaps we are not looking for a high turnout in some areas of the township where we know there are Democratic voters."

HANSEN told his workers that most local townships delivered sufficient free and clear margins, but that those margins must be increased for 1970.

Although the local party faithful were generally pleased with the state and national results, it was clear that they were used to losing to the highly respected Chicago Democratic machine.

One of the losers to that machine, GOP judicial candidate Anton Valukas of Palatine, shared some thoughts about the election with local Republicans.

Valukas said he got the impression six weeks before the election that Cook County Democrats had shifted their appeal to the voter to local races.

"I THINK that they conceded the national and state tickets at that time," Valukas said, "and the one complaint I have is that we did not counter-react fast enough to meet that shift in emphasis."

The defeated judicial candidate also told the Republicans that the party should place more emphasis working with young party workers. "I like to think that the GOP is not the Grand OLD Party in spirit," he said.

Despite the expected heavy turnout of Republicans in Elk Grove and surrounding townships, party leaders admitted this week that they were not entirely satisfied with the total vote and are plainly worried about possible Democratic inroads because of new construction.

They now are aiming their efforts at 1970, an off-election year in which the Cook County Sheriff's race will probably lead the ticket.

THE GOP is after more Cook County public offices and will undoubtedly make a major bid for the assessor's office, the County Superintendent of Instruction's post and to retain the Sheriff's office.

They also will try to unseat the Democrats from the County Clerk's office.

If they do, it will be a measure of their strength. — the Republicans have not held that post during this century.

Harris Trust Wins Race for Park Bonds

Harris Trust and Savings Co. in Chicago beat the competition to buy $1,300,000 in Arlington Heights Park District bonds by slipping 3 per cent interest into its 20-year rate schedule.

The 3 per cent was applied to the last and largest bond series, a $100,000 bond issue, payable in 1987.

"Harris was out of the ball game until the last inning" said board member Douglas Thompson. He congratulated Harris Asst. Vice President William Hawley on winning the eyelash-close bid by offering $13,000 less interest over 20 years compared to the second lowest bidder, A. G. Becker and Co.

THE INTEREST rate offered by Harris is 4.6515 per cent compared with Becker's 4.66896. The national average on municipal bonds is now 4.7.

Hawley said Harris was able to give the unusually low interest rate on the $100,000 long-term issue because a client had turned up requesting long-term, low-yield bonds as part of a trust fund.

The low rate is possible because the customer is swapping other 3 per cent bonds for municipal bonds as a tax saving.

Although the Harris rates on the bond issues preceding 1987 was, in some cases, higher than their six competitors for the Arlington Heights park bonds, the 3 per cent pulled the over-all rate down.

THE BOARD had hoped for a lower rate following the November elections but no turn-down is in sight and bonds had to be sold before Dec. 31, 1968 in order to raise the tax rate on the assessment roles.

"The market is glutted," Hawley told the board. "There are too many school district issues across the country."

Although voters are turning down more bond issues than at any other time in history there are still many issues coming onto a market that is the highest it has been in 35 years, he said.

THE FACT that the Arlington Heights Park District had seven bidders on its bond issue indicates the respect financial institutions have for this area, Hawley noted.

The bond issue will be used to expand the Arlington Heights Park system. Three community parks with swimming pools, one indoor pool, and seven small parks will be developed. Plans for the parks are under way.

The bids received Monday night were: Harris Trust and Savings, $680,055, with interest at a rate of 4.6515; A. G. Becker and Co., $682,563, at 4.66869 per cent; Northern Trust Co., $687,652, at 4.70350 per cent; John Lavin Co., $688,908, at 4.7121 per cent; Van Kampen, Wauterlek, and Brown, $693,585, at 4.744083 per cent; First National Bank of Chicago, $694,205, at 4.748324; and Continental Illinois National Bank, $695,721, at 4.75869 per cent.

CONTINENTAL TOUCH is applied by Brigitta Loris in floral arrangement at her new shop, Gitta's Flowers, 206 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights.

Roses, Mein Schotze, You Give Them One at a Time

Behind the sign of Gitta's Flowers at 206 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, is a story of courage, hard work and the fulfillment of a dream.

Brigitta Loris fled from East Germany to the West five years ago with her husband and child and brought with her a bit of continental flavor and sentiment which she expresses in her custom flower shop.

Gitta tactfully guides her customers in their choices for different occasions, accenting sentiment not flashy displays, telling the language of flowers in the European tradition. She feels flowers both fresh and artificial should be used to make a house a home and used all year around, not just for special occasions.

For a dinner guest, she advises fresh cut flowers for the hostess herself to arrange, perhaps with a box of chocolates from West Germany which she has on display.

THE HOSTESS should have a floral centerpiece to suit her tableware and room color, or tiny nosegays at each place setting that a guest may take home as a remembrance of the evening.

Brides get very special attention, as Gitta takes into consideration her stature, gown and personality. There were, in a recent open house, hospital arrangements with fruit and flowers, distinctive funeral pieces in subtle elegance and Christmas arrangements.

A European Christmas includes the advent wreath, noting the four Sundays preceding Christmas and the three main ingredients of a traditional Christmas tree — white lights on a fresh green tree, color brought in with the ornaments, which should include homemade cookies also hung on the tree, and the wonderful smells of the cookies with pine greens.

UNUSUAL business floral arrangements with a masculine touch are a specialty, such as the Hawaiian antherium, a piece combining red ginger, ti leaves with the varied colored croton leaves and birds of paradise.

Gitta goes soft on the language of love with flowers. She readily senses the American male has a fear of "looking cheap" and usually tries to impress his lady with a dozen long-stemmed roses. Roses are traditionally the flowers of love, but, mein schotze, one rose at a time, on certain days, means more to a woman than most men realize. She was impressed recently by a bearded young man who left his long-haired lady-love outside and purchased one white rose.

Arlington Heights takes on a continental air when Gitta greets you graciously with her accent. She is a charming, uninhibited woman, just bursting with love for her work, which truly makes an art out of a job.

The 3 per cent was applied to the last and largest bond series, a $100,000 bond issue, payable in 1987.

"Harris was out of the ball game until the last inning" said board member Douglas Thompson. He congratulated Harris Asst. Vice President William Hawley on winning the eyelash-close bid by offering $13,000 less interest over 20 years compared to the second lowest bidder, A. G. Becker and Co.

THE INTEREST rate offered by Harris is 4.6515 per cent compared with Becker's 4.66896. The national average on municipal bonds is now 4.7.

Hawley said Harris was able to give the unusually low interest rate on the $100,000 long-term issue because a client had turned up requesting long-term, low-yield bonds as part of a trust fund.

The low rate is possible because the customer is swapping other 3 per cent bonds for municipal bonds as a tax saving.

Although the Harris rates on the bond issues preceding 1987 was, in some cases, higher than their six competitors for the Arlington Heights park bonds, the 3 per cent pulled the over-all rate down.

THE BOARD had hoped for a lower rate following the November elections but no turn-down is in sight and bonds had to be sold before Dec. 31, 1968 in order to raise the tax rate on the assessment roles.

"The market is glutted," Hawley told the board. "There are too many school district issues across the country."

Although voters are turning down more bond issues than at any other time in history there are still many issues coming onto a market that is the highest it has been in 35 years, he said.

THE FACT that the Arlington Heights Park District had seven bidders on its bond issue indicates the respect financial institutions have for this area, Hawley noted.

The bond issue will be used to expand the Arlington Heights Park system. Three community parks with swimming pools, one indoor pool, and seven small parks will be developed. Plans for the parks are under way.

The bids received Monday night were: Harris Trust and Savings, $680,055, with interest at a rate of 4.6515; A. G. Becker and Co., $682,563, at 4.66869 per cent; Northern Trust Co., $687,652, at 4.70350 per cent; John Lavin Co., $688,908, at 4.7121 per cent; Van Kampen, Wauterlek, and Brown, $693,585, at 4.744083 per cent; First National Bank of Chicago, $694,205, at 4.748324; and Continental Illinois National Bank, $695,721, at 4.75869 per cent.

Math Class Filled? Computer Will Tell

Harper Junior College may be the first school in the U. s. to fully computerize its registration.

Most colleges say their registrations are computerized, but usually students and clerical helpers hand-collect course cards and only the final printout is done by hardware.

The system Harper is considering will utilize computer-linked remote control terminals that can fully process a student's course requests, check for conflicts and deliver a fee statement in 45 seconds or less.

Harper admissions director Donn Stansbury says the community college will begin experimenting with the system as early as next April.

"WE'RE REALLY excited about the prospects," Stansbury says, "though we're expecting to have to work out lots of bugs."

The new system will be put into full use for the first time for summer school registration. The summer session is expected to attract about 1,800 students.

Stansbury concedes many questions still must be answered before the college considers the system fully proved.

For example, Harper will have to determine:

—Whether it will spend more for computer time than it would to hire clerical help to handle registrations.

—Whether computerization will save time for registering students or merely mean students will be standing longer in one line rather than in several.

Standing ready to help Harper pin down those answers is International Business Machines, which already has had five programmers working to furnish initial information needed for the scheduling.

Part-time Harper students who weathered a long wait to register for evening classes this fall may have things eased the next time, computer or no.

Stansbury says the college is planning to add a set of Saturday daytime and evening registration hours to take pressure off the already-scheduled daytime registration days, Jan. 29-31.

White House Changeover Won't Be a Snap

by EMIL SVEILIS

WASHINGTON UPI — The Johnson Administration has greased the wheels of government for the Nixon takeover in January. But despite the preparations, the bureaucratic machinery has slowed down noticeably.

Although aides to President Johnson and President-elect Richard M. Nixon have been working on the transition since the election, no one doubts there will be snags in the switch from a Democratic to a Republican administration.

The government has already given Nixon a 30-room suite of offices not far from the White House until the transfer of power.

The allocation of office space represents the first government effort to set up a headquarters for the president-elect. Congress this year appropriated $900,000 for moving expenses of the old administration and to furnish space for the new.

PREVIOUSLY, new administrations had to find their own office space.

One high White House official, who has been connected with the government for 27 years, said "more work has gone into bringing about an orderly, friendly transition this year than at any other time in my experience."

To provide a break-in period for new officials, Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford said at a news conference on Nov. 12 that he asked Nixon to appoint his defense secretary "as promptly as possible so that we can start him on a period of orientation.

"If he and the new secretary could come in and attend our meetings, meet with me and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, meet with the service secretaries, it could be the most valuable month that he had."

CLIFFORD has instructed all 31 presidential appointees in the Pentagon to make space available in or next to their own offices for their successors, as they are chosen, to enable them to start working before the actual change of administrations.

Franklin B. Lincoln Jr., who is handling the transition for Nixon, has visited Clifford several times to discuss the problems Clifford Encountered eight years ago when he was in charge of a similar job for President-elect Kennedy.

Nixon named Robert D. Murphy as his first foreign policy representative with offices next to those of Secretary of State Rusk during the transition period. Murphy is a veteran career foreign service office and an expert on international crisis.

ANOTHER effort by the outgoing administration to help the newcomers is to draw up position and status papers on each department in the government. In the past, however, new administrations have not paid too much attention to these bits of information.

Officials say these papers, for the most part, are less than objective because the outgoing administration does not want to show its successors any failures in a particular department during its tenure.

The Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, for example, largely ignored the lengthy position reports prepared by outgoing State Department officials.

Rusk has ordered his State Department assistants to prepare similar papers for the Nixon administration. It is expected that Nixon will throw them out also.

AT THE Transportation Department there is a general work slowdown. Johnson Administration officials are leaving behind such problems as the Supersonic Transport (SST) and the proposed high-speed railroad linking Washington, New York and Boston.

General services employes, not subject to dismissal when a new administration takes over, are jittery anyway because they do not know who their new Republican bosses will be.

And career foreign service employes, from embassy secretaries to ambassadors, also have good reason for concern. Although they can't be fired or have their pay cut, they can be recalled to the State Department from sometimes plush out-of-country jobs.

AGRICULTURE Secretary Orville Freeman made it clear during a staff meeting that he did not want any foot-dragging or loafing on the job during the windup weeks of the Johnson Administration.

He instructed a task force to get to work on a final update of a series of long-range projects outlining rural and agricultural problems through the year 2,- outlining rural and agricultural problems through the year 2000. He wants those completed before leaving office.

In spite of the secretary's directive, one outgoing policy official conceded that "everybody is a little less busy than you'd normally expect this time of year."

The difference in the various departments is that the policy makers are not wrapped up in drafting new legislation for next year. And there is a good deal of corridor and lunchroom talk about who is going to do what or go where after Jan. 20.

AN AGRICULTURE Department veteran sees some reorganization ahead even if nothing physical is changed just so there will be a psychological method of establishing control by new administrators.

Cabinet members will take along books, pictures, speeches and other mementoes when they leave. The government will pay for the moving.

At least for some of the outgoing crew, the pressure keeps up to normal. One official of an agency involved in consumer programs said, "we're up to our hips right now in expanding the food stamp programs" and indicated he expected to be busy right through the end of the term.

The White House is busy.

President Johnson is working on his State of the Union address to Congress when it reconvenes in early January. This is keeping all departments and agencies busy because of the President's need for a report from each one.

BUDGET BUREAU officials also are busy on Johnson's budget message. Most of the functionaries there, except for the director, will stay on with the new administration because they are technicians, and not politicians. And the Treasury Department is working on tax reform legislation.

Most of the activity at the Housing and Urban Development Department has been centered on a final appeal to Congress for more funds for the 1968 housing act. Officials there fear that the Nixon administration will curb any real action on the part of HUD programs.

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL is more than a song to these energetic Cub Scouts of Pack 180, Rolling Meadows. Michael Zimmerman, 9, and David Hayden, 10, worked on "Operation Filth" by picking up debris on Salk School grounds Saturday. Throughout Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights 800 Cubs and Boy Scouts gathered trash into 1,000 plastic bags to help beautify their communities and to express in action their appreciation for community support.

Just What Did That Helmet Say?

An 18-year old Glenview man was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct at Randhurst Monday.

He was wearing an Army helmet, and was booked because an obscene word was painted clearly in black and white on the helmet.

Police identified the man as James Q. Gattle, 2216 Prarie, Glenview.

Picked up along with Gattle was a friend, Fred Joseph, who police later learned has been reported AWOL from Fort Rucker, Alabama, for the past two weeks. Joseph, who lives in San Jose, Calif., was later turned over to military authorities.

12 Acres Sold In Industry Park

A 12-acre parcel of land located at the corner of Route 83 and Algonquin Road, near Des Plaines, was sold this week by Kenroy Builders to Sam Rothbart, a local builder and developer.

THE LAND, which lies in an industrial park, is vacant now but Rothbart plans to build a series of inventory industrial buildings on it.

The first building, which will be 28,000 square feet in size, is already under construction.

Weber Donates Card Duplicator

When Weber Marking Systems, Inc. learned that the Arlington Heights Memorial Library required a catalog card duplicator, the company informed board members that the firm would donate one for library use.

Joseph A. Weber, Jr., executive vice president of the firm at 711 W. Algonquin, Arlington Heights, presented the Mini-Card duplicator to Mrs. Florence Hendrickson, board president, Tuesday morning.

The machine, currently used by the Chicago Public Library, makes it possible for librarians to type one stencil, rather than many cards, for each volume.

Mary Lee Ewalt, head librarian, said that while works of fiction require only three or four cards, a book encompassing several areas must be cross-referenced and 12 cards may be necessary to cover all appropriate topics.

Eiler Marchers In State Street Yule Parade

The Delores Eiler Entertainers will appear in the annual State Street Christmas parade Sunday, Dec. 1.

The parade will step off from State Street and Wacker Drive at 1 p.m. and will continue to State and Congress. It will be televised in color on Channel 9.

Girl Cuts Foot On Conveyor

Pat Splithoff, 224 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights, was reportedly working in the S&H green stamp stockroom when the accident occurred. Police said she stepped on two conveyor belt rollers in order to move a package, but seconds later the belt was turned on, wedging Miss Splithoff's foot between the rollers.

Mount Prospect firemen were called and had to use a cutting torch to free her foot.

She was then rushed to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment, where her condition is reported as fair.

White House Changeover Won't Be a Snap

by EMIL SVEILIS

WASHINGTON UPI — The Johnson Administration has greased the wheels of government for the Nixon takeover in January. But despite the preparations, the bureaucratic machinery has slowed down noticeably.

Although aides to President Johnson and President-elect Richard M. Nixon have been working on the transition since the election, no one doubts there will be snags in the switch from a Democratic to a Republican administration.

The government has already given Nixon a 30-room suite of offices not far from the White House until the transfer of power.

The allocation of office space represents the first government effort to set up a headquarters for the president-elect. Congress this year appropriated $900,000 for moving expenses of the old administration and to furnish space for the new.

PREVIOUSLY, new administrations had to find their own office space.

One high White House official, who has been connected with the government for 27 years, said "more work has gone into bringing about an orderly, friendly transition this year than at any other time in my experience."

To provide a break-in period for new officials, Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford said at a news conference on Nov. 12 that he asked Nixon to appoint his defense secretary "as promptly as possible so that we can start him on a period of orientation.

"If he and the new secretary could come in and attend our meetings, meet with me and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, meet with the service secretaries, it could be the most valuable month that he had."

CLIFFORD has instructed all 31 presidential appointees in the Pentagon to make space available in or next to their own offices for their successors, as they are chosen, to enable them to start working before the actual change of administrations.

Franklin B. Lincoln Jr., who is handling the transition for Nixon, has visited Clifford several times to discuss the problems Clifford Encountered eight years ago when he was in charge of a similar job for President-elect Kennedy.

Nixon named Robert D. Murphy as his first foreign policy representative with offices next to those of Secretary of State Rusk during the transition period. Murphy is a veteran career foreign service office and an expert on international crisis.

ANOTHER effort by the outgoing administration to help the newcomers is to draw up position and status papers on each department in the government. In the past, however, new administrations have not paid too much attention to these bits of information.

Officials say these papers, for the most part, are less than objective because the outgoing administration does not want to show its successors any failures in a particular department during its tenure.

The Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, for example, largely ignored the lengthy position reports prepared by outgoing State Department officials.

Rusk has ordered his State Department assistants to prepare similar papers for the Nixon administration. It is expected that Nixon will throw them out also.

AT THE Transportation Department there is a general work slowdown. Johnson Administration officials are leaving behind such problems as the Supersonic Transport (SST) and the proposed high-speed railroad linking Washington, New York and Boston.

General services employes, not subject to dismissal when a new administration takes over, are jittery anyway because they do not know who their new Republican bosses will be.

And career foreign service employes, from embassy secretaries to ambassadors, also have good reason for concern. Although they can't be fired or have their pay cut, they can be recalled to the State Department from sometimes plush out-of-country jobs.

AGRICULTURE Secretary Orville Freeman made it clear during a staff meeting that he did not want any foot-dragging or loafing on the job during the windup weeks of the Johnson Administration.

He instructed a task force to get to work on a final update of a series of long-range projects outlining rural and agricultural problems through the year 2,- outlining rural and agricultural problems through the year 2000. He wants those completed before leaving office.

In spite of the secretary's directive, one outgoing policy official conceded that "everybody is a little less busy than you'd normally expect this time of year."

The difference in the various departments is that the policy makers are not wrapped up in drafting new legislation for next year. And there is a good deal of corridor and lunchroom talk about who is going to do what or go where after Jan. 20.

AN AGRICULTURE Department veteran sees some reorganization ahead even if nothing physical is changed just so there will be a psychological method of establishing control by new administrators.

Cabinet members will take along books, pictures, speeches and other mementoes when they leave. The government will pay for the moving.

At least for some of the outgoing crew, the pressure keeps up to normal. One official of an agency involved in consumer programs said, "we're up to our hips right now in expanding the food stamp programs" and indicated he expected to be busy right through the end of the term.

The White House is busy.

President Johnson is working on his State of the Union address to Congress when it reconvenes in early January. This is keeping all departments and agencies busy because of the President's need for a report from each one.

BUDGET BUREAU officials also are busy on Johnson's budget message. Most of the functionaries there, except for the director, will stay on with the new administration because they are technicians, and not politicians. And the Treasury Department is working on tax reform legislation.

Most of the activity at the Housing and Urban Development Department has been centered on a final appeal to Congress for more funds for the 1968 housing act. Officials there fear that the Nixon administration will curb any real action on the part of HUD programs.

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL is more than a song to these energetic Cub Scouts of Pack 180, Rolling Meadows. Michael Zimmerman, 9, and David Hayden, 10, worked on "Operation Filth" by picking up debris on Salk School grounds Saturday. Throughout Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights 800 Cubs and Boy Scouts gathered trash into 1,000 plastic bags to help beautify their communities and to express in action their appreciation for community support.

Weber Donates Card Duplicator

When Weber Marking Systems, Inc. learned that the Arlington Heights Memorial Library required a catalog card duplicator, the company informed board members that the firm would donate one for library use.

Joseph A. Weber, Jr., executive vice president of the firm at 711 W. Algonquin, Arlington Heights, presented the Mini-Card duplicator to Mrs. Florence Hendrickson, board president, Tuesday morning.

The machine, currently used by the Chicago Public Library, makes it possible for librarians to type one stencil, rather than many cards, for each volume.

Mary Lee Ewalt, head librarian, said that while works of fiction require only three or four cards, a book encompassing several areas must be cross-referenced and 12 cards may be necessary to cover all appropriate topics.

Girl Cuts Foot On Conveyor

A 16-year-old Prospect High School student severely cut her left foot Saturday in a conveyor belt accident in Weiboldt's at Randhurst.

Pat Splithoff, 224 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights, was reportedly working in the S&H green stamp stockroom when the accident occurred. Police said she stepped on two conveyor belt rollers in order to move a package, but seconds later the belt was turned on, wedging Miss Splithoff's foot between the rollers.

Mount Prospect firemen were called and had to use a cutting torch to free her foot.

She was then rushed to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment, where her condition is reported as fair.

IASB OKs 6 of 7 Dist. 214 Proposals

A broader state school aid package, a more positive teachers' loyalty oath and lifting of ceilings on local tax referenda were called for by the Illinois Assn. of School Boards convention last weekend.

Mrs. Ethel Beal of Mount Prospect, High School Dist. 214's delegate, came home with the "bacon" — approval of six of seven resolutions the district had proposed.

The IASB also called for the next Illinois General Assembly to establish and fund an ad hoc committee to set priorities for implementation of the Task Force Committee on Education's recommendations and establish a Master Plan for the Common Schools of Illinois.

E. Erie Jones of Palatine told Paddock Publications that such legislative action will "legitimize, fund and give direction to" the common school committee already established by Gov. Samuel Shapiro.

JONES SERVES ON the committee, a bipartisan group that includes most of the state's leading school spokesmen.

The call for a Common Schools Master Plan represents shift in opinion for the IASB.

When Jones called for taking that position at an unofficial Task Force committee meeting in September, he was criticized by the IASB and Illinois Education Assn. representatives. The two education group spokesmen said development of a Master Plan might delay Task Force implementation two more years.

Mrs. Beal had vowed to lead a floor fight for lifting of the tax ceiling on local tax referenda, but found she didn't have to.

AT THE REQUEST of Northwest Suburban, Lake County and North Shore school boards, the resolutions committee of the IASB decided Saturday morning to withdraw its objections to the change.

High School Dist. 214 also won approval of a resolution calling for legislation to make it possible for school districts to pay incentive wages to students employed on in-school work-study projects.

"It took a division of the house," Mrs. Beal noted, "but we made it."

Vote on that resolution — which Dist. 214 had brought to the IASB primarily to inform other high schools of a potential problem — was 125 to 112.

The broader school aid package to which the IASB has given its backing includes most of the 1966 Task Force's recommendations for increased state financial support to schools.

THE IASB WILL ASK the Legislature to:

—Increase the state aid foundation level to $600 per pupil.

—Take state aid to elementary schools to $600 per elementary pupil and $750 per high school pupil.

—Increase funding for the Illinois School Building Commission.

—Provide additional state aid to school districts with special problems because of pupil sparsity or density.

A resolution calling for state aid for pre-school classes was rejected. So was a resolution calling for pooling all of the local school districts' various tax funds into one operating fund.

The Turkey-Eye View, Or

LIFE IN A WHITE–MEAT NEIGHBORHOOD

by the PROSPECT STAFF

Thanksgiving comes but once a year and when it does it brings good cheer — except from the turkey's point of view.

Assembled here for a panel discussion are Tom Turkey, Long Hair Turkey, Stiff-Neck Turkey and Mr. Pilgrim.

MODERATOR: How do you like turkey dinner?

Mr. Pilgrim: When we first arrived on this continent, there was nothing. Desolation, dreariness, sorrow, hunger and despair, solitude and weariness. But there always was the turkey. Our lives depended on the turkey! In short, I love turkey dinner! And the Indian — never forget the Indian. When first we saw the red man coming through the rye, we trembled, we shook, we were filled with fear. But the Indian has also become our friend. It is because of this day that we celebrate the memorable feast — Thanksgiving — with turkey dinner!

Long Hair: The Pilgrim and his turkey dinner is a disgraceful institution. We are being discriminated against. The last of the turkeys is dying out because of the tradition of Thanksgiving. We demand turkey rights! After all, we were among the first settlers of the United States. The rise of the turkey shall live forever!

Tom: I don't want to offend anyone; however, I think turkey dinners are acceptable as long as they are served with dressing. I think everybody should be clothed when they eat turkey. So there!

Long Hair: That's terrible! You're an anti-turkey rightser!

Tom: You're a nut.

MODERATOR: Tell me about the first Thanksgiving.

Long Hair: The first Thanksgiving was the first attack on the turkey. Ever since, despite the Emancipation Proclamation by our great orator, Abraham Turkey, the discrimination against turkeys has been a social problem.

Tom: I would like to say that Abe Turkey is a radical who was only interested in saving his own neck!

Long Hair: Just because you're afraid of the turkey. . .

Stiff-neck: But friends, it's tradition!

Mr. Pilgrim: Most of my friends prefer white meat; it's predominantly a white meat neighborhood.

Long Hair: That is an example of discrimination of white meat over dark meat! We won't tolerate this injustice. It will be influential in the turkey rebellion planned for Nov. 27. Charlie Brown would never stand for this!

MODERATOR: But why did the Pilgrims choose turkey?

Mr. Pilgrim: I'll tell you why! Did you ever hear of rhubarb with pickle dressing on Thanksgiving? Or cauliflower pie with marshmallow top?

Stiff-neck: But it's tradition.

Long Hair: Tradition-smadition! Why should we accept something just because our ancestors accepted it! Every turkey over 35 is a communist. Today's generation of turkeys will change the world!

Tom: We don't want to talk about my uncle Strekfus that way.

MODERATOR: Do you Thanksgiving people feel crowded out by Christmas?

Tom: I am against killing of Christmas trees for Christmas.

Long Hair: Christmas gets all the recognition. How many stores have Thanksgiving decorations? We demand equal rights!

Pilgrim: I just don't worry about trivial things like Thanksgiving and Christmas. I take them as they come.

Stiff-neck: Heavens no! Christmas is my favorite time of the whole year. After all, it's tradition.

MODERATOR: Do you turkeys have any kind of celebration on Thanksgiving Day?

Long Hair: Naturally. Every Turkey Day we go out and picket the city hall and sit in at Grant Park and strive for recognition.

Tom: I'd like to say we have religious services for the deceased.

Stiff-neck: Despite my fond belief in tradition, I HIDE!!

MODERATOR: Would you do anything to change Thanksgiving?

Tom: I would change the date. I would make it Nov. 34. That way it would never come around.

Long Hair: I'd abolish it all together.

Stiff-Neck: Nothing. It's traditional.

MODERATOR: Our time is almost up. Before we close, do any of you have any last comments you would like to add?

Stiff-neck: Let's hear it for tradition!

Long Hair: The Turkeys for Democratic Society will meet tonight in the park for T-Day protest. And let me tell all of you pilgrims, beware.

Tom: Aw you guys, Be nice — let's hear it for vegetables!

The Short Vacation — And How To See It Fly Away

by GARY SOSNIECK

To some, the arrival of the Thanksgiving weekend may seem like an abrupt interruption in a year that has moved by just too swiftly. To others, the holiday comes after weeks and weeks of anticipation.

Regardless of how area high school students greet the oncoming four-day holiday weekend, their intentions will probably be the same — to take advantage of the free time and have fun.

THE WEEKEND activities promise to be varied. Of course there will be the traditional church services and turkey dinner on Thursday, but from that point on, it's up to the individual.

Many will travel throughout the Midwest to visit relatives, while some of the more adventurous breed might take advantage of the hunting season. College-bound seniors will have an opportunity to visit their campuses-to-be in preparation for next September's giant step.

Those who stay in town should have no trouble keeping busy. On Friday, thousands of students will board the commuter trains and join the half-million Loop shoppers and movie-goers. The day after Thanksgiving is traditionally downtown Chicago's busiest shopping day of the year.

THE FOUR-DAY holiday will give some a chance to earn some extra money. The monetary resources put aside from summer work have dwindled, or in some cases completely disappeared, after three months of unemployment.

There's something for the homebodies, too. Grid fans will spend countless hours in front of television set watching the big games while snacking on pretzels and soft drinks.

The more conscientious high school student will have four days to get that research paper done. But parties should keep many a teen away from the books.

BUT PERHAPS the most cherished activity of the weekend will not be an activity at all. Sleep, a precious commodity during the school year, will occupy many a tired individual when the holiday excitement starts to die down.

The culmination of the Thanksgiving weekend, regardless of how it is spent, will come on Monday morning when the alarm clock rings. "Ohhh. . .where did the weekend go so fast?" will be the probable response, followed by a faint "How long to Christmas vacation?"

Three weeks to go.

Odds 1,500 to 2,273 In Battle of Bulge

With Thanksgiving coming up tomorrow, people begin thinking about that delicious spread of holiday goodies. How many people, in thinking about this feast, consider the outcome of such a meal?

We start off the meal with grapefruit, that is fifty calories, or tomato juice at the same figure. The main meal consists of about 200 calories for the turkey. Bread stuffing is about 65. Cranberry sauce is 100 calories for every three tablespoons. We mustn't forget the sweet potatoes with marshmallow and butter, 231 calories. There are also those who prefer white potatoes with butter, 125 calories.

STRING BEANS tally to only 25 calories, unless one prefers broccoli for 45. Nice warm dinner rolls with melting butter are a mere 100 more. The whole thing is smothered with gravy at 50 calories per tablespoon.

The table would be incomplete without a tossed salad with plenty of dressing, only about 135 more. Coffee and tea aren't worth anything, but the cream and sugar added to them add up to about 30 calories. There is, of course, milk for the kiddies, approximately 170 calories.

This leaves only the climax of this memorable meal, pumpkin pie, fninishing like a king with 325 calories for an average piece.

THIS MENU sounds pretty complete, with a total of 1,500 calories.

But a kind of Thanksgiving madness can lead to even more culinary excess.

Add to the above meal just a few extras, like mincemeat at 131 calories, brown nut bread at 100 a slice, peas for 111 calories, carrots for 44 and squash for 97 points. Now your count starts zooming.

AND WHAT'S a big meal without a gelatin salad with fruit? It's 172 calories less. Top the meal off with a baked apple at 118 calories and that's good eating.

Now your basic 1,500 calorie meal is a whopping 2,273. For dieters, that may mean no more meals until Sunday evening.

Don't worry though, it's a once-a-year bash. And maybe within the next month someone will think of a dieters' special for Christmas dinner.

Falcons Meet In Exchange

The Falcons from Harlan High School met with the Falcons of Forest View High School for a day of interaction last week.

The visit was arranged by the Human Relations Club of Forest View to help better the understanding between the students and the races.

THERE WERE 30 students from cach school who participated actively.

First the students introduced themselves, divided into pairs and toured the building and explained the school system.

They had the freedom to walk in and out of classrooms, lectures and labs.

After lunch, they held a panel discussion in which the students of each school were able to ask questions.

SOME OF the topics that were discussed were the reasons for walkouts and boycotting in the schools, the amount of freedom allowed in each school and if schools should have Afro-American history courses.

"I think the day was worth while and very interesting, as well as educational," said Tom Vaughn, student host.

The Ungrateful Tell Why

by MARTHA SCHERSTEN

"There's so much to be thankful for." Teenagers are told this and most of them agree. But there are some, with plenty of money and good food, wonderful educational systems and magical toys, who don't.

I talked to some of the ungrateful, and, in various degrees of articulateness, they told why they have no thanks.

"YOU'RE living in America . . ."

"Oh man, if I hear that once more I'll smash something. What's the big hairy deal with America? The poverty and the riots and the political machines . . . everything . . ."

"I live in America, so I die for America. That's what they mean. No country is more important than my own life, or the life of some Viet Cong soldier."

"So what? I really don't care where I live. I was born here, but that doesn't suddenly give me wisdom and strength and the key to the meaning of life. If doesn't matter where I live. One place is as good as the next."

"YOU HAVE all the food you want, and beautiful homes, and more money and goods than people anywhere else in the world . . ."

"Uh huh. I suppose I'd miss all that if it was gone, but there's things so much more important. If I had them I wouldn't care what I was eating, or how much."

"Do you think I really get a kick out of stuffing myself, knowing that children in downtown Chicago and in Biafra and everywhere in between are starving? Do you think I'm grateful for the chance to look like a pig?"

"Yeah, I've got a car and a closet full of clothes and a stereo and a couple thousand other things and all they do is get in my way. I'd just as soon haul them down to the dump. They weigh me down. I hate them."

"YOU GO to one of the best schools in the country . . ."

"Oh come on! You think I appreciate anything about that regimented prison? Their whole philosophy isn't quite 'Burn the books,' it's 'Burn all the parts of the books we don't like — leave them incomplete and asinine.' "

"Their definition of best school is my definition of worst school. Nothing I do in school is ever going to accomplish any good. I abandoned that idea in third grade."

"Thankful for school? For school?"

"YOU'RE young and healthy . . ."

"And fit? Fit for what? I'm going to become as stubborn and slow as my father. My mind will probably get as stubborn and slow as his."

"The old people are going to die. I'm going to be alive in 1984. I'm not exactly real happy about that."

"Well, it's wonderful having all this strength and health, but everything else sort of keeps my strength down. I can't do anything useful with it. By the time I'm through with graduate school, which seems to have become necessary, I'll be getting old and flabby. They plan it that way, so young people are too fettered down to really change anything."

"YOUR parents do so much for you . . ."

"Well really, they're not doing anything for me that their parents didn't do for them. I don't want to sound callous, but that's the way the world is. I'll do the same thing for my children. It's nothing new for them."

"They don't do a thing for me that makes me or them happy. They give me things. And they whine about 'my own good.' I don't buy that. It's for their image that they do it."

"I wish they'd reverse their tactics and become a little more easy-going and accepting. They say I'm always making fun of something. Well, they never make fun of anything, you know? Life is pretty grim for them. If they let up on me and on themselves I'd be grateful. "I'm not now."

Turkey Worship Must Stop!

by DAVE WOODS

Ah yes, here we are fast approaching another Thanksgiving, and along with it another Thanksgiving dinner. And of course, Thanksgiving dinner can mean only one thing — turkey.

Right now, you are probably saying to yourself (if you are in the habit of talking to yourself) "Oh no! Here comes another one of those stories about how great the turkey is."

ALAS, such is not the case.

It's about time the turkey stopped basking in the reflected glory of an accident that happened more than 300 years ago.

For all these years, we have held the turkey in highest esteem, revering him beyond any other bird in existence. And why? Because when the Pilgrims were starving, out of ammunition and unable to find anything else to eat, the turkey was the only thing around that was stupid enough to get caught and roasted.

For all we know, the Pilgrims might not have even wanted to eat turkey; fate forced the foolish bird upon them. We certainly have no evidence that they liked turkey. If turkeys taste so wonderfully fantastic, why do we need a whole table full of dressings, cranberries, pies and all that to go with it?

CERTAINLY tht word turkey itself does not connote superior quality in anything. Webster says a turkey is "something that has a conspicuous lack of success."

Really, about the only thing which turkeys have accomplished throughout their entire existence has been the perpetuation of another species of bird — the turkey vulture.

Actually, the turkey is not all that bad.

Ben Franklin once wrote that he supported the turkey gobbler as America's national bird. He said that it was a "respectable fowl, not a plunderer and robber," as he considered the bald eagle to be. Of course, this same Bennie used to fly kites in thunderstorms.

Still, you can't find fault with a turkey's scientific name. Like, what's wrong with Meleagris Gallopavo? Why, there's nothing at all wrong with it. It's a very nice name, for a turkey.

BUT IF you call a turkey Meleagris Gallopavo, don't expect him to answer. It's a rare turkey that will answer to a simple "Hey, turkey!" let alone to something like Meleagris Gallopavo. They're just not that smart.

In fact, when you come right down to it, turkeys are not intellectually endowed at all. During a rainstorm, a turkey is likely to look up and open its mouth and even drown.

If the wings of a domestic turkey are not clipped, it will fly straight up until it gets too tired to fly and then fall straight down, rather swiftly.

So people, let's stop worshipping the turkey. Let's get the gobbler off of his pinnacle and back down to the level of the common chicken. Let's have jokes about turkeys crossing roads, and laying eggs, and all that.

After all, Thanksgiving only comes once a year.

First Hersey Rings To Be Here Feb. 14

The Hersey High School class ring of 1970 has been designed and will be ready for Valentines Day

On one side of the ring is a figure of a Husky with a '70, representing the class. An outline of the state of Illinois appears on the opposite side with symbols representing learning, science, athletics, the fine arts and writing.

IN THE MIDDLE is a brown sapphire ringed by a band with the words "John Hersey High School" on it.

One week after the Thanksgiving vacation, members of the Hersey Instrumental Assn., an organization of band parents sponsoring the sales, will be in the cafeteria to take orders.

The total price, payable when the ring arrives on Feb. 14 will be between $23 and $28.50, according to Roland Goins, principal.

So that all the rings will not be alike, they will be available in gold, silver and white gold.

Jostens, Inc. was chosen by the Principal's Advisory Committee and the Hersey Instrumental Assn. to supply the rings.

LIFE IN A WHITE-MEAT NEIGHBORHOOD

by the PROSPECT STAFF

Thanksgiving comes but once a year and when it does it brings good cheer — except from the turkey's point of view.

Assembled here for a panel discussion are Tom Turkey, Long Hair Turkey, Stiff-Neck Turkey and Mr. Pilgrim.

MODERATOR: How do you like turkey dinner?

Mr. Pilgrim: When we first arrived on this continent, there was nothing. Desolation, dreariness, sorrow, hunger and despair, solitude and weariness. But there always was the turkey. Our lives depended on the turkey! In short, I love turkey dinner! And the Indian — never forget the Indian. When first we saw the red man coming through the rye, we trembled, we shook, we were filled with fear. But the Indian has also become our friend. It is because of this day that we celebrate the memorable feast — Thanksgiving — with turkey dinner!

Long Hair: The Pilgrim and his turkey dinner is a disgraceful institution. We are being discriminated against. The last of the turkeys is dying out because of the tradition of Thanksgiving. We demand turkey rights! After all, we were among the first settlers of the United States. The rise of the turkey shall live forever!

Tom: I don't want to offend anyone; however, I think turkey dinners are acceptable as long as they are served with dressing. I think everybody should be clothed when they eat turkey. So there!

Long Hair: That's terrible! You're an anti-turkey rightser!

Tom: You're a nut.

MODERATOR: Tell me about the first Thanksgiving.

Long Hair: The first Thanksgiving was the first attack on the turkey. Ever since, despite the Emancipation Proclamation by our great orator, Abraham Turkey, the discrimination against turkeys has been a social problem.

Tom: I would like to say that Abe Turkey is a radical who was only interested in saving his own neck!

Long Hair: Just because you're afraid of the turkey. . .

Stiff-neck: But friends, it's tradition!

Mr. Pilgrim: Most of my friends prefer white meat; it's predominantly a white meat neighborhood.

Long Hair: That is an example of discrimination of white meat over dark meat! We won't tolerate this injustice. It will be influential in the turkey rebellion planned for Nov. 27. Charlie Brown would never stand for this!

MODERATOR: But why did the Pilgrims choose turkey?

Mr. Pilgrim: I'll tell you why! Did you ever hear of rhubarb with pickle dressing on Thanksgiving? Or cauliflower pie with marshmallow top?

Stiff-neck: But it's tradition.

Long Hair: Tradition-smadition! Why should we accept something just because our ancestors accepted it! Every turkey over 35 is a communist. Today's generation of turkeys will change the world!

Tom: We don't want to talk about my uncle Strekfus that way.

MODERATOR: Do you Thanksgiving people feel crowded out by Christmas?

Tom: I am against killing of Christmas trees for Christmas.

Long Hair: Christmas gets all the recognition. How many stores have Thanksgiving decorations? We demand equal rights!

Pilgrim: I just don't worry about trivial things like Thanksgiving and Christmas. I take them as they come.

Stiff-neck: Heavens no! Christmas is my favorite time of the whole year. After all, it's tradition.

MODERATOR: Do you turkeys have any kind of celebration on Thanksgiving Day?

Long Hair: Naturally. Every Turkey Day we go out and picket the city hall and sit in at Grant Park and strive for recognition.

Tom: I'd like to say we have religious services for the deceased.

Stiff-neck: Despite my fond belief in tradition, I HIDE!!

MODERATOR: Would you do anything to change Thanksgiving?

Tom: I would change the date. I would make it Nov. 34. That way it would never come around.

Long Hair: I'd abolish it all together.

Stiff-Neck: Nothing. It's traditional.

MODERATOR: Our time is almost up. Before we close, do any of you have any last comments you would like to add?

Stiff-neck: Let's hear it for tradition!

Long Hair: The Turkeys for Democratic Society will meet tonight in the park for T-Day protest. And let me tell all of you pilgrims, beware.

Tom: Aw you guys, Be nice — let's hear it for vegetables!

The Short Vacation — And How To See It Fly Away

by GARY SOSNIECK

To some, the arrival of the Thanksgiving weekend may seem like an abrupt interruption in a year that has moved by just too swiftly. To others, the holiday comes after weeks and weeks of anticipation.

Regardless of how area high school students greet the oncoming four-day holiday weekend, their intentions will probably be the same — to take advantage of the free time and have fun.

THE WEEKEND activities promise to be varied. Of course there will be the traditional church services and turkey dinner on Thursday, but from that point on, it's up to the individual.

Many will travel throughout the Midwest to visit relatives, while some of the more adventurous breed might take advantage of the hunting season. College-bound seniors will have an opportunity to visit their campuses-to-be in preparation for next September's giant step.

Those who stay in town should have no trouble keeping busy. On Friday, thousands of students will board the commuter trains and join the half-million Loop shoppers and movie-goers. The day after Thanksgiving is traditionally downtown Chicago's busiest shopping day of the year.

THE FOUR-DAY holiday will give some a chance to earn some extra money. The monetary resources put aside from summer work have dwindled, or in some cases completely disappeared, after three months of unemployment.

There's something for the homebodies, too. Grid fans will spend countless hours in front of television set watching the big games while snacking on pretzels and soft drinks.

The more conscientious high school student will have four days to get that research paper done. But parties should keep many a teen away from the books.

BUT PERHAPS the most cherished activity of the weekend will not be an activity at all. Sleep, a precious commodity during the school year, will occupy many a tired individual when the holiday excitement starts to die down.

The culmination of the Thanksgiving weekend, regardless of how it is spent, will come on Monday morning when the alarm clock rings. "Ohhh. . .where did the weekend go so fast?" will be the probable response, followed by a faint "How long to Christmas vacation?"

Three weeks to go.

Informal Study Hall Depends On Self-Discipline at Conant

"An exercise in self-discipline" is the tag given to Conant High School's senior study hall, which received its initial workout last week.

The study hall-lounge opened its doors to more than 400 students as a climax to more than a month of preparation.

IN RESPONSE to many complaints of seniors that they didn't have a lounge, preparation was begun to get them one. Plans were made and conferred upon with Conant Principal Marvin Plate. The plans were sent to English classes for the final vote of students. It was nearly unanimous in favor of the study hall and it was only a matter of a week before it was opened.

And now all that remains is to get some furniture. Food and coke machines have already been installed. The study hall will also be used to carry out senior business. A bulletin board to display announcements will be installed.

In contrast to last year's lounge, which was restricted to students with "B" averages, the study hall is open to all seniors.

"WE WANTED every senior to be eligible and the study hall to be a privilege because the individual is old enough and mature enough," said Sally Dietzler, one of the program's coordinators.

The senior study hall was organized by the Senior Steering Committee with little faculty assistance.

Briefing sessions held the day before the opening of the study hall informed each student of his obligations and rules of procedure. A student is given five minutes after the bell to sign up. Otherwise, he is considered absent. He may go to a regular study hall, the washroom, attendance, guidance or a conference on his pass; however he cannot enter restricted areas of the building, smoke or violate any other school rules.

An informal study atmosphere is the ultimate goal of the study hall. In such an atmosphere, students can help each other, listen to music or socialize.

There is no supervision for the study hall, however study hall monitors will be appointed.

"IT'S MORE a matter of self discipline, like in a college, without anyone standing over you," said Sally.

However, there remains the scepticism on the part of many people that the study hall will work.

"I believe it will," said Sally. "We are going by the philosophy that the minority will not ruin things for the majority, because we will just get rid of the minority."

Students who show themselves incapable of accepting this responsibility will be sent to the administration and the administration will decide who is ineligible.

ON THE other hand, "Its success depends on the kids," said Student Council Pres. Brian Campbell.

"It is the matter of control of such large groups that might destroy a good thing."

Although Plate feels there will most likely be a lowering of grade point averages and an increase in the number of failures, he has given the program his approval.

"We have a few wrinkles to iron out," said Sally, "and we will do that in the next few weeks."

His Memento 'Get Found,' Hersey Tours His School

by MIKE DRESSER

"Yale would like to be cut in some of this," author and Yale educator John Hersey said after his tour of Hersey High School.

Arriving here, Hersey was welcomed by the band, the Pomberets, members of the faculty and administration, Dist. 214 administrators and hundreds of Hersey students.

The dedication activities began with Hersey raising the first flag to go up the new flagpole.

HERSEY students got their first opportunity to meet Hersey and his wife at the reception held in the cafeteria immediately following the flag-raising.

Skip Peterson of the Varsity Club presented him with a varsity sweater. "I'm proud to have this on," Hersey told the audience of approximately 900. He wore it the rest of the afternoon.

Hersey sat on the edge of the stage as students flocked around him, asking him to autograph dedication booklets and copies of his books. He often paused to talk to students during the two hours he spent with them.

Dr. Edward Gilbert, superintendent of Dist. 214, was pleased with the reception given Hersey.

"IT JUST seemed to me like Hersey and the students met on a common ground," he said. "They had a real liking for each other."

The Herseys later toured the building with Principal Roland Goins.

Hersey, seeing an art exhibit with the words, "Get Lost," wrote his reply on it, "No, no, get found!"

At the end of the tour, Mrs. Hersey declared, "It's great! It must be a pleasure to go to school here."

The dedication ceremony began at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The choir sang the Illinois state song. Mike McLean, president of student council, said "Hersey High School is a ladder to education, not an education." He presented Mrs. Hersey with a pin made by John Monnet, saying, "We are indeed proud to be Hersey."

DR. FRANK J. Smith, president of the Dist. 214 Board of Education, thanked Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent. "It was Jack Martin who gave us the inspiration to name this school after Hersey."

Hersey expressed his confidence in the youth of America, "I would suggest . . . that we try to zero in on the honesty, the directness, the creative energy of our young people, their burning desire not simply to mouth words but to work and sacrifice and protest and then work again to achieve a more decent, more rational, more just, more humane, more peaceable world."

He explained his own concept of education through a quote from one of his students:

"Education is not just filling one's head with facts, getting right answers and learning to take tests; education means to learn how to think for oneself, to experience beauty for oneself and to choose one's own actions. This is in addition to developing skills for dealing with problems and learning ways in which to look at the world."

DIST. 214 then gave Hersey legal title to a brick taken from the construction site of HHS and given to him by one of his students. Hersey in return promised not to throw it out.

Goins, the last speaker, concluded, "The personality of John Hersey will be permanently impressed into the bricks and the mortar of this school."

Two Groups To Entertain Through Local Concerts

As groups of selective musical ability and talent, the Conettes and the Conaires of Conant High School provide entertainment for the school as well as the community.

Both groups, which are under the direction of Dr. Bershears, Conant's Choral director, are composed exclusively of members of Conant's Concert Choir.

This year, through extensive auditions, members were chosen for the two groups on the basis of individual performance, of which sight reading aspect was emphasized.

AS A RESULT of these auditions held in October, a group of nine female voices was chosen for the Conettes and a group of 12 mixed voices was selected for the Conaires.

Members of the Conaires are Debbie Alexa, Pattie Szymkowiak, Laurie Forman, Maureen Flemming, Debbie Jones, Kaleen Molbeck, Gail Helsper, Diane Herlugson and Bernadette Duez.

Sandi Schraffer, Norma Helsper, Cheris Marek, Don Kuk, Phil Bethke, John Powers, Mike Minkoff, Gary Wicklund and Marty Pribula will make up the Conettes.

Bershears anticipates a very successful year for the two groups.

The Conettes will make its debut Dec. 6 and 7 with the vocal performance in the Drama-Dance Show to be held at Conant.

The Conaires will then take the spotlight in the community to sing at the Sing-O-Rama in Hoffman Estates Jan. 19.

IN KEEPING with tradition, members of both the Conettes and the Conaires will enter the State Solo and Ensemble Contest March 15. In between these activities, the groups will entertain various civic organizations in the Hoffman-Schaumburg area. Did you ever listen to a man who talked about so many different things you couldn't help but be interested? Like from the Beatles' first concert to Mayor Daley's police action in Chicago during the convention to boxing matches to janitors. . .

Jack Mabley, provocative daily columnist of the Chicago American, talked to Forest View's co-operative work training (CWT) classes last week.

BEFORE HIS present job at the American, he was with the Daily News for 22 years. He left just after Marshall Field bought out the Daily News and has been writing a column for 13 years.

Mabley started his career as a reporter, but he wanted more. In order to get ahead, he was willing to work a little harder and a little extra.

He related this with working teens by saying, "A full life is a good life. The way I earned it was by being dependable." He went on to explain that dependability is important in the newspaper business as in most others.

SINCE MABLEY is an advocate of the good life, the full life, he chose not to speak all of the class time. He wanted to get students interested and involved, so he asked for questions.

The questions ranged from "How do you think of things to write everyday?" to "Did you ever get in trouble?" to "Why should I (an 18 year old) vote?"

He answered the first question by saying, "The hardest part of my job comes every New Year's Day when I have to sit down and think of 300 new ideas for my column. It takes about 23½ hours to think of what to write — and only a half an hour to actually put it down."

In regard to trouble, he said he had only one instance, when he had heard of a bribe to be paid to a boxer to take a fall. The man was to be paid $3,00. He fell during the match. Two other men heard of the payoff, witnessed it and admitted it to Mabley.

MABLEY TOLD the story in his column. The boxer who set up the bribe, a competitor for the heavyweight championship, threatened to sue. "But the case never even came to court, because he knew it was the truth."

Oting rights for 18-year-olds seemed to interest Mabley quite a bit. He said that if an 18-year-old man can go to war, or if a girl can go to work, or raise a family, or run a household, they should also be allowed to vote.

He also suggested a new kind of future for the government and for the youth movement: "When I went to high school, didn't even think of protesting, or even changing what we had."

He also suggested that students today know how to get what they want when they want it.

RECENTLY, WHILE Mabley was visiting a college there was a protest in progress in a coed sociology class. Five male students completely disrobed in front of the class. They wanted to capture the attention to demonstrate their unrest.

He added that he didn't feel their method of protest was the best, but it was effective.

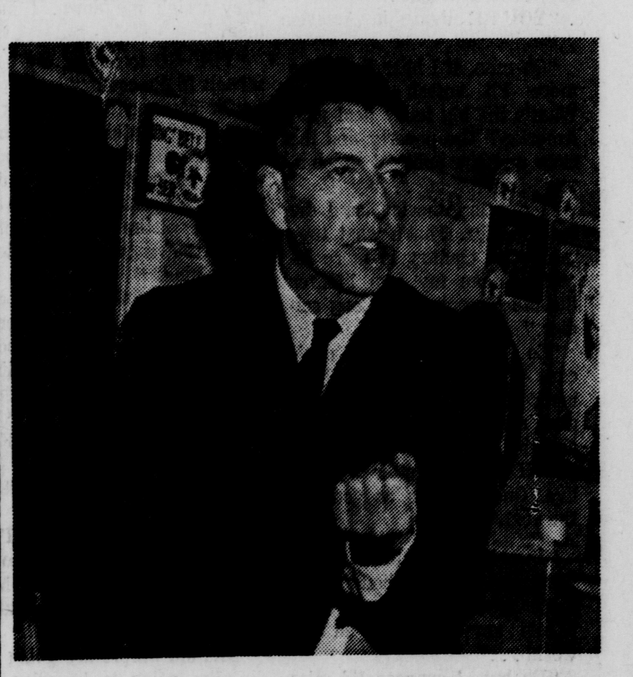
He related this story to a group of banking women one night last week in a speech. "When I told them, they laughed at it. They just didn't understand," he added.

This incident made him angry, but there was nothing he could do.

He continued to say that this is the reason why students today are protesting. They are striving for a revolution. Although he does not believe in revolution, he did say a change was necessary.

HE ASKED the classes if any of them ever read the newspaper. Many said no, because they were not interested in what it said and because they did not have the time.

Mabley asked a question that was as hard as the thought involved. When he asked what they would like to see more of, a sort of silence — stimulating silence — fell over the class.



"COLUMNS ARE NOT easy to write," Chicago American columnist Jack Mabley said last week as he spoke to Forest View High School's Co-operative Work Training classes. Responsibility was the main theme he stressed as he related many journalistic experiences.

His Memento 'Get Found,' Hersey Tours His School

by MIKE DRESSER

"Yale would like to be cut in some of this," author and Yale educator John Hersey said after his tour of Hersey High School.

Arriving here, Hersey was welcomed by the band, the Pomberets, members of the faculty and administration, Dist. 214 administrators and hundreds of Hersey students.

The dedication activities began with Hersey raising the first flag to go up the new flagpole.

HERSEY students got their first opportunity to meet Hersey and his wife at the reception held in the cafeteria immediately following the flag-raising.

Informal Study Hall Depends On Self-Discipline at Conant

"An exercise in self-discipline" is the tag given to Conant High School's senior study hall, which received its initial workout last week.

The study hall-lounge opened its doors to more than 400 students as a climax to more than a month of preparation.

IN RESPONSE to many complaints of seniors that they didn't have a lounge, preparation was begun to get them one. Plans were made and conferred upon with Conant Principal Marvin Plate. The plans were sent to English classes for the final vote of students. It was nearly unanimous in favor of the study hall and it was only a matter of a week before it was opened.

And now all that remains is to get some furniture. Food and coke machines have already been installed. The study hall will also be used to carry out senior business. A bulletin board to display announcements will be installed.

In contrast to last year's lounge, which was restricted to students with "B" averages, the study hall is open to all seniors.

"WE WANTED every senior to be eligible and the study hall to be a privilege because the individual is old enough and mature enough," said Sally Dietzler, one of the program's coordinators.

The senior study hall was organized by the Senior Steering Committee with little faculty assistance.

Briefing sessions held the day before the opening of the study hall informed each student of his obligations and rules of procedure. A student is given five minutes after the bell to sign up. Otherwise, he is considered absent. He may go to a regular study hall, the washroom, attendance, guidance or a conference on his pass; however he cannot enter restricted areas of the building, smoke or violate any other school rules.

An informal study atmosphere is the ultimate goal of the study hall. In such an atmosphere, students can help each other, listen to music or socialize.

There is no supervision for the study hall, however study hall monitors will be appointed.

"IT'S MORE a matter of self discipline, like in a college, without anyone standing over you," said Sally.

However, there remains the scepticism on the part of many people that the study hall will work.

"I believe it will," said Sally. "We are going by the philosophy that the minority will not ruin things for the majority, because we will just get rid of the minority."

Students who show themselves incapable of accepting this responsibility will be sent to the administration and the administration will decide who is ineligible.

ON THE other hand, "Its success depends on the kids," said Student Council Pres. Brian Campbell.

"It is the matter of control of such large groups that might destroy a good thing."

Although Plate feels there will most likely be a lowering of grade point averages and an increase in the number of failures, he has given the program his approval.

"We have a few wrinkles to iron out," said Sally, "and we will do that in the next few weeks."

The Seniors Are Fine — Because of Class Board

by MARY HUTCHINGS

"Seniors Fine '69" is the inscription on the spirit buttons worn by the 600 seniors at Prospect High School, and what's fine about the class is what's happening in its class board.

Senior class Pres. Jim Holt and faculty adviser David Lindemann share much of the responsibility for the senior activities program and upsurge of spirit.

AT THE BEGINNING of the year, the class faced a typical epidemic of senioritis, but now Lindemann believes the class is beginning to "jell."

Five committees have been formed to deal with important problems of the class and several all-class meetings have been held during the school day.

The class sponsored a party two weeks ago, distributed the senior buttons, obtained a bermuda day, formed a special section for football and basketball games, built its homecoming float (which Holt says should have won) and conducted two of its own pep assemblies recently.

HOLT SAYS, "We're hoping for more parties and bermuda days and are studying the problems of a senior study hall and senior exam exemptions for the second semester."

Work on these and other projects will be done mostly through four committees: senior privileges, senior spirit, senior gift and senior communications.

Holt, who believes strongly in committee work, says he wants "to get everyone involved."

The committees have thus incorporated many students who previously were not that interested in class board.

"It's unusual to have this many committees, but it shows the entire class is now becoming active in school affairs rather than letting a handful run the class," Lindemann says.

Marc Berliner, chairman of the privileges committee, is concerned with the possibility of the senior open study hall and senior exam exemptions.

"It's important to get some privileges because it makes kids proud to be seniors and makes them something special after three years of hard work," Holt says.

HE CONTINUES, "To get privileges, everyone must understand and obey the rules. It will take co-operation and planning to maintain these privileges."

Senior spirit committee is headed by Joan Ackerman and deals with spirit days, banners, pep rallies and other activities which it feels will bolster the spirit of the class. Although the senior gift committee has not yet met, it will decide the nature of the class gift.

The communications committee has met under the leadership of Jim Flynn and thus far chalked up a "first" among senior classes by issuing a senior news bulletin called "The Bird." It contains important announcements, messages from the president and notices of committee meetings.

ACCORDING to Holt, the bulletin "is helping to overcome problems of communication. It gives the seniors a voice."

The first issue defined its purpose as "1) inform seniors of everything happening, 2) serve as an instrument of communication for any and all seniors, 3) in any way possible improve the communications and unification of the senior class 4) serve as scratch paper."

Although Lindemann jokes that he "can't keep up with the number of committee meetings," he has high praise for Holt.

"JIM IS doing a real fine job and he ought to be complimented on his work," says the adviser.

But Holt is concerned with the class; he wants, typically, "The best senior class that's ever graduated."

HE SUPPORTS his belief in the class, citing, "Past history of the class — support of activities, its winning the spirit cup three years in a row, its outstanding support of athletic teams, its fine academic record as one of the smartest classes to come through Prospect — shows the interest of the seniors in their school."

The senior president enjoys his work, however.

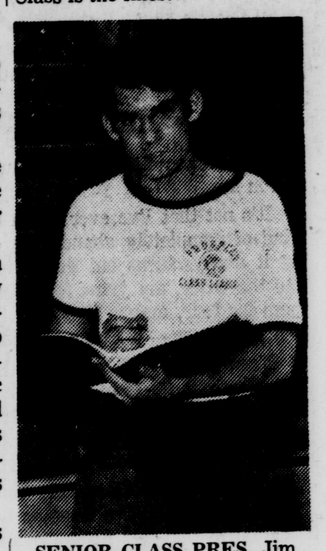
"I get a chance to do my part," he says. "I've had a lot of co-operation from the class officers — Becky Johns, Mary Bean and Holly Fischer — and from the kids and our adviser.

"Mr. Lindemann is a great adviser. He doesn't boss. He just gives a guiding hand that shows the way to organization. From him, I've learned something about leadership, diplomacy, tact, and how to overcome problems."

HOWEVER, leadership is not new to Holt. He has been on class board and student council for four years, and has served as chairman of four council committees.

This year, he is a senior physical education leader, but during his first two years at Prospect he was on the football and gymnastics teams. Holt also finds time in his busy schedule for a part-time job and sometimes for his favorite sport — hunting.

Most of his time goes to his class, it seems, and though he says, "It's a panic," he obviously feels very seriously about the senior class of Prospect High School. Pres. Jim Holt has given the word to the underclassmen at Prospect, "Our Class is the finest!"



SENIOR CLASS PRES. Jim Holt of Prospect High School is a leader in many phases of school life — including physical education. Along with his duties as president of one of the most active classes in the history of the school, Jim finds time for other interests, such as leading a sophomore boys' gym class as a senior leader.

With Fourth Place, Contest a Success

Prospect High School's speech team "had the most successful contest they have had in the past four or five seasons" last Saturday, said Karen Travis, head coach of individual speech events at Prospect.

The speech team placed fourth among 22 other school teams. Prospect's speakers won a total of 166 points, with 14 first places and 10 second places.

PROSPECT'S top speaker at the Wheaton North tournament was sophomore Melissa Greenwood, who won three first places in three rounds. She earned the gold medal for the best comedy reader of the contest.

Senior Bill Busse earned the gold medal as the best radio speaker, with two first places and a second place.

Both students now qualify for the New Trier Tournament of Champions.

SENIOR Brian Berlinger won two first places in radio speaking. Senior Lynn Hedke took two second places in oratorical declamation. Senior Donna Hutchings earned two seconds in comedy reading. Sophomore Jan Juergensen won second place in prose reading. Senior Nancy Limpinsel and junior Dawn McGuire each took second places in serious reading. Sophomore Barb Porter earned a first and second place with an original monologue. Junior Linda Williams won a first and two second places in oratorical declamation.

At the Veterans Day Debates at Thornton Township in Harvey, Prospect debater David Thomas, a freshman, received fifth place in affirmative speakers.

Four Cheerleaders Attend Pep Camp

Four Forest View High School varsity cheerleaders — Jackie Davis, Linda Ferguson, Bonnie Schnitta and Donna Suckow— attended the National Cheerleading Assn. camp held at Illinois State University in Normal last summer.

Each day they attended numerous lectures and workshops. Their instructors, members of the National Cheerleading Assn., assisted them in developing grace, poise and voice and taught them new jumps and cheers.

Many cheers included unique gestures.

IN THE EVENING, the 160 cheerleading squads attending this camp were divided into groups of 15 squads. During the week, each squad competed within the groups, which changed every day.

Awards, ranging from first place to honorable mention, were based on jumps, appearance, difficulty of the cheers, spirit, form, attitude and organization.

In these competitions, the girls took two firsts and two seconds. At the end of their stay, the four competed against all the schools, taking third place.

"The varsity cheerleaders spirit, pep and interest this year was proven when we were awarded the 'Spirit Stick' at camp. Each day this was given to a different school judged on spirit, sportsmanship, attitude, effort, organization and appearance," Bonnie said.

VFW Gives Awards To Two Athletes

Veterans of Foreign Wars awards were presented to two Forest View High School athletes last week by the Falcon Booster Club.

Senior Jim Daggett was awarded the VFW award as the most outstanding boy in football and junior Bob Bell received the award as most outstanding boy in cross country.

THE NIGHT began with a potluck dinner for the varsity athletes, their parents and cheerleaders. They were then joined by the junior varsity, sophomore and freshman teams and their parents for a short program in the gym.

The club's main goal this year is to increase the membership to purchase lights for the football field, according to James O'Donnell, Falcon Booster Club president.

After the coaches spoke, the athletes and their parents split up according to their sports and levels to receive their letters or numerals.

BELTING OUT THE sorrowful torch song, "My Man," in the Elk Grove High School's variety show on Nov. 22 and 23 was senior Linda Hudgins, accompanied by Nadine Curtis. The show was a sell-out both nights. (Staff Photo)

Whenever I hear an old Elvis Presley record, it takes me back to the time when I was an astute, outside observer of the teenage race.

The girls' main interests were bobby pins, bobby sox, Bobby's girl and who was Fred going to ask to go to the soda shoppe after school.

Those much-talked about males took pride in their hot rods, platters and cool chicks.

AND FOR some reason, everybody seemed to go steady. As soon as they had two dates, the class ring would go from his hand to her neck.

High school class structure being what it is, the captain of the cheerleaders was obligated to go steady with the captain of the football team. It was just too bad if they didn't like each other — they wouldn't disappoint their fans.

The "date" was an especially interesting feature. The boy would roar up to his girl friend's house in red car with the flames painted on the side and bound up the sidewalk.

HE WOULD be dressed in clean white socks, slightly baggy pants and a dashing flannel shirt. Of course, his crew cut would be waxed with perfection.

She would appear at the door with her five stiffly starched petticoats extending her dress about three or four feet on each side of her. A delicate string of pearls graces her neck and in her hand is her official Elvis Presley fan club plastic clutch bag. Since it is a special night, there is a touch of pink lipstick on htr smiling lips.

Arm in arm, they walk to the car, waving cheerily at apprehensive parents. Then they torque off to the hop.

AT THE HOP, they dance to the latest Ricky Nelson records (he's so dreamy). Dancing consisted then of holding hands and shuffling the feet a little.

The evening would progress and at the end, the boy would shyly ask the girl to the keen class formal. This is the reason why the girl had her hair in rollers all day. Her mission was accomplished.

I guess that only the particulars have changed. Teenagers are still basically the same.

MOVIE REVIEW

Sad when lovers are forced to part because of ideals or themselves. The audience gets out hndkerchiefs at another matinee of the musical "Funny Girl."

"Funny Girl," although it has been glorified and publicized, is little more than the old tear-jerker movie-goers are accustomed to.

When the film begins, the viewers think that it will another "rags to riches" story. The stage career of Fanny Brice is played down. It is more the history of a woman who knows the ways of the theater, but not how to turn love into a successful, comfortable marital situation.

FANNY BRICE (Barbra Streisand), upon finding herself a Ziegfeld girl and a star, becomes involved with and later marries gambler Nick Arnstein (Omar Shariff). Although they are in love, their marriage fails because Nick feels that his virility as a husband and father is jeopardized by Fanny's successful career. She makes futile attempts to hold their relationship together.

Some of the characterizations are not believable or life-like. Three scenes contain the stereotyped "Jewish mother," which is rather sickening. These and other characters are patterned and almost totally without depth. Upon occasion even Shariff is lost in pattern.

Despite its many faults, "Funny Girl" has merit as a sensitive romance. Something mystical happens between Streisand and Shariff.

The "love and marriage" routine is treated delicately. The human touch prevails. Such a movie is difficult to review. The audience is caught emotionally; flaws are forgotten.

I even cried, sentimental as I am.

MOVIE REVIEW

"The Two of Us" is the humane and heartwarming story of a 9-year-old boy and an old man facing wartime life in the French countryside during World War II.

The boy, a Jew, is sent by his parents to a friend's home in the country to escape danger of being captured and imprisoned and to be spared the upsets of the air raids.

It is there that he encounters the old man, who hates Jews and Bolsheviks, among other things. Between the boy and the old man grows a love of each other's company. Many happy times and funny experiences are depicted in the film as the years of the war go on.

THOUGH THERE is little plot to the story, the characters in "The Two of Us" are delightful. The old man, who loves his wine, his dog and voicing his opinions, is tough on the exterior, but the child brings out his soft-heartedness and gentleness.

The little boy's fear of the man gradually dissipates, and he looks to the gray-haired grandfather for assistance in a time of need, such as an affair of the heart, comfort in the crisis of having his head shaved by the schoolteacher and a ready playmate.

In the old man, the boy finds love as from a father and mother, and he in turn provides the youth and vitality the elder needed to bring sunshine back into his life.

The war ends and the youngster returns to his parents, the smiles fade and one feels that there will be an emptiness in both lives only to be filled with memories.

The train pulls out of the station with the cameras focusing alternately on the boy and the old man, and the viewer finds himself tearfully hoping they will be able to see each other again.

The well-photographed French film with English subtitles is a humorous and light experience. It is a film worth seeing.

by MARY HUTCHINGS

"Seniors Fine '69" is the inscription on the spirit buttons worn by the 600 seniors at Prospect High School, and what's fine about the class is what's happening in its class board.

Senior class Pres. Jim Holt and faculty adviser David Lindemann share much of the responsibility for the senior activities program and upsurge of spirit.

AT THE BEGINNING of the year, the class faced a typical epidemic of senioritis, but now Lindemann believes the class is beginning to "jell."

Five committees have been formed to deal with important problems of the class and several all-class meetings have been held during the school day.

The class sponsored a party two weeks ago, distributed the senior buttons, obtained a bermuda day, formed a special section for football and basketball games, built its homecoming float (which Holt says should have won) and conducted two of its own pep assemblies recently.

HOLT SAYS, "We're hoping for more parties and bermuda days and are studying the problems of a senior study hall and senior exam exemptions for the second semester."

Work on these and other projects will be done mostly through four committees: senior privileges, senior spirit, senior gift and senior communications.

Bench Slivers

by Chuck Willour

There's something about camping that brings out the barbarian in me.

It's not that I've ever taken to the woods with the thought in mind of completely abandoning civilization — no, never that — but it always turns out that way. It just seems that once I get into the wilds, my jeans feel more comfortable if I don't change them for four, maybe five days. My face too feels more at home — and warmer — if I let a generous growth of stubble sprout.

Food that a garbage disposal would heave back in my face is eaten with the relish of a man enjoying a feast after famine. Have you ever seen green scrambled eggs? Ever tried rabbit or squirrel that's been dropped in the fire three or four times? Oh well, they say charcoal is good for the digestive system.

Nightfall would usually find a group of us either sitting around the campfire downing beer, or trying to stomp out the campfire that had mysteriously spread into a brush fire and was seriously threatening to engulf our tent, or scavenging through the nearby woods for a tree that could be whittled down to replace our tent's center pole that someone threw into that same campfire as kindling.

Midnight inevitably found us at war. Someone always brought firecrackers, over-ripe tomatoes, and the like. So from midnight to dawn the air would be filled with missiles of various nature, and the cries of the wounded.

Pplott! The sound of a particularly plump tomato catching someone unaware. Phissst! Bang! The sound of a torpedo flying past your face and, as it gets past you, exploding. Aagghh! The yelp of some adventurous explorer who, clad only in his BVD's, discovering that just below our campsite was a huge clump of thistles.

The worst part came the next day, though, as someone would eventually come to the conclusion that fishing and hiking are more easily accomplished after a full night's sleep rather than a few fitful minutes before the sun gets too bright.

But the most inhumane, the most barbaric thing any of us ever undertook was the initiation of a novice camper. Taking the unsuspecting fellow hundreds of miles from civilization, we would drop him off in the wilds to fend for himself. Or, accompanying him, we would use our woodland knowledge to scare him into never wanting to come along again.

Like the time two of us took a third into the Rockies for two weeks of first-hand communication with nature. For two days and 1200 miles, we filled his ears with the talk of rampaging bears, affectionate rattle snakes and stampeding steers.

When we finally reached our destination, the novitiate's ears were so full of our own special brand of woodland lore that he wanted to stay in a motel rather than braving the wonderful, wooly outdoors.

But we convinced him not only that he should camp out — be brave, now — but that he should also guard the campsite while we hiked back down the road to a general store we had seen.

It took us about an hour to make the circuit to and from the store, and by the time we got back, the novice was nowhere to be found. But we did notice that the campfire, left unattended, had spread to the tent. No Ron, though (the third fellow's name).

We looked around the camp and, finding nothing, went to the car. There sat Ron in the back seat, windows rolled up and doors locked. Shivering.

"What in hell are you doing?" I shouted at him.

"Well, I heard some noises . . . " he began, but never finished.

"For crying out loud, you'd think there were bears or wolves around, all just waiting to get you," we cut him off.

So back to camp. Then, crawling inside the tent, my coconspirator and I started pulling out candy bars and snacks we had bought.

"You know, chocolate bars are dangerous things out here. We gotta be careful what we do with these wrappers," I said, throwa wrapper outside the tent.

Like a flash, Ron was up and out, "What're you doing! What're you doing?" he screamed, pouncing on the wrapper. "You would've had every bear in the state down on us."

"Yeh," chimed in my fellow plotter, throwing his wrapper out the front of the tent too.

"But you know, Ron," he added, "I'm not near as worried about bears as I am snakes. Cowboys used to say that rattlers would crawl up inside the sleeping bags with them, trying to warm up. You wake up in the morning, roll over, and Zapp! You've had it."

"Oh yeh?" Ron asked, quivering. "What'd they do about it?"

"Well, they used to put a rope around their sleeping bag. Then a snake would come along, feel the rope, and not cross over it. Now Charlie and I, we've got ropes," he said as he pulled two long sections of rope out of a bag, "but we didn't have enough for you."

"How about the clothesline?" Ron asked hopefully.

"Oh no you don't."

"Well . . . " And he went outside. A few minutes later we heard scraping noises, then bumping sounds. Finally Ron came back in — obviously relieved.

"What'd you do?" we asked. And looking out we saw — Ron had piled logs around the front of the tent about three feet high. Of course, logs being imperfect, there were places between them and the ground that even I could crawl through, but Ron was satisfied.

Eventually we crawled into our sleeping bags. "Did you guys hear that news report today? Some people were camping out in a kind of valley in the mountains and a thunder storm came up. Bango! Just like that and a flash flood got them."

"Yeh," my fellow plotter added, "and I've heard of people camping out on a range like this, a thunderstorm comes along, and they get trampled by stampeding cattle. Scared by the lightning, I guess."

"Speaking of lightning, if it ever starts to lightning around here, I'm getting out of this tent and fast. We're just about as high as anything else around here, and none of these trees have metal poles," I threw in, nervously eyeing our tent's metal center pole.

Then Ron spoke up. "Geez, my back's sore. I think I'll sleep in the car, if you guys don't mind."

"Oh no, Ron. Go ahead."

Then, as Ron started to gather up his sleeping bag, we just happened to say, "But if you're scared about sleeping here, that car's more dangerous than where you are right now."

"Oh yeh?"

And we were off again. For two of us anyway, the next few weeks were a lot of fun. I don't know about Ron, though — after he went to the car he was awakened in the middle of the night by a pair of amorous moose, and the memory of that big old bull chasing him across the field kind of ruined his vacation.

York to Visit Cards Tonight

by CHUCK WILLOUR

George Zigman is a man with a plan.

In his first year as varsity basketball coach at Arlington, Zigman figures he has to have a pretty comprehensive plan set up to revive Cardinal basketball fortunes — either that or face another season like last year when the Cards recorded an 8-15 mark.

So the affable mentor has devised a program of improvement to revitalize the Arlington cage program, starting with some of the fundamentals of the game and reaching into the coaching philosophy of his assistant coaches. The result, Zigman hopes will be parallel coaching methods at all levels.

AND, OF COURSE, the result of that is having a boy being able to move from one level of ball to the next without going from one coaching philosophy to another. Final result: better basketball.

"We're starting with a completely different approach than last year. Basically I guess you could say we're changing our methods in coaching offense, defense and even discipline," Zigman explained.

But as far as the Card coach is concerned, time is a little too short for all these changes to take effect. Tonight (Wednesday) the Cards open their 1968-69 cage campaign by hosting a tall, win-hungry squad from Elmhurst York at 8:15.

THE DUKES are coming off an outstanding season last year, but suffered a loss last week to Glenbard East, 69-52, in their season opener. For a team that's as used to winning as York, that loss spells nothing but trouble for Arlington.

The Dukes are paced by 6-4 center Tom Dolan and 6-3 forward Jim Milkert, the only two lettermen off last year's club. Filling out their lineup will be 6-3 Denny Pertle at the other forward, and 5-11 Bob Newman and 5-9 John Niemeyer at guards. Guard Jeff Dawson, an All-State candidate, transferred to Downers Grove North.

"We rebounded well against Glenbard," praised Duke coach Cecil Stinson, "which was quite a surprise, since we are an inexperienced team. I guess I have some good ballplayers. They're a determined bunch."

ABOUT THEIR abilities, he comments, "We're not too bad ball-handlers, out guards are adequate in that respect. And we're a fair shooting team. A man-to-man defense is our biggest weakness — we just can't seem to put pressure on the other team. They end up making us run their type of ballgame."

With his team, Arlington mentor Zigman faces a similar test.

"We're going to try to run when the occasion presents itself, but we're going to have to be careful that we play our own game and not the other team's," says Zigman.

AND EVEN more care must be taken when you consider that the Cards for 1968-69 will not be tall, will not have, as Zigman puts it, "any outstanding shooter," and do not have the experience that many teams will boast this season.

The nucleus of the Arlington squad will be returning lettermen Chris Buttenob at 6-3, Dean Schmelzer at 5-10, and Jim Baumgartner at 5-7. Buttenob was a center-forward last year, collecting 105 points and 82 rebounds, while Baumgartner was the team's leading point producer with 268 markers.

Schmelzer collected 137 points and 100 rebounds at a forward position.

ROUNDING out the expected starting five will be 6-3 Gary Anderson and 5-9 Ken Jorgensen. Both rate high in the coach's book, though neither has any real varsity experience.

Pushing this quintet will be another half dozen hopeful Cards. Dave Steele, Tim Shannon, Tom White and Al Feldman can all expect to see plenty of varsity action, while juniors Bill Heffermann and Jim Stipp have also both shown promise.

Pirates Open With Home Test

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Asked to rate Mid-Suburban League basketball on a pre-season basis, Palatine Coach Norm Jones replied, "First there is Wheeling. Then there are the rest of us."

But Jones is quick to make it clear, "Sure, Wheeling has to be the odds-on favorite. I mean, they have four starters back and three were All-Conference. How else can you rate them except as odds-on favorites?

"But the rest of the league is going to be tough, too. Fremd and Arlington should be respectable. Conant has that good jayvee team of last year to draw from. Don't forget Elk Grove and Forest View; they won't be that bad either. And Prospect didn't do bad against Evanston."

Well, how about your Palatine Pirates, Norm?

"THIS IS THE most experienced team to go into a season in the last four years here," he answered.

Good. But, Norm, how do you rate your team?

"Oh, we'll be in this thing. And, don't forget, we get Wheeling twice. Oh sure, we'll be in it."

Fine, but what's that wrinkle on your forehead, Norm?

"I've got plenty to worry about with Glenbrook North and Glenbrook South coming up this week," he thoughtfully replied.

Glenbrook North which visits Palatine at 8:00 tonight was beaten last week 72-67 by Highland Park. Though it goes down in the record books as a loss for Glenbrook North, the Pirates' opening opponent showed enough to cause concern by Jones.

"THEY (Glenbrook North) were down 40-23 at halftime," he said, "and then they went into their full-court press. They killed them (Highland Park) with it." Enough to cut a 17-point margin to five points.

"If we don't do something about that press," Jones said, "we're going to get killed."

To beat a press, a team must have speed, good passing and good ball-handling. Jones is hopeful that he can have the latter two. The first, speed, he knows he has.

The speed will be provided by guards Phil Donahue, who passes the ball on the hard floor as well as he did playing quarterback for the football team, and Scott Smith, a dandy ball player.

AT FORWARD Jones has Dave Hasbach and Jerry Hoffman starting and either Kurt Smith or Mike McNamara starting at center. Hoffman will be rotating from forward to center to forward constantly.

Jim Weyhenmeyer, who really does not own a sausage company, has impressed Jones in pre-season practice and is expected to see plenty of action at forward.

Other able-bodied performers are Bob Carr, "a real aggressive ball player," Ernie Purcelli, "a good shooter," Guy Zajonc, "really improved," Pat Doyle "up from the jayvees" and Mike Lamb, "a good backup center."

"We're going to run this year. We're going to run every time we get the chance," says Jones.

IT TAKES good conditioning to run, run, run every game but Jones does not have any worries about having his players being in shape.

"I let Phil (Donahue) lead us in sprints," Jones said. "When Phil gets tired, then we quit."

Usually, the other Pirate cagers are tired, or should it be exhausted, before Donahue gets winded. Donahue has run a 4:17 mile so he has the endurance to lead his team through a few more sprints than most hoopsters are accustomed to.

"We need to get one game behind us," Jones remarked. "I really don't know what we need to work on most until we get that one game.

''Say,'' Jones concluded, "why don't you come back next week? Then I can tell you a lot more about what we have."

Thanks, Norm, but after games with Glenbrook North and Glenbrook South, we'll probably already know.

Girard–Bruns, Aloha Roll On

Four Markers Separate 1-2

And the leaders roll on.

Girard-Bruns and Aloha-Duchess Beauty Salons held their front-running positions Saturday evening in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

When the final pin had been toppled at Elk Grove Bowl, four points still separated the first and second place teams in the gals' division.

Girard-Bruns took care of Morton Pontiac, 3-1, despite the absence of one of their leading performers, and Aloha-Duchess picked up three from Sims Bowl.

ALTHOUGH settling for a split for the evening, Doyle's-Striking Lanes, third place outfit, did post the high series with a 2803.

But the big news revolved around the victories by Girard-Bruns and Aloha-Duchess, and here's the way it came about:

Vi Douglas of Palatine who's the average leader in the league, gave Girard-Bruns a 575 series with a 216 windup, but Joan Christensen of Des Plaines was right behind at 572, opening at 206.

GIRARD-BRUNS flashed point-winning games of 895 and 936 and the 2671 team series also was worth a point.

Peggy Harris of Des Plaines who carried a 181 average prior to the competition, helped the league pace-setter with a 549 that included a 206.

Morton Pontiac took one point, firing a 918 in the second game as Jan Broderick of Arlington hit a 217 and "Moe" Miller of Barrington a 214. Jan's 539 was the team leader.

FINE BALANCE dictated as Aloha-Duchess swept to a 3-1 victory against Sims Bowl and kept pace with Girard-Bruns.

Lorrie Koch of Carpentersville and Jean Sicilian of Buffalo Grove were the leaders for Aloha with 562 and 558, respectively, and Lorrie had the 200-plus game with a 213, that keyed a 923 opening series.

Isobel Kosi of Des Plaines chipped in with a 549 series, finishing at 211 as Aloha picked up its second point.

SIMS BOWL had one big game — a 954 — but couldn't cash in for anything more. Lee Winski of Des Plaines sandwiched booming games of 227 and 234 around a 155, and, ironically, she had her 155 when Sims won their only point.

Gloria Lucchesi of Winnetka with a 548 and Marge Lindenberg of Des Plaines with a 546 (236 middle game) also turned in solid efforts for Sims.

The top scores of the night were featured in the battle between Doyle's-Striking Lanes and Lattof Chevrolet with the two clubs each picking up two points.

DOYLE'S HAD a 2803 team series that showed steady games of 928, 924, and 951, and Lu Schoenberger of Niles, a 177 average kegler, paved the way with a big 623. Lu closed at 235.

Also in the 550-plus class for Doyle's were Eunice Whitmore of Lake Forest at 574, Judy Croston of Chicago at 564, and Evelyn Elarde of Morton Grove at 555.

Lois Giemsoe of Northbrook showed some impressive bowling for Lattof with a 621 series, opening at 224 and 232.

DONNA REINHARDT of Rolling Meadows, who was third in the average list prior to the weekend action, continued her steady and impressive work with a 583 that featured a 212 opener, and Rose Kraft of Hoffman Estates fashioned a 582.

Lorene Woods of North Chicago also eclipsed 500 as she toppled the pins for a 537 count.

In other action Saturday Des Plaines Lanes picked up three points from Bank of Elk Grove, rebounding from a loss in the opening game.

Winnie Lohse of Palatine rocketed to a 215 in her third game to finish at 581 for Des Plaines, and Delores Harris of Wheeling showed a 573. Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein with a 538 and Lu Lass of Wheeling with a 500 also hit that 500 class.

Dona Jean Reynolds of Northbrook finished with a 209 game and 571 series for the

Bench Slivers

by Chuck Willour

There's something about camping that brings out the barbarian in me.

It's not that I've ever taken to the woods with the thought in mind of completely abandoning civilization — no, never that — but it always turns out that way. It just seems that once I get into the wilds, my jeans feel more comfortable if I don't change them for four, maybe five days. My face too feels more at home — and warmer — if I let a generous growth of stubble sprout.

Food that a garbage disposal would heave back in my face is eaten with the relish of a man enjoying a feast after famine. Have you ever seen green scrambled eggs? Ever tried rabbit or squirrel that's been dropped in the fire three or four times? Oh well, they say charcoal is good for the digestive system.

Nightfall would usually find a group of us either sitting around the campfire downing beer, or trying to stomp out the campfire that had mysteriously spread into a brush fire and was seriously threatening to engulf our tent, or scavenging through the nearby woods for a tree that could be whittled down to replace our tent's center pole that someone threw into that same campfire as kindling.

Midnight inevitably found us at war. Someone always brought firecrackers, over-ripe tomatoes, and the like. So from midnight to dawn the air would be filled with missiles of various nature, and the cries of the wounded.

Pplott! The sound of a particularly plump tomato catching someone unaware. Phissst! Bang! The sound of a torpedo flying past your face and, as it gets past you, exploding. Aagghh! The yelp of some adventurous explorer who, clad only in his BVD's, discovering that just below our campsite was a huge clump of thistles.

The worst part came the next day, though, as someone would eventually come to the conclusion that fishing and hiking are more easily accomplished after a full night's sleep rather than a few fitful minutes before the sun gets too bright.

But the most inhumane, the most barbaric thing any of us ever undertook was the initiation of a novice camper. Taking the unsuspecting fellow hundreds of miles from civilization, we would drop him off in the wilds to fend for himself. Or, accompanying him, we would use our woodland knowledge to scare him into never wanting to come along again.

Like the time two of us took a third into the Rockies for two weeks of first-hand communication with nature. For two days and 1200 miles, we filled his ears with the talk of rampaging bears, affectionate rattle snakes and stampeding steers.

When we finally reached our destination, the novitiate's ears were so full of our own special brand of woodland lore that he wanted to stay in a motel rather than braving the wonderful, wooly outdoors.

But we convinced him not only that he should camp out — be brave, now — but that he should also guard the campsite while we hiked back down the road to a general store we had seen.

It took us about an hour to make the circuit to and from the store, and by the time we got back, the novice was nowhere to be found. But we did notice that the campfire, left unattended, had spread to the tent. No Ron, though (the third fellow's name).

We looked around the camp and, finding nothing, went to the car. There sat Ron in the back seat, windows rolled up and doors locked. Shivering.

"What in hell are you doing?" I shouted at him.

"Well, I heard some noises . . . " he began, but never finished.

"For crying out loud, you'd think there were bears or wolves around, all just waiting to get you," we cut him off.

So back to camp. Then, crawling inside the tent, my coconspirator and I started pulling out candy bars and snacks we had bought.

"You know, chocolate bars are dangerous things out here. We gotta be careful what we do with these wrappers," I said, throwa wrapper outside the tent.

Like a flash, Ron was up and out, "What're you doing! What're you doing?" he screamed, pouncing on the wrapper. "You would've had every bear in the state down on us."

"Yeh," chimed in my fellow plotter, throwing his wrapper out the front of the tent too.

"But you know, Ron," he added, "I'm not near as worried about bears as I am snakes. Cowboys used to say that rattlers would crawl up inside the sleeping bags with them, trying to warm up. You wake up in the morning, roll over, and Zapp! You've had it."

"Oh yeh?" Ron asked, quivering. "What'd they do about it?"

"Well, they used to put a rope around their sleeping bag. Then a snake would come along, feel the rope, and not cross over it. Now Charlie and I, we've got ropes," he said as he pulled two long sections of rope out of a bag, "but we didn't have enough for you."

"How about the clothesline?" Ron asked hopefully.

"Oh no you don't."

"Well . . . " And he went outside. A few minutes later we heard scraping noises, then bumping sounds. Finally Ron came back in — obviously relieved.

"What'd you do?" we asked. And looking out we saw — Ron had piled logs around the front of the tent about three feet high. Of course, logs being imperfect, there were places between them and the ground that even I could crawl through, but Ron was satisfied.

Eventually we crawled into our sleeping bags. "Did you guys hear that news report today? Some people were camping out in a kind of valley in the mountains and a thunder storm came up. Bango! Just like that and a flash flood got them."

"Yeh," my fellow plotter added, "and I've heard of people camping out on a range like this, a thunderstorm comes along, and they get trampled by stampeding cattle. Scared by the lightning, I guess."

"Speaking of lightning, if it ever starts to lightning around here, I'm getting out of this tent and fast. We're just about as high as anything else around here, and none of these trees have metal poles," I threw in, nervously eyeing our tent's metal center pole.

Then Ron spoke up. "Geez, my back's sore. I think I'll sleep in the car, if you guys don't mind."

"Oh no, Ron. Go ahead."

Then, as Ron started to gather up his sleeping bag, we just happened to say, "But if you're scared about sleeping here, that car's more dangerous than where you are right now."

"Oh yeh?"

And we were off again. For two of us anyway, the next few weeks were a lot of fun. I don't know about Ron, though — after he went to the car he was awakened in the middle of the night by a pair of amorous moose, and the memory of that big old bull chasing him across the field kind of ruined his vacation.

St. Paul's defeated Village Pump 59-57 and Krause & Kehe defeated Gazelles 64-37 in Arlington Heights Park District Classic Basketball League action last week.

Krause & Kehe has 2-0 record; Village Pump, Gazelles and St. Paul's are 1-1 and City Products and Sandburg are 0-1.

Fremd Opens Gym Season

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Not unlike many other gymnastic coaches in the Mid-Suburban League, Fremd mentor Len Witter is seeking depth for his 1968-69 squad which begins its season today (Wednesday).

"No one is going to be able to get away with one or two boys in each event this year," he says.

The reasoning is the change in scoring for high school gymnastics this year. The high schools in Illinois will follow the college scoring methods. In each event the scores will be awarded for the team by adding the scores of the three participants from the school in that particular event. If the school does not have three participants in that event, the team only receives credit for those in the event.

ON THE HIGH school level this year, free floor exercise has replaced tumbling on the varsity level. On the frosh-soph level, tumbling will still be an event.

Witter is hoping that Scott Falkenthal makes the change-over from tumbling to free floor exercise successfully.

Witter has seven lettermen from last year's squad, including Falkenthal, which won seven and lost nine and finished fifth in the conference.

Witter has no letterman specialist returning on the parallel bars but is counting on Bill Doggett to perform well in this event.

Other hopefuls are Bill Osbourne (trampoline), Bill Perkins and Steve Thorne (side horse), Tom Stinson and Rick Keller (all around) and Terry Baldocchi (rings).

"In our first few meets," said Witter, "we're going to use basic routines. We're going to try for good execution more than anything else."

Rating the Mid-Suburban League conference, Witter said, "Arlington (the defending state champion) has to be the pre-season favorite. Prospect should be real good, too."

As for his own team, Witter remarked, "It's hard to say. Our problem is depth. I'm hopeful, though, that we'll have a good season."

Fremd opens its season tonight against Glenbrook North in the Fremd High gym at 4:30 p.m.

Defending Champs

Knights' Mat Outlook Good

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Wrestling success at Prospect High this year may just be a matter of time.

Although Coach Dave Ziemek can boast of six returning grapplers on his squad, time will be needed to build the team into the power that the Knights were last year when they claimed the Mid-Suburban League crown.

This is so for two reasons: one, of course, is that time will be needed to let the new varsity team members gain experience; but extra time must also be taken to allow those six returnees to adjust to their new weights — all six moved in weight classification.

"IT TAKES A boy a while to adjust to a new weight," explains Coach Ziemek, "to regain the strength he may have lost in moving up or down."

But even though it may take a few weeks for the Knights to reach their potential, they still will be a power in the conference and the area. The six returnees were among the best last year — this year they should do even better.

Kenny Kline leads the list of lettering Knights. A 95-pounder last year, Kline will wrestle at 103 this season. But this shouldn't effect his performance since the added weight has been taken up by adding inches to his frame.

OTHERS MOVING in weight are Randy Cordova at 120 from 112, Chuck Haynes up to 133, Bruce Busse to 138, Sandy Quillen at 154, and Jim Novack down from heavyweight to 180.

"That move shouldn't bother Novack too much," says Ziemek. "Hh should be one of the stronger 180-pounders around, considering he competed very well at heavyweight for us last year.

Filling out the Knight roster will be frosh John Layer at 95, Les Berde at 112, Joe Baker at 127, Tom Collin at 145, Rick Soduski at 165, and Jim Carroll at heavy weight. Most of these youngsters competed last year on the Prospect Jayvee squad.

"The potential is there to do well," feels the coach, "but it's a matter of all things progressing. If we can get started off right, we should do alright."

THE SQUAD should be a fairly tough tournament team, feels Ziemek. With his three toughest boys at 103, 165 and 180, the team is a threat in any tourney.

But the coach isn't too optimistic. "It's real hard to say how we'll do this year because we haven't seen anybody else, and we don't know just where the kids on other teams will be wrestling.

"It will be balanced conference this year. Arlington, ourselves, Conant and Palatine will all be in contention. I think we'll stand a good chance, though.

It's just a matter of time.

Elmwood Park Matmen Whip Hersey in Opener

Jim Battaglia, Tom Anderson and Tom Campbell were the only Hersey grapplers having any success against Elmwood Park as the Huskies opened their first wrestling season by succumbing to the Tigers 37-10 at home last Friday.

Battaglia, a 120 pounder, pinned his foe early in the second round while Anderson forged a strong 11-2 decision in the 165-pound fray. Campbell battled to a tie in his 103-pound faceoff, 4-4.

Hersey helmsman Tom Porter was not overly disturbed by the Tiger clawing. His senior-less squad absorbed only four pins in their very first encounter and battled well in all dozen contests.

The Huskie matmen are idle now until Dec. 6 when they open their cage slate by hosting Glenbard North.

FV Wrestlers Open Tonight

by PAUL LOGAN

Following four years as an assistant wrestling coach, Dave Theesfeld will officially assume the chief coaching duties when he sends his youngsters against Willowbrook, there, today (Wednesday) at 7 p.m.

Theesfeld, who never wrestled in high school, lettered all four years at Illinois State University. His senior year he won the conference title in the heavyweight division. His team also won the league crown while he was there.

Last year the Falcons, under former Coach Hal Henson, finished third in the conference. Theesfeld is hopeful for a similar wind up although the team won't have the punch in the upper weights that Spence Dreischarf and Bob Savage furnished last year.

But the Falcon mentor added this: "We hope to be a little stronger in the lighter weights this year."

Although this will be the opener for the Falcons it will be the second match for Willowbrook. Last weekend the Warriors beat Libertyville.

Cards vs. York

hopes to bring up some sophomores off his Jayvee and sophomore teams to see what they can offer to his varsity squad.

"There's just not enough time to do everything I would like to do," feels Zigman. "But I know we'll be improving as the year goes by.

"WE'RE BUILDING for the future right now. I expect in another year or two we'll have Arlington right up there again, respectable. Right now we don't have the height I would like to have, but we hope to make up for that with a tough multiple defense.

"Like I said, we'll probably run, too. But it will be a control type of running game. We're not going to just throw the ball around the court — when the break's there, we'll take it. Otherwise, we'll play control ball."

And as far as scoring is concerned, the coach isn't real worried that his team's lack of height will be a problem. "As far as I'm concerned," he explains, "the key to this game is moving the ball. You move it around well enough and fast enough and you'll break open any defense. Plus, we feel our defense will be an integral part of our offense too — giving us a lot of points."

As far as the opener with York is concerned, Zigman again is not that concerned. Right now he's working on developing his charges into a winning ballclub.

For George Zigman is a man with a plan.

Morton Trims Striking, 4-3

Langlo's Gains on Leader; Des Plaines Registers 3092

Remember when Striking Lanes owned a comfortable edge in the Paddock Classic Traveling League?

It doesn't seem too long ago, does it?

They still own the advantage but it's not what you'd call comfortable any more.

With Langlo's Refinishing continuing its red-hot pace, Striking's once imposing lead now has been trimmed to two points in the Classic.

LANGLO'S TOOK its hot streak to Hoffman Lanes last Saturday evening and walked off with seven more points. Striking had to settle for only three and the race for first half honors took on a new look.

Langlo's and hot-shooting Des Plaines Bowl enjoyed the most profit Saturday, each collecting seven points, but it was the former's victory that made the news.

Exceptional team balance showed as Langlo's fired a 2806 team series, rather modest but still enough, in sweeping the seven points.

THEY DIDN'T win by much — for the second straight week — but they still won and that's all they care about.

John Seidel paved the way with a 586, hitting a 211 high, but here wasn't much to choose between any of the five bowlers Saturday.

Jack Rainey of Hoffman Estates used a big 216 en route to a 578, and Ted Geiersbach, league president from Hoffman Estates, chipped in with a 557 after opening at 206.

WALLY LOFTHOUSE of Chicago hit 550 and Ron Lab of Justice a 535 to complete the Langlo's sweep which showed games of 940, 934, and 932.

Buick in Evanston, holding down the bottom rung, was the victim in Langlo's surge, but Ray Olson of Arlington had a 587 to take series honors in the match. Ray's big game was a 211, topped his team only by Warren Walter's closing 213.

Striking Lanes can feel a little sad because they had two bigger games than Langlo's, a better team series, but they still could pick up only three points for the night against Morton Pontiac.

ALLEN BROWN of Chicago blasted the pins for a 613 count to take team honors for Striking, Randy Aubert of Prospect Heights had a 582, and Dick Kamin of Schiller Park a 572, but that wasn't enough.

Morton picked up four points thanks to 953 and 962 games. Bill Smith paved the way with a 606, hitting a 224 second game, and Bob Bennett of Wheeling contributed a 584, closing at 219.

Des Plaines Bowl joined Langlo's in the seven points department for the night with a league high of 3092, and games of 984-1027-1081.

FOR A CLUB 16 points out of first place, Des Plaines Bowl showed some of the fanciest team bowling ever seen at Hoffman Lanes.

Ernie Koche of Hoffman Estates took honors with a 664, opening at 198 and then rattling the pins for a 235-231 finish.

Don Christensen of Arlington, the fifth top average bowler in the PCTL, showing a steady increase in pins from 198 to 213 to 217.

NOT TO BE outdone, teammate Bill Harris of Wheeling also joined the 600 club with a 622 that sported an eye-popping 245 windup.

ERNIE KOCHE

Also contributing to Des Plaines' big night was a 591 by John Miller of Arlington (204 high) and 587 by Ray Neumann (203 high).

Joe Simonis, who's carrying the third best Classic average, tried his best but couldn't carry Maitre d' to a victory. Simonis opened at 230, then hit a 199, before closing at 227 for his season high of 656.

Elk Grove V & S Hardware picked up five points against Gaare Oil, with only 44 pins separating the five men.

GORDON RICHARDS of Rolling Meadows was the leader with a 595, boasting games of 200 and 224, and Robert Veloria of Chicago hit 583. Veloria sandwiched games of 203 and 213 around a 167.

John Koenig of Elk Grove finished at 578 with a 203 opener, and Rich Sypel of Elk Grove closed at 224 for a 575.

Palatine Wrestlers Open With Triumph

An hour before the 1968-69 Palatine wrestling team faced Libertyville, Pirate Coach Bob Riehm said, "I think that we should have a real good season.

"We have good depth," he added, "especially in the lower weights. We also have plenty of competition among our own boys and this is a healthy situation."

The Pirate wrestling team took over the Palatine gym an hour later and defeated Libertyville 27-20.

Kevin Lonergan, a freshman who beat out letterman Steve Silkworth for the 95-pound position on the squad, pinned John Delaney of Libertyville in one minute and 45 seconds. Silkworth had an 8-4-1 record last year. "Lonergan is inexperienced," said Riehm, "but he should be a good one for us. It was a real surprise that he beat out Silkworth."

Pirate 112-pounder Jerry Reget decisioned Bob Tobey to reverse a Tobey win over Reget last year. Kevin Higgins, who has dropped to 133 pounds, also reversed a 1967 decision by defeated Doug Schofield 2-0.

In the 120-pound division, Palatine's Rich Munch decisioned Mike Hardyns and Pirate Steve Ashby, All-Conference last year, pinned Tom Lentz in 3:41.

Other Palatine victories were turned in by Ron McAlister who decisioned Craig Bernard 5-3 and Greg Bauer decisioned Tom Stone 2-0. McAlister competed at 154 pounds and Bauer at 180.

Tom Fillippini lost by fall to Bob Tobe in 4:45 but Fillippini had an 8-1-1 record in junior varsity action last year and should improve.

A slight disappointment was Ed Dolik, All-Conference at Fremd last year, as he lost to Neil Calanca 2-0.

In other action, John Thomas lost by fall to Dave Stoppel in 5:24 though Thomas was ahead 5-1 at the time. Bruce Eberle of Palatine lost by fall to Vernon Blue in 5:33 in the heavyweight division.

Palatine's second-line strength is fairly solid with Silkworth in the 95-pound division, letterman Don Speer at 112, Gary Norton at 120, Ray Boe at 127, Bob Hall at 133, Glenn Hughes at 138, Bob Peterson and Herb Milke at 145 behind Mike Lonergan who tied Libertyville's Randy Helfer 2-2, Jim Walsch at 154, Bob Pills and Jim Pratt at 165 and Rob McKee and Mark Thompson at 180.

"With less than two weeks of practice," Riehm said, "our boys were not as sharp or as in as good of condition as we hope to be in in a couple of weeks."

In junior varsity competition, Libertyville won 33-21. Palatine took the sophomore level meet 38-12 and the frosh level 38-20.

Falcon Gymnasts' Ambition: Better Last Year's Record

by PAUL LOGAN

"Our goal is to better last year's record."

With that Forest View Head Coach Gay Hughes sends his gymnasts up against Willowbrook tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. on the Warriors' apparatus.

"We lost to Willowbrook by seven last year," said the Falcon mentor, "but we hope to take them this time."

The Falcons finished fourth in the Mid-Suburban League and overall with an 8-5 mark.

"We have a good chance to have a real fine season. We have good potential, it just depends on how they come along in the next few months," Hughes said.

Twenty boys are out this year, according to Hughes, and in each event the team is five and six men deep.

Four returning lettermen are back to give the Falcons a strong nucleus on which to build. They are John Connolly, sidehorse; Jim Daggett, tumbling and free floor exercise; Mike Seitz, trampoline and tumbling; and Ray Slaninka, high bar, still rings, and possibly an all-around man.

The Falcons are so well balanced in each event that it was hard for Hughes to single out starters in all positions.

"The three top positions are wide open depending on today and tomorrow," said Hughes last Monday. "After this meet the positions will be determined on a competitive basis by meet and by challenge."

The top boys as of Monday are as follows along with those who are pressing them for the top spots:

Trampoline — Seitz, Mike Conte, Harry Watson, Doug Abel or Bill Nolan;

Side Horse — Connelly, Tony Messina, Bob Berlund or Warren McElwain;

Horizontal Bar — Jeff Brown, Berlund, Slaninka, Bill Muraswki or Norm Olsen;

Parrallel Bar — Berlund, Olsen, Brown, Bruce Kratkey, Mike Sullivan or Slaninka; and

Free Exercise — Olsen, Berlund, Daggett or Seitz.

Hughes explained the new event — free floor exercise — like this:

"Basically it is done on a 40 by 40 square foot area. We (all Illinois schools) will compete in what we call a strip free exercise on a tumbling mat 60 by 5 feet in size. It will be about 50 to 60 per cent tumbling and the other part strength and flexibility moves."

Hughes added that Illinois was the last state to change from regular tumbling to the olympic style event. The change over should help state preps to be on a par with the other states who already have this event.

Fremd Opens Gym Season

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Not unlike many other gymnastic coaches in the Mid-Suburban League, Fremd mentor Len Witter is seeking depth for his 1968-69 squad which begins its season today (Wednesday).

"No one is going to be able to get away with one or two boys in each event this year," he says.

The reasoning is the change in scoring for high school gymnastics this year. The high schools in Illinois will follow the college scoring methods. In each event the scores will be awarded for the team by adding the scores of the three participants from the school in that particular event. If the school does not have three participants in that event, the team only receives credit for those in the event.

ON THE HIGH school level this year, free floor exercise has replaced tumbling on the varsity level. On the frosh-soph level, tumbling will still be an event.

Witter is hoping that Scott Falkenthal makes the change-over from tumbling to free floor exercise successfully.

Witter has seven lettermen from last year's squad, including Falkenthal, which won seven and lost nine and finished fifth in the conference.

Witter has no letterman specialist returning on the parallel bars but is counting on Bill Doggett to perform well in this event.

Other hopefuls are Bill Osbourne (trampoline), Bill Perkins and Steve Thorne (side horse), Tom Stinson and Rick Keller (all around) and Terry Baldocchi (rings).

"In our first few meets," said Witter, "we're going to use basic routines. We're going to try for good execution more than anything else."

Rating the Mid-Suburban League conference, Witter said, "Arlington (the defending state champion) has to be the pre-season favorite. Prospect should be real good, too."

As for his own team, Witter remarked, "It's hard to say. Our problem is depth. I'm hopeful, though, that we'll have a good season."

Fremd opens its season tonight against Glenbrook North in the Fremd High gym at 4:30 p.m.

Knights' Mat Outlook Good

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Wrestling success at Prospect High this year may just be a matter of time.

Although Coach Dave Ziemek can boast of six returning grapplers on his squad, time will be needed to build the team into the power that the Knights were last year when they claimed the Mid-Suburban League crown.

This is so for two reasons: one, of course, is that time will be needed to let the new varsity team members gain experience; but extra time must also be taken to allow those six returnees to adjust to their new weights — all six moved in weight classification.

"IT TAKES A boy a while to adjust to a new weight," explains Coach Ziemek, "to regain the strength he may have lost in moving up or down."

But even though it may take a few weeks for the Knights to reach their potential, they still will be a power in the conference and the area. The six returnees were among the best last year — this year they should do even better.

Kenny Kline leads the list of lettering Knights. A 95-pounder last year, Kline will wrestle at 103 this season. But this shouldn't effect his performance since the added weight has been taken up by adding inches to his frame.

OTHERS MOVING in weight are Randy Cordova at 120 from 112, Chuck Haynes up to 133, Bruce Busse to 138, Sandy Quillen at 154, and Jim Novack down from heavyweight to 180.

"That move shouldn't bother Novack too much," says Ziemek. "Hh should be one of the stronger 180-pounders around, considering he competed very well at heavyweight for us last year.

Filling out the Knight roster will be frosh John Layer at 95, Les Berde at 112, Joe Baker at 127, Tom Collin at 145, Rick Soduski at 165, and Jim Carroll at heavy weight. Most of these youngsters competed last year on the Prospect Jayvee squad.

"The potential is there to do well," feels the coach, "but it's a matter of all things progressing. If we can get started off right, we should do alright."

THE SQUAD should be a fairly tough tournament team, feels Ziemek. With his three toughest boys at 103, 165 and 180, the team is a threat in any tourney.

But the coach isn't too optimistic. "It's real hard to say how we'll do this year because we haven't seen anybody else, and we don't know just where the kids on other teams will be wrestling.

"It will be balanced conference this year. Arlington, ourselves, Conant and Palatine will all be in contention. I think we'll stand a good chance, though.

It's just a matter of time.

Elmwood Park Matmen Whip Hersey in Opener

Jim Battaglia, Tom Anderson and Tom Campbell were the only Hersey grapplers having any success against Elmwood Park as the Huskies opened their first wrestling season by succumbing to the Tigers 37-10 at home last Friday.

Battaglia, a 120 pounder, pinned his foe early in the second round while Anderson forged a strong 11-2 decision in the 165-pound fray. Campbell battled to a tie in his 103-pound faceoff, 4-4.

Hersey helmsman Tom Porter was not overly disturbed by the Tiger clawing. His senior-less squad absorbed only four pins in their very first encounter and battled well in all dozen contests.

The Huskie matmen are idle now until Dec. 6 when they open their cage slate by hosting Glenbard North.

by PAUL LOGAN

Following four years as an assistant wrestling coach, Dave Theesfeld will officially assume the chief coaching duties when he sends his youngsters against Willowbrook, there, today (Wednesday) at 7 p.m.

Theesfeld, who never wrestled in high school, lettered all four years at Illinois State University. His senior year he won the conference title in the heavyweight division. His team also won the league crown while he was there.

Last year the Falcons, under former Coach Hal Henson, finished third in the conference. Theesfeld is hopeful for a similar wind up although the team won't have the punch in the upper weights that Spence Dreischarf and Bob Savage furnished last year.

But the Falcon mentor added this: "We hope to be a little stronger in the lighter weights this year."

Although this will be the opener for the Falcons it will be the second match for Willowbrook. Last weekend the Warriors beat Libertyville.

hopes to bring up some sophomores off his Jayvee and sophomore teams to see what they can offer to his varsity squad.

"There's just not enough time to do everything I would like to do," feels Zigman. "But I know we'll be improving as the year goes by.

"WE'RE BUILDING for the future right now. I expect in another year or two we'll have Arlington right up there again, respectable. Right now we don't have the height I would like to have, but we hope to make up for that with a tough multiple defense.

"Like I said, we'll probably run, too. But it will be a control type of running game. We're not going to just throw the ball around the court — when the break's there, we'll take it. Otherwise, we'll play control ball."

And as far as scoring is concerned, the coach isn't real worried that his team's lack of height will be a problem. "As far as I'm concerned," he explains, "the key to this game is moving the ball. You move it around well enough and fast enough and you'll break open any defense. Plus, we feel our defense will be an integral part of our offense too — giving us a lot of points."

As far as the opener with York is concerned, Zigman again is not that concerned. Right now he's working on developing his charges into a winning ballclub.

For George Zigman is a man with a plan.

Langlo's Gains on Leader; Des Plaines Registers 3092

Remember when Striking Lanes owned a comfortable edge in the Paddock Classic Traveling League?

It doesn't seem too long ago, does it?

They still own the advantage but it's not what you'd call comfortable any more.

With Langlo's Refinishing continuing its red-hot pace, Striking's once imposing lead now has been trimmed to two points in the Classic.

LANGLO'S TOOK its hot streak to Hoffman Lanes last Saturday evening and walked off with seven more points. Striking had to settle for only three and the race for first half honors took on a new look.

Langlo's and hot-shooting Des Plaines Bowl enjoyed the most profit Saturday, each collecting seven points, but it was the former's victory that made the news.

Exceptional team balance showed as Langlo's fired a 2806 team series, rather modest but still enough, in sweeping the seven points.

THEY DIDN'T win by much — for the second straight week — but they still won and that's all they care about.

John Seidel paved the way with a 586, hitting a 211 high, but here wasn't much to choose between any of the five bowlers Saturday.

Jack Rainey of Hoffman Estates used a big 216 en route to a 578, and Ted Geiersbach, league president from Hoffman Estates, chipped in with a 557 after opening at 206.

WALLY LOFTHOUSE of Chicago hit 550 and Ron Lab of Justice a 535 to complete the Langlo's sweep which showed games of 940, 934, and 932.

Buick in Evanston, holding down the bottom rung, was the victim in Langlo's surge, but Ray Olson of Arlington had a 587 to take series honors in the match. Ray's big game was a 211, topped his team only by Warren Walter's closing 213.

Striking Lanes can feel a little sad because they had two bigger games than Langlo's, a better team series, but they still could pick up only three points for the night against Morton Pontiac.

ALLEN BROWN of Chicago blasted the pins for a 613 count to take team honors for Striking, Randy Aubert of Prospect Heights had a 582, and Dick Kamin of Schiller Park a 572, but that wasn't enough.

Morton picked up four points thanks to 953 and 962 games. Bill Smith paved the way with a 606, hitting a 224 second game, and Bob Bennett of Wheeling contributed a 584, closing at 219.

Des Plaines Bowl joined Langlo's in the seven points department for the night with a league high of 3092, and games of 984-1027-1081.

FOR A CLUB 16 points out of first place, Des Plaines Bowl showed some of the fanciest team bowling ever seen at Hoffman Lanes.

Ernie Koche of Hoffman Estates took honors with a 664, opening at 198 and then rattling the pins for a 235-231 finish.

Don Christensen of Arlington, the fifth top average bowler in the PCTL, showing a steady increase in pins from 198 to 213 to 217.

NOT TO BE outdone, teammate Bill Harris of Wheeling also joined the 600 club with a 622 that sported an eye-popping 245 windup.

ERNIE KOCHE

Also contributing to Des Plaines' big night was a 591 by John Miller of Arlington (204 high) and 587 by Ray Neumann (203 high).

Joe Simonis, who's carrying the third best Classic average, tried his best but couldn't carry Maitre d' to a victory. Simonis opened at 230, then hit a 199, before closing at 227 for his season high of 656.

Elk Grove V & S Hardware picked up five points against Gaare Oil, with only 44 pins separating the five men.

GORDON RICHARDS of Rolling Meadows was the leader with a 595, boasting games of 200 and 224, and Robert Veloria of Chicago hit 583. Veloria sandwiched games of 203 and 213 around a 167.

John Koenig of Elk Grove finished at 578 with a 203 opener, and Rich Sypel of Elk Grove closed at 224 for a 575.

Palatine Wrestlers Open With Triumph

An hour before the 1968-69 Palatine wrestling team faced Libertyville, Pirate Coach Bob Riehm said, "I think that we should have a real good season.

"We have good depth," he added, "especially in the lower weights. We also have plenty of competition among our own boys and this is a healthy situation."

The Pirate wrestling team took over the Palatine gym an hour later and defeated Libertyville 27-20.

Kevin Lonergan, a freshman who beat out letterman Steve Silkworth for the 95-pound position on the squad, pinned John Delaney of Libertyville in one minute and 45 seconds. Silkworth had an 8-4-1 record last year. "Lonergan is inexperienced," said Riehm, "but he should be a good one for us. It was a real surprise that he beat out Silkworth."

Pirate 112-pounder Jerry Reget decisioned Bob Tobey to reverse a Tobey win over Reget last year. Kevin Higgins, who has dropped to 133 pounds, also reversed a 1967 decision by defeated Doug Schofield 2-0.

In the 120-pound division, Palatine's Rich Munch decisioned Mike Hardyns and Pirate Steve Ashby, All-Conference last year, pinned Tom Lentz in 3:41.

Other Palatine victories were turned in by Ron McAlister who decisioned Craig Bernard 5-3 and Greg Bauer decisioned Tom Stone 2-0. McAlister competed at 154 pounds and Bauer at 180.

Tom Fillippini lost by fall to Bob Tobe in 4:45 but Fillippini had an 8-1-1 record in junior varsity action last year and should improve.

A slight disappointment was Ed Dolik, All-Conference at Fremd last year, as he lost to Neil Calanca 2-0.

In other action, John Thomas lost by fall to Dave Stoppel in 5:24 though Thomas was ahead 5-1 at the time. Bruce Eberle of Palatine lost by fall to Vernon Blue in 5:33 in the heavyweight division.

Palatine's second-line strength is fairly solid with Silkworth in the 95-pound division, letterman Don Speer at 112, Gary Norton at 120, Ray Boe at 127, Bob Hall at 133, Glenn Hughes at 138, Bob Peterson and Herb Milke at 145 behind Mike Lonergan who tied Libertyville's Randy Helfer 2-2, Jim Walsch at 154, Bob Pills and Jim Pratt at 165 and Rob McKee and Mark Thompson at 180.

"With less than two weeks of practice," Riehm said, "our boys were not as sharp or as in as good of condition as we hope to be in in a couple of weeks."

In junior varsity competition, Libertyville won 33-21. Palatine took the sophomore level meet 38-12 and the frosh level 38-20.

Falcon Gymnasts' Ambition: Better Last Year's Record

by PAUL LOGAN

"Our goal is to better last year's record."

With that Forest View Head Coach Gay Hughes sends his gymnasts up against Willowbrook tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. on the Warriors' apparatus.

"We lost to Willowbrook by seven last year," said the Falcon mentor, "but we hope to take them this time."

The Falcons finished fourth in the Mid-Suburban League and overall with an 8-5 mark.

"We have a good chance to have a real fine season. We have good potential, it just depends on how they come along in the next few months," Hughes said.

Twenty boys are out this year, according to Hughes, and in each event the team is five and six men deep.

Four returning lettermen are back to give the Falcons a strong nucleus on which to build. They are John Connolly, sidehorse; Jim Daggett, tumbling and free floor exercise; Mike Seitz, trampoline and tumbling; and Ray Slaninka, high bar, still rings, and possibly an all-around man.

The Falcons are so well balanced in each event that it was hard for Hughes to single out starters in all positions.

"The three top positions are wide open depending on today and tomorrow," said Hughes last Monday. "After this meet the positions will be determined on a competitive basis by meet and by challenge."

The top boys as of Monday are as follows along with those who are pressing them for the top spots:

Trampoline — Seitz, Mike Conte, Harry Watson, Doug Abel or Bill Nolan;

Side Horse — Connelly, Tony Messina, Bob Berlund or Warren McElwain;

Horizontal Bar — Jeff Brown, Berlund, Slaninka, Bill Muraswki or Norm Olsen;

Parrallel Bar — Berlund, Olsen, Brown, Bruce Kratkey, Mike Sullivan or Slaninka; and

Free Exercise — Olsen, Berlund, Daggett or Seitz.

Hughes explained the new event — free floor exercise — like this:

"Basically it is done on a 40 by 40 square foot area. We (all Illinois schools) will compete in what we call a strip free exercise on a tumbling mat 60 by 5 feet in size. It will be about 50 to 60 per cent tumbling and the other part strength and flexibility moves."

Hughes added that Illinois was the last state to change from regular tumbling to the olympic style event. The change over should help state preps to be on a par with the other states who already have this event.

Forest View, Conant in Basketball Openers

Falcons Host Warriors Tonight

by PAUL LOGAN

Forest View's basketball team will be out to gain back some lost prestige starting tonight (Wednesday) when it entertains Maine West at approximately 8:15.

Last year's record was the worst Head Coach Ken Arneson has had since coming to Forest View. The Falcons had a 5-9 Mid-Suburban League mark, which was good for sixth place, and a 7-14 slate overall. For the previous five years Arneson-coached-teams had never finished below third.

This year should be a different story, however.

"I'm satisfied with the progress we've been making. We're much farther ahead this year than last at this time," the Falcon mentor pointed out.

ONE REASON for being farther ahead at this point in the season is a greater amount of speed.

"Overall our speed is much, much better," said Arneson.

And this new quickness will give the Falcons an almost totally new look.

"Last year we were more or less a ball control team. We just could press effectively at half court. I think we can press full court because we're more versatile.

"We have much more experience. I think we should be improved in most of the areas including ball handling. We're also better defensively because of more speed. And we have the outside shooting ability for a change," Arneson explained.

SCHEDULED TO pop away from long range tonight will be returning letterman guard Steve Brown (6-0) and Mike Kinneman (5-9). Brown finished first with an 11 point average and second in total points on the team with 189.

Starting on the front line will be center Doug Dahle (6-4) and forwards Kevin Grismer (6-1) and Dave Long (6-2). Both Dahle and Grismer are lettermen with Dahle also being a regular last year.

Dahle finished strong toward the end of the season for a 9.1 average and 160 points. He was the second leading rebounder for Forest View and should lead the way this year utilizing his powerful, 215-pound frame under the boards.

THE STOCKY Falcon pivot man will receive a tough board assignment right away as two of the three rebounders for the Warriors are 6-6. Center George Horn is a senior letterman who weighs in at 225.

Flanking him will be senior Rick Kameyer, who matches him in height only, and Mark Worth, 6-2 senior.

Rounding out the lineup will be letterman Kim Freeman, 5-7 senior, and Randy Breusher, 6-1 senior, at the playmaking spots.

HEAD COACH Gaston Freeman's charges also had a tough time of it last year finishing tied for fifth in the Central Suburban League with a 4-8 mark and 8-15 for the year.

The Warriors' mentor indicated that his boys were very anxious to improve upon last year's efforts but, even though they have tall boys to start the fast break, they plan to play conservatively.

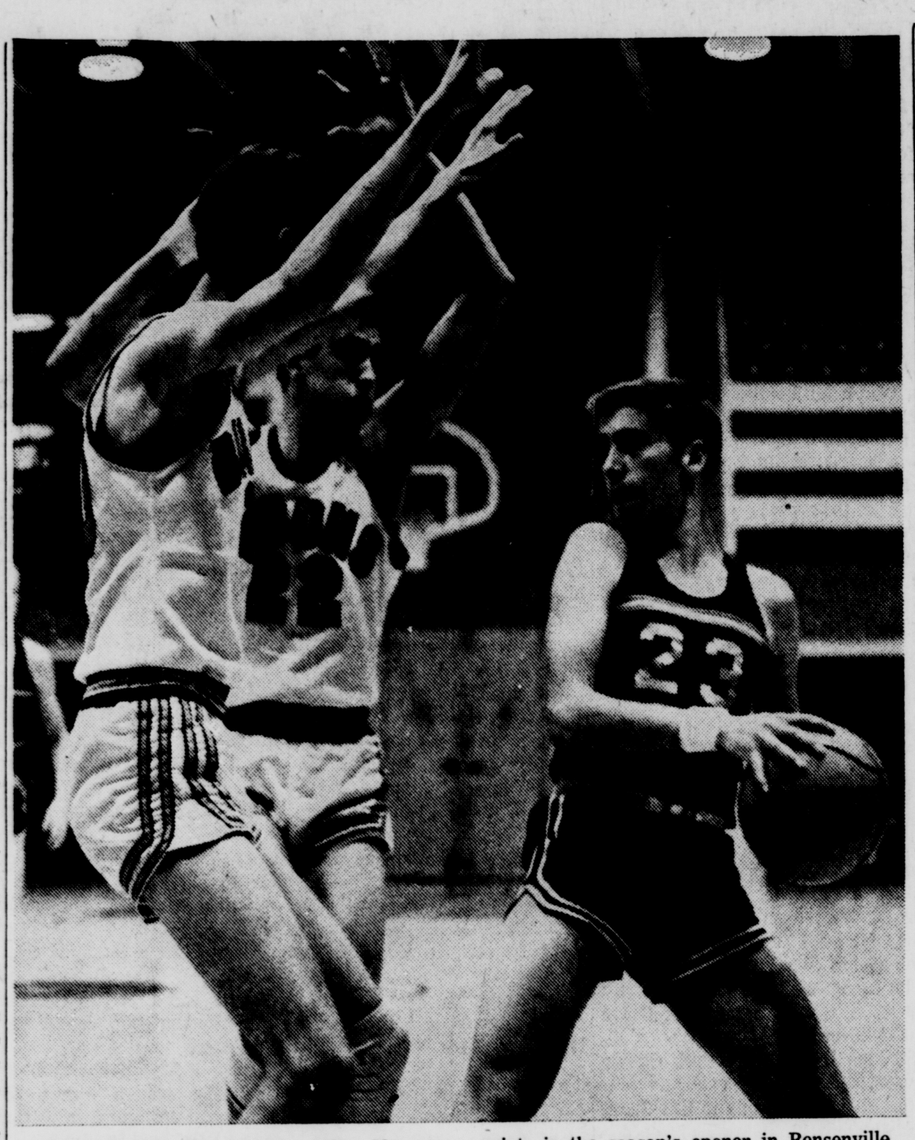
"We'll run if we have the chance but we're mainly a ball control type team," Freeman explained.

Waiting on the sideline to aid the Falcon starters are eight capable varsity players. They are: letterman Keith Bauer (6-2), Rich Olsen (6-0), John Calvello (5-7), Frank Russo (6-0), Keith Philips (6-3), and Greg Shevell (6-3).

TWO OTHER replacements who have been injured are John Caltagirone and Mike Shewski. Caltagirone (5-7) has been hobbled by a bad ankle sustained in football and Shewski (6-0) just had a cast removed from a healed broken wrist.

"I'd like to play as many kids as I can to see if I can find a first five. I've got a little more depth this year and so I have the opportunity to try more things," Arneson said happily.

The Falcon head man had one last thought about the Maine West encounter: "If we play well no matter what the score is, we should have a pretty good season."



SURROUNDED BY trouble, Mike Norman looks desperately for help. Bruce Kassel (22) and Chuck Zempel (20) did a lot of defensive hounding and limited Fremd's Vikings to 42 points in the season's opener in Bensenville. Fenton, led by Kassel's 23, scored 54 points and chalked up an important first victory. (Staff photo)

Cougars Hopeful Despite Little Varsity Experience

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Chic Anderson, the head basketball coach at Conant High School, and Jim Bragiel, who now sells insurance, were former rivals downstate years ago.

Anderson coached at Wyoming High School and Bragiel at Kewanee Wethersfield before he moved on to Northwestern University as freshman coach.

In the possession of Bragiel now is an envelope. Inside the envelope are Bragiel's predictions for Conant's 1968-69 basketball season. Anderson will be allowed to read the predictions after the season is over.

"Jim is an old friend of mine," said Anderson, "I hope he didn't peg us for too many losses."

THOUGH ONLY having one letterman coming back from last year's 10-12 team, Anderson is quite optimistic about this season's contingent. "We have quite a few boys off that junior varsity team," he says. That junior varsity team turned in an 18-3 record last year.

Forward Frank Altmaier is the only letter winner who will be around this year. Altmaier averaged 2.2 points per game during the 1967-68 season in which he saw limited action. He will see much more action this year including tonight's game.

Joining Altmaier in the starting lineup will be 6-4 center Dave Christiansen who averaged 11.3 points per game on the jayvee team and he also led the team in rebounds. The other forward will be Brant Barton who averaged 17 points per gamt on the sophomore team.

THE GUARD positions will be handled by Kenneth (Junior) Boltz (8.9 points per game on the JV's) and Jim Fortman (7.9 points per game on the JV's).

Anderson has two able backup forwards in Jim Button (16.6 points per game on the JV's) and Mike Bair (11.1 points per game on the JV's). "They're two good ball players, but they still have a lot of football in them." Needless to say, Button and Bair played on the Cougar basketball team.

Bench strength is expected to come from Bob Freck, Walt Rodie and Kirk Wyatt and backboard help should be provided by 6-4 transfer from Addison Trail Chick Moran.

SPEAKING OF height, Conant just may need all it can get on the floor tonight. Fentop's front line stands 6-6, 6-4 and 6-3 with names of Chuck Zempel, Bruce Kassel and Vic Sage.

"They (Fenton) are big," said Anderson. "And they must be good. If they can beat Fremd by 12 points they must be good." Fenton downed Fremd 54-42 Friday night.

"This year we should have a better defense. Anyway, I'm hoping we'll have a better defense.

"Last year we played a zone and I hated every minute of it. I had to use the zone because we weren't fast enough to use the man-to-man. This year we've got more speed."

At Fenton

CONANT		FENTON
6-4 Christiansen	C	Zempel	6-6
6-0 Altmaier	F	Kassel	6-4
6-1 Barton	F	Sage	6-3
6-0 Boltz	G	Geils	5-11
6-0 Fortman	G	Gross	5-10

And what, Coach, is the difference between the man-to-man and the zone?

"It is much harder to drive on a zone," said Anderson, "but you don't get to much pressure on the ball. In the zone you have to defense the man after he has the ball.

"BUT IN THE man-to-man, you can defense the man before he has the ball. You can go after the ball and you can put pressure on the ball.

"My feeling is that you can get occasional easy baskets against the man-to-man but you give up less baskets over-all with the man-to-man than with the zone.

"But every coach must fit his boys into the defense which would help them most. Last year we had to use the zone. This year we can use the man-to-man."

Anderson is optimistic about the up-coming season because, "We have good shooters and I think we'll be improved on defense."

Anderson is hoping that his shooters and improved defense will be good enough to prove Jim Bragiel wrong in any of his Conant loss predictions.

Battle Addison Trail

Grove Cagers Face Another Big Center

by PAUL LOGAN

Goliath No. 2 will be waiting for the Elk Grove Grenadiers when they travel to Addison Trail tonight (Wednesday) for an 8:15 contest.

The Grove disposed of New Trier West's beanstalk — Tom Mustoe — last Saturday but the Cowboys still managed to win, 63-49. The Grenadiers are hopeful that tonight they can stop another tall obstacle — Al Harmsen — and also the Blazer team.

They have been successful the last two years against Addison with the most recent triumph being a 66-49 romp. In that game the 6-7, 200 pound post man wasn't very effective because he spent much of the last half on the bench with four fouls.

HARMSEN HAS a year's experience under his belt now and so the Grove front liners will have to do just as good a job on him as they did on Mustoe plus improvement in other areas if they are going to win.

Both of tonight's opposing coaches praised the Grenadiers handling of Mustoe.

"I thought Elk Grove did a heck of a job on him," said Coach Frank Hulka, who viewed the weekend Grove opener. He pointed out that their sag proved real effective against the tall Cowboy and added, "We feel a lot of teams will try to stop Harmsen so the rest of our boys will have to be sharp.'

HEAD COACH Bob Rees was very happy with his boys' play against Mustoe, especially Bob Bachus and Eugene Pinder who had the job of stopping him. Mustoe made just 13 points but got his share of rebounds — 24.

However, Rees pointed up two reasons why the Grove lost the game which "we could have won."

"We didn't shoot very well — 29 per cent — and I think we're a better shooting team than that.

"Secondly, we made some defensive errors in the first half and New Trier really took advantage of them. When we made any mistakes they turned them into points," he pointed out.

On the plus side, he had this to say:

"SOME OF our juniors proved that they could play in varsity competition. John Flesh was the leading rebounder with 10 and the second leading scorer with 11. He's one of the juniors who had proved himself and did."

Because of his clutch showing, Flesch will get the starting nod from Rees for the Addison game along with regulars Bachus, Pinder, Jim Devitt, and Frank Schultz.

Going for the Blazers besides Harmsen are three other starters from last year — forwards John O'Neill (6-3) and Rich Simerson (6-0) and guard Bob Thonn (5-8). At the other playmaking spot will be Bob Landrum (5-10).

LAST SEASON was Hulka's second and the Blazers showed improvement. They were 4-17 then compared to an 0-21 record in their first campaign.

With four starters returning, Hulka is very optimistic. However, he has a lot of respect for the Grenadiers since he has never beaten them.

In this opener for the Blazers, Hulka plans to "take the fast break if the opportunity is there but mainly trying to set up plays to get the percentage shot." Or, as Hulka said laughingly, "Get the ball in to Harmsen."

At Addison

ELK GROVE		ADDISON TR.
6-2 Pinder	F	O'Neill	6-3
6-0 J. Flesch	F	Simerson	6-0
6-3 Bachus	C	Harmsen	6-3
5-10 Devitt	G	Thonn	5-8
5-10 Schultz	G	Landrum	5-10

TIME: Jayvee game to begin at 6:45 p.m.; varsity to begin at approximately 8:15.

PLACE: Addison Trail High School, Army Trail and Lombard Rds., Addison.

COACHES: Elk Grove, Bob Rees; Addison Trail, Frank Hulka.

Grove Matmen Defeated

Elk Grove's wrestlers went down to defeat in their opener against Glenbrook South last Saturday, 26-12.

The Grenadiers found the Titans' mats not to their liking as they could only manage four victories to the Titans eight, including a forfeit in the heavyweight class.

Jerry Ancona won the 95 pound division by decisioning Benke 10-0. The Grove also won the second weight — 103 — when Tom Mann beat Geller 13-3.

However, the Grenadiers dropped the next four before taking the 138 class behind Jim Pankow. He whipped Cobb 5-2. Again, the Grove made it two in a row when Jeff Froysland edged out Hall 6-3 in the 145 division. But that was the last victory for the Grenadiers and their new coach, Norm Lovelace.

The Grove will have its first home meet tonight (Wednesday) when Addison Trail comes to town for a 7:30 engagement. Then on Saturday the Grenadiers will journey to Fenton for a 2 p.m. meet.

On the jayvee level the Grove dropped a meet to Hersey, 33-18, last Friday and lost again on Saturday to Glenbrook South, 33-20.

Hawks Big, Inexperienced

Knights Face Maine South, 6-6 Butz in Action Tonight

Two down, two to go.

In an action-packed basketball week that has Prospect facing four of the toughest cage units in the suburban area in an eight day span, two games have been played and two remain.

And it's just possible that the toughest of the four games faces the Knights tonight (Wednesday), when Coach Don Arseneau's charges are pitted against Maine South at the Hawk home court. Game time is approximately 8 p.m.

The Knights bring a 1-1 mark into the tilt, boasting a win Saturday night over Libertyville after falling Friday to defending state champion Evanston. The Hawks took their only game thus far this season, by a 89-53 margin over Ridgewood.

Bernie Brady's Hawks are a rough, tall, but inexperienced unit. Only one letterman returned from last year's Central Suburban League championship squad, but considering that he is 6-6 Dave Butz, all-state tackle for two years running, the Hawks won't be hurting that much.

Butz will fill the center position, while the forwards will be 6-5 Greg Schmelzer and 6-4 Bob Nettinga. Ralph Remus at 6-3 and Glenn Hofeldt at 6-1 will be Brady's backcourt men. All but Schmelzer are seniors.

Nettinga, Remus and Hofeldt were all members of last year's Hawk JayVee outfit that recorded a perfect mark on the season. So again the Hawks won't be hurting that much.

Also exected to see action are 6-4 forward Glenn Schirmer and 5-11 Tom Seifried

"It's a little bit early to say how good we are," Brady commented on his charges. "We're big, of course, but as for the mechanics of the game we'll just have to see how well the fellows jell. We should be able to tell after this weekend, though.

"The best aspect of our game right now," he continued, "is our strength on the boards. And we're not bad shooters, either — we hit over 50 per cent against Ridgewood. Potentially we could be very good, but, like I said, it's a bit too early to tell."

As for the Knights . . . well, they're a fast learning team. In their opener against Evanston, the Prospect cagers were outplayed badly for most of the game, but by Saturday showed that they had the equipment to play a tough game.

Probable starters for Arseneau will be Scotty Crawford and Dave Somers at guards, Bruce Timko and Ron Dolejs at forwards, and Rob Bachhuber at center. The Knights will be giving away about two incher per man at each position.

"Last year we played a zone and I hated every minute of it. I had to use the zone because we weren't fast enough to use the man-to-man. This year we've got more speed."

At Fenton

CONANT		FENTON
6-4 Christiansen	C	Zempel	6-6
6-0 Altmaier	F	Kassel	6-4
6-1 Barton	F	Sage	6-3
6-0 Boltz	G	Geils	5-11
6-0 Fortman	G	Gross	5-10

And what, Coach, is the difference between the man-to-man and the zone?

"It is much harder to drive on a zone," said Anderson, "but you don't get to much pressure on the ball. In the zone you have to defense the man after he has the ball.

"BUT IN THE man-to-man, you can defense the man before he has the ball. You can go after the ball and you can put pressure on the ball.

"My feeling is that you can get occasional easy baskets against the man-to-man but you give up less baskets over-all with the man-to-man than with the zone.

"But every coach must fit his boys into the defense which would help them most. Last year we had to use the zone. This year we can use the man-to-man."

Anderson is optimistic about the up-coming season because, "We have good shooters and I think we'll be improved on defense."

Anderson is hoping that his shooters and improved defense will be good enough to prove Jim Bragiel wrong in any of his Conant loss predictions.

Battle Addison Trail

Grove Cagers Face Another Big Center

by PAUL LOGAN

Goliath No. 2 will be waiting for the Elk Grove Grenadiers when they travel to Addison Trail tonight (Wednesday) for an 8:15 contest.

The Grove disposed of New Trier West's beanstalk — Tom Mustoe — last Saturday but the Cowboys still managed to win, 63-49. The Grenadiers are hopeful that tonight they can stop another tall obstacle — Al Harmsen — and also the Blazer team.

They have been successful the last two years against Addison with the most recent triumph being a 66-49 romp. In that game the 6-7, 200 pound post man wasn't very effective because he spent much of the last half on the bench with four fouls.

HARMSEN HAS a year's experience under his belt now and so the Grove front liners will have to do just as good a job on him as they did on Mustoe plus improvement in other areas if they are going to win.

Both of tonight's opposing coaches praised the Grenadiers handling of Mustoe.

"I thought Elk Grove did a heck of a job on him," said Coach Frank Hulka, who viewed the weekend Grove opener. He pointed out that their sag proved real effective against the tall Cowboy and added, "We feel a lot of teams will try to stop Harmsen so the rest of our boys will have to be sharp.'

HEAD COACH Bob Rees was very happy with his boys' play against Mustoe, especially Bob Bachus and Eugene Pinder who had the job of stopping him. Mustoe made just 13 points but got his share of rebounds — 24.

However, Rees pointed up two reasons why the Grove lost the game which "we could have won."

"We didn't shoot very well — 29 per cent — and I think we're a better shooting team than that.

"Secondly, we made some defensive errors in the first half and New Trier really took advantage of them. When we made any mistakes they turned them into points," he pointed out.

On the plus side, he had this to say:

"SOME OF our juniors proved that they could play in varsity competition. John Flesh was the leading rebounder with 10 and the second leading scorer with 11. He's one of the juniors who had proved himself and did."

Because of his clutch showing, Flesch will get the starting nod from Rees for the Addison game along with regulars Bachus, Pinder, Jim Devitt, and Frank Schultz.

Going for the Blazers besides Harmsen are three other starters from last year — forwards John O'Neill (6-3) and Rich Simerson (6-0) and guard Bob Thonn (5-8). At the other playmaking spot will be Bob Landrum (5-10).

LAST SEASON was Hulka's second and the Blazers showed improvement. They were 4-17 then compared to an 0-21 record in their first campaign.

With four starters returning, Hulka is very optimistic. However, he has a lot of respect for the Grenadiers since he has never beaten them.

In this opener for the Blazers, Hulka plans to "take the fast break if the opportunity is there but mainly trying to set up plays to get the percentage shot." Or, as Hulka said laughingly, "Get the ball in to Harmsen."

At Addison

ELK GROVE		ADDISON TR.
6-2 Pinder	F	O'Neill	6-3
6-0 J. Flesch	F	Simerson	6-0
6-3 Bachus	C	Harmsen	6-3
5-10 Devitt	G	Thonn	5-8
5-10 Schultz	G	Landrum	5-10

TIME: Jayvee game to begin at 6:45 p.m.; varsity to begin at approximately 8:15.

PLACE: Addison Trail High School, Army Trail and Lombard Rds., Addison.

COACHES: Elk Grove, Bob Rees; Addison Trail, Frank Hulka.

Grove Matmen Defeated

Elk Grove's wrestlers went down to defeat in their opener against Glenbrook South last Saturday, 26-12.

The Grenadiers found the Titans' mats not to their liking as they could only manage four victories to the Titans eight, including a forfeit in the heavyweight class.

Jerry Ancona won the 95 pound division by decisioning Benke 10-0. The Grove also won the second weight — 103 — when Tom Mann beat Geller 13-3.

However, the Grenadiers dropped the next four before taking the 138 class behind Jim Pankow. He whipped Cobb 5-2. Again, the Grove made it two in a row when Jeff Froysland edged out Hall 6-3 in the 145 division. But that was the last victory for the Grenadiers and their new coach, Norm Lovelace.

The Grove will have its first home meet tonight (Wednesday) when Addison Trail comes to town for a 7:30 engagement. Then on Saturday the Grenadiers will journey to Fenton for a 2 p.m. meet.

On the jayvee level the Grove dropped a meet to Hersey, 33-18, last Friday and lost again on Saturday to Glenbrook South, 33-20.

Hawks Big, Inexperienced

Knights Face Maine South, 6-6 Butz in Action Tonight

Two down, two to go.

In an action-packed basketball week that has Prospect facing four of the toughest cage units in the suburban area in an eight day span, two games have been played and two remain.

And it's just possible that the toughest of the four games faces the Knights tonight (Wednesday), when Coach Don Arseneau's charges are pitted against Maine South at the Hawk home court. Game time is approximately 8 p.m.

The Knights bring a 1-1 mark into the tilt, boasting a win Saturday night over Libertyville after falling Friday to defending state champion Evanston. The Hawks took their only game thus far this season, by a 89-53 margin over Ridgewood.

Bernie Brady's Hawks are a rough, tall, but inexperienced unit. Only one letterman returned from last year's Central Suburban League championship squad, but considering that he is 6-6 Dave Butz, all-state tackle for two years running, the Hawks won't be hurting that much.

Butz will fill the center position, while the forwards will be 6-5 Greg Schmelzer and 6-4 Bob Nettinga. Ralph Remus at 6-3 and Glenn Hofeldt at 6-1 will be Brady's backcourt men. All but Schmelzer are seniors.

Nettinga, Remus and Hofeldt were all members of last year's Hawk JayVee outfit that recorded a perfect mark on the season. So again the Hawks won't be hurting that much.

Also exected to see action are 6-4 forward Glenn Schirmer and 5-11 Tom Seifried

"It's a little bit early to say how good we are," Brady commented on his charges. "We're big, of course, but as for the mechanics of the game we'll just have to see how well the fellows jell. We should be able to tell after this weekend, though.

"The best aspect of our game right now," he continued, "is our strength on the boards. And we're not bad shooters, either — we hit over 50 per cent against Ridgewood. Potentially we could be very good, but, like I said, it's a bit too early to tell."

As for the Knights . . . well, they're a fast learning team. In their opener against Evanston, the Prospect cagers were outplayed badly for most of the game, but by Saturday showed that they had the equipment to play a tough game.

Probable starters for Arseneau will be Scotty Crawford and Dave Somers at guards, Bruce Timko and Ron Dolejs at forwards, and Rob Bachhuber at center. The Knights will be giving away about two incher per man at each position.

Here Comes Santa Claus

It's official. From North Pole headquarters comes word that Santa Claus will again be in Arlington Heights Saturday to Christmas.

As in the past, Santa will arrive in time for Saturday's Arlington Heights Christmas Parade where he will ride in a sleigh pulled by reindeer.

The parade will be at 9:45 a.m. through the downtown business district.

Following the parade, Santa Claus will hold visiting hours at Hagenbrings store to meet area children.

Weeknights and possibly Saturday afternoons, just as faithful as presents appear under the tree Dec. 24, Santa will be present to take gift orders and give advice.

THE GENT is expected to see more than 3,000 children while on Santa's throne in Hagenbring's window. His hours will be announced later.

Santa has for years chosen the Chicago metropolis for special sessions with children. Taking time out from a busy schedule is his way of showing how important to the world are the little people. And how important it is that the little ones believe in Santa.

Parade Route

Saturday's parade officially begins at 9:45 a.m. and is expected to last at least an hour. Viewers are expected to concentrate along Campbell St., between Wilke and Dunton, and along Dunton Ave., between Campbell and Miner.

Mammoth Parade: Clowns, Floats, Balloons

Massed Band Marchers From Six Area Schools

A massed band drawn from High School District 214's six high schools will march Saturday after Thanksgiving in the parade planned to climax Arlington Heights' Sesquicentennial Week celebration.

The 225 bandsmen are among 550 high school students that will take part in the parade.

Accustomed to marching to different signals and different cadences, throngs of uniformed band students held the second of two half-day practice sessions Tuesday afternoon in the Prospect High School fieldhouse.

ON SATURDAY, throngs watching the pre-Christmas parade will see first the Arlington High's Cardinal color guard.

The band will present a checkerboard appearance as it marches past, each bandsman wearing the uniform of his school.

Directing the band will be Douglas Peterson, Elk Grove High School band director.

Band directors from the other high schools have assisted with the practice sessions.

This is the first time that High School District 214 has pooled its marching bands into one unit for any parade.

School spokesmen, however, expect other similar requests.

The massed band concept makes it possible for District 214 to serve future requests for public marching appearances at vacation times when some band students have made plans to be out of town.

Toppers To Make Appearance

The rifles, flags and sabres of the Argo Summit Toppers will make an appearance Saturday in the Arlington Heights Christmas parade.

The 48 boys and girls, aged 13 to 19, will display the intricacies of parade competition which won for them four first place awards and two second places in competition during the past summer.

The group, which is managed by Ken Dobes of Oak Lawn, covered 4,000 miles in four states and made 34 appearances during their past season, including American Legion and V.F.W. state competitions and the Labor Day parade in Chicago. They are also defending champions of three years running of the Morris, Ill., corn festival competition.

The group, which appears in green, gold and white uniforms, is led by Tom Hunnicut, major, and June Von Osinski, guard sergeant.

A "live" Santa Claus, 40 huge balloons, 12 floats, six drum and bugle corps, four marching units and a 220-member band will appear before hundreds of spectators along the three-mile Arlington Heights Christmas parade route.

Six civic and church organizations will enter floats with the following titles: "Voice of Santa," Hersey High School; "Joy to the World," Teen Action Group of St. Peters Church; "Sounds of Christmas," Lutheran Laymen's League of St. Peter's Church; St. James Church; "A Friend of Youth," Arlington Heights Optimist Club; and "A Family Affair," Arlington Heights Haycees.

COMMERCIAL floats and their sponsors will be "Circus Train," Paddock Publications; "Jack-in-the-Box," Hagenbring's; "That Jolly Old Man," First Arlington National; "All Wrapped Up for Christmas," Lisa Draperies, and "Down the Chimney," Harris Pharmacy.

Santa Claus will climax the annual parade as he waves to youngsters from his float.

Music will be played by 220 members of the six Dist. 214 high schools in a combined band.

Also adding parade music will be the follawing drum and bugle corps:

Argo Summit Toppers; The Guardsmen from the northwest suburbs; St. Brendan Patriots from Chicago; Milwaukee Crusaders; Norwood Park Imperials, and Bellettes from Belleville, Ill., sponsored by Krause and Kehe of Arlington Heights.

A TEAM OF five clowns from the Arlington Heights Optimist Club will entertain crowds along the parade route with stunts and surprises.

Two local girls' drill teams, the Pomperets of Hersey High School, and the Coronets of Arlington Heights, will march in the parade.

Forty men from the Evanston Naval Reserve Training Center and a 24-man drill team from Great Lakes Naval Station will also participate.

Two colorguards will be formed by members of the Arlington Heights V.F.W. Post 81 and the Arlington Heights Lions Club.

THE HUGE balloons representing everything from a 180-foot camel caravan to robbers and a stagecoach will appear throughout the parade.

Club Project: Parade Info

Twelve girls representing the Triple S Club, a service group at Arlington High School, will be in charge of distributing parade programs to residents attending the Christmas parade on Saturday.

Harold C. Best, Arlington Heights building commissioner who is in charge of manpower for parade activities, said that members of scout troops may be called upon to help the girls in their duties.

The parade committee plans to have students armed with programs at many convenient locations along the route.

THE "HOLIDAY green" programs will give the order of march and list the names of contributors and supporters of the Christmas pageant.

A listing of special invited guests seated in the reviewing stand at Campbell just west of Vail will also be included.

Three thousand programs will be available at local stores on Friday. An additional 12,000 will be distributed by the Triple S girls during the parade.

Gene Wilroth, public works director, plans to have village sweepers in action immediately following the parade to clean up the stray balloons, literature and lollipops left behind by parade watchers.

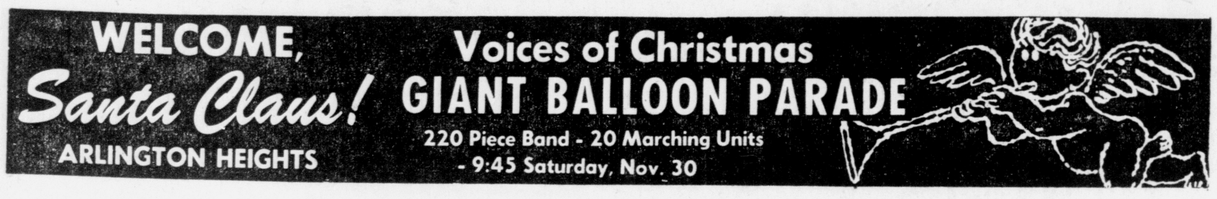
Mammoth Parade: Clowns, Floats, Balloons



Massed Band Marchers From Six Area Schools

A massed band drawn from High School District 214's six high schools will march Saturday after Thanksgiving in the parade planned to climax Arlington Heights' Sesquicentennial Week celebration.

The 225 bandsmen are among 550 high school students that will take part in the parade.

Accustomed to marching to different signals and different cadences, throngs of uniformed band students held the second of two half-day practice sessions Tuesday afternoon in the Prospect High School fieldhouse.

ON SATURDAY, throngs watching the pre-Christmas parade will see first the Arlington High's Cardinal color guard.

The band will present a checkerboard appearance as it marches past, each bandsman wearing the uniform of his school.

Directing the band will be Douglas Peterson, Elk Grove High School band director.

Band directors from the other high schools have assisted with the practice sessions.

This is the first time that High School District 214 has pooled its marching bands into one unit for any parade.

School spokesmen, however, expect other similar requests.

The massed band concept makes it possible for District 214 to serve future requests for public marching appearances at vacation times when some band students have made plans to be out of town.

Toppers To Make Appearance

The rifles, flags and sabres of the Argo Summit Toppers will make an appearance Saturday in the Arlington Heights Christmas parade.

The 48 boys and girls, aged 13 to 19, will display the intricacies of parade competition which won for them four first place awards and two second places in competition during the past summer.

The group, which is managed by Ken Dobes of Oak Lawn, covered 4,000 miles in four states and made 34 appearances during their past season, including American Legion and V.F.W. state competitions and the Labor Day parade in Chicago. They are also defending champions of three years running of the Morris, Ill., corn festival competition.

The group, which appears in green, gold and white uniforms, is led by Tom Hunnicut, major, and June Von Osinski, guard sergeant.

A "live" Santa Claus, 40 huge balloons, 12 floats, six drum and bugle corps, four marching units and a 220-member band will appear before hundreds of spectators along the three-mile Arlington Heights Christmas parade route.

'Enthusiasm' Built Parade Fund

Something was in the wind. The 35 businessmen who responded sensed the excitement. Realtors, pharmacists, bankers, jewelers, car dealers — they flocked to the special businessmen's meeting called way back in early September. The invitation read: "Attention Arlington Enthusiasts."

It was then that plans unfolded for the wildest, most spectacular parade ever to hit Arlington Heights — a $225,000 investment in gigantic parade props at a rental of $4,500.

"We'll launch the Christmas season and put Arlington on the map as the 'Parade City,' " one shop owner cheered.

THE GROUP snapped up the idea. They liked the "Voices of Christmas" concept with its 40 fairytale, folklore and character balloons. That's fine. Great parade. But the money — $10,000 in the kitty would be needed to finance the staging, promotion, rental, manpower and all the other costly functions that nickel-and-dime a project into soaring figures.

But businessmen think big, and before the meeting was over, Irv Robbin, of Persin and Robbin Jewelers; Joseph Schneller, Schneller Furniture; Ed Keegan, president of the Chamber and owner of Key Kitchens; Marge LeMeilleur, of Marge's Apparel Sample Shop; and Douglas Dodd, First Arlington National Bank, launched the project with their enthusiasm. Thirty-one businesses came through within the first two weeks.

The concept of the parade was Paddock Publications Publisher Robert Y. Paddock's baby. His, and Harold Bell's brainchild. Publisher Paddock is retail chairman and Bell is executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. These two acted as anchor men, assisting in solving the 1,001 problems involved in staging a parade of this size.

Robbin took command of raising the additional money, and with his committee Margie Flanders, and Anita Wilkins, of Paddock Publications advertising department; Wil Schwantz, Realtor, Annen and Busse; Jim Svoboda, Svoboda and Sons Men's Wear; Scotty Robinson, George Poole Ford; and Don Florence, FBK Realtors, assumed the monumental task of calling on every one of the businessmen, professional people, civic, service, social and church groups in Arlington Heights. One-hundred fifty contributors pledged anywhere from $5 to $500.

The person who normally consumes enough Excedrin to effect an upward trend on the New York Stock Exchange is the parade chairman. Joseph Schneller, accepted this role. Vern Hagenbring of Hagenbring's Department Store has the dual role of parade marshal and float chairman.

Civic, commercial and church groups had their own float consultants in the persons of Barney Erickson, Krause and Kehe Realtors; Loretta Pawlowski, First Arlington National Bank; and the Rev. R. O. Bartz, St. Peter's Lutheran Church, respectively.

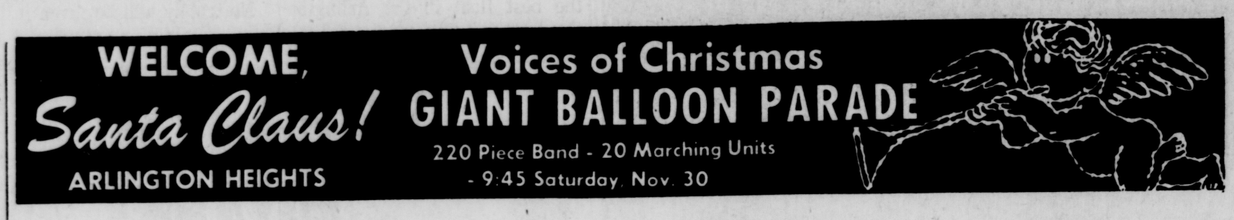
Marge LeMeilleur, and First Arlington National Bank's Wayne Walter helped iron out the kinks in technical procedures, rules and regulations.

THE POSSIBILITY of TV coverage was explored by Bernie Wood, owner of Ma & Pa's Country Candy Store and Admark Advertising Agency. Mary B. Good, advertising manager for Chas. Klehm & Son Nursery, handled newspaper publicity, and Chief of Police L. W. "Bill" Calderwood produced the "stars" of the parade — sports personalities and political figures, as well as our own championship Arlington High Football Team (9-0 record).

Seventy-six trombones? That was Dave Lynk's job. Dave is associated with Arlington Park Racetrack. He enlisted drum and bugle corps units, precision marching groups, and bands.

The "muscleman" was Harold "Red" Best, Arlington Heights building commissioner. In charge of manpower, Best commandeered about 185 volunteers as parade workmen, clowns and usherettes.

The Voices of Christmas parade was two months in the planning. It will be over in little more than an hour.



Downtown Area Slips Into Holiday Attire

Christmas trees, garlands and small Italian lights will all be planted and secured by tonight to add to parade watchers enjoyment on Saturday.

Decorated Christmas trees will be located at Arlington's municipal parking lot on Dunton, on Evergreen by the North Western station and on Northwest Highway on the island at the Highland intersection. The trees are inserted into fixed holes which are used annually.

Smaller trees in parking lots along Davis will also be decorated.

THE NATIVITY scene will be placed at the northwest corner of Davis and Arlington Heights Road. Harold Bell, Chamber of Commerce executive manager, said the grouping will be set back from the road to add dignity to the setting and that greenery will surround the stable and statues.

Evergreen garlands and strands of Christmas lights will be affixed by heavy wire to light poles along Northwest Highway from Evergreen to Highland.

Bell noted that the majority of compliments last year focused on the small Italian lights used by the Chamber. "The twinkling effect of the wind-blown lights was also enjoyed by Palatine and Barrington residents on their return train trip from the city," he said.

The chamber official said that 100 strings of the lights will be used this year and many will be placed on evergreen and maple trees on Northwest Highway. Four adjoining blocks along the highway in the downtown area will sparkle every evening for motorists and commuters.

THE CHAMBER has ordered 6,000 light bulbs, many of which will be held for use as replacements. Bell said the wind at this time of year can easily damage the tiny lights.

The village decorations are a joint effort of the chamber and the public works department. The retail committee of the chamber set aside $2,000 this year for purchase of the trees, garlands and lights and the public works department climbs the light poles and plants the trees. Cost of downtown decorations last year totaled $1,389.

Gene Wilroth, public works director, said that his department is planning to have the lion's share of the decorations in place by tonight. Final touches and last-minute details will be done on Friday.

Clown Troupe To Represent Arlington Optimists Club

It will be unusual for five Optimist Club clowns to spoof for healthy parade watchers Saturday.

"Our main purpose is to entertain patients in veteran and community hospitals," said Dave Lynk, who has performed alone as Dodo the Clown for four years in hospitals. He originated the Arlington Heights clown troupe, the only Optimist Club clowns in Illinois.

UNDERNEATH make-up and costumes will be charter club members Lynk, assistant to the general manager at Arlington Park; Lee Lindquist, chemist for H. B. Fuller Co., Palatine; Ron Seibt, vice president of General Telephone and Directory Co., Des Plaines; Bob Hoese, assistant principal of Forest View High School, and Stewart Grant, finance director for the Village of Arlington Heights.

The clowns will make their debut as a group Saturday. "We'll be out to make people laugh and to have fun with the youngsters," said Lynk. "Probably the hardest thing will be walking the three-mile parade route!" he said.

After clowning Saturday, the men plan to entertain wounded veterans from Viet Nam at Great Lakes Naval Hospital before Christmas.

AS PART OF its purpose to be "friends of youth," the Optimist Club will sponsor the clowns throughout the year as they entertain hospitalized children and adults in the Chicago area.

The club, now in its second year, has 25 members. All are residents of the Arlington Heights area.

The organization will participate for the second year in Operation Hand Clasp, sponsored by the U. S. Marine Corps in Viet Nam. In 1967 the local group sent toys, athletic equipment and clothes for Christmas in three Viet Nam villages. This year they plan to send several hundred pounds of summer clothing.

THE LOCAL Optimist Club is the only civic organization to honor 1967-68 state champion cross country and gymnastic teams of Arlington High School at special banquets.

In the spring the club will give its first "Respect of Law" award to a civilian who has helped a law enforcement agency. Next summer it will send two local boys to the Illinois Policemen Association's camp.

Guardsmen Local Drum, Bugle Corps

A northwest suburban group is among the six drum and bugle corps that will participate in the Arlington Heights Christmas parade.

The Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps of Mount Prospect includes youths from nine junior high and eight high schools in Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

Sponsorship and support come from local companies, organizations and businessmen in addition to self-support activities of the corps through its numerous activities.

This past summer the corps appeared in many parades and competitions for which they were awarded a total of 14 trophies. Some recognized the best musical unit in the South Holland Tulip Festival, the Roselle Rose Parade and the Calumet Park Labor Day Parade.

In addition there were best of show in the Roselle Rose Parade, The Addison Sescom '68 parade and the Oregon and Argo-Summit parades. It was the first place competitive unit at the July 6 Berwyn cortest.

The corps also competed at the Illinois State Fair and the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars competitions for the first time.

Corps plans for next summer include purchase of new uniforms and an extended trip to the southeastern states to compete in national contests.

Robbin took command of raising the additional money, and with his committee Margie Flanders, and Anita Wilkins, of Paddock Publications advertising department; Wil Schwantz, Realtor, Annen and Busse; Jim Svoboda, Svoboda and Sons Men's Wear; Scotty Robinson, George Poole Ford; and Don Florence, FBK Realtors, assumed the monumental task of calling on every one of the businessmen, professional people, civic, service, social and church groups in Arlington Heights. One-hundred fifty contributors pledged anywhere from $5 to $500.

The person who normally consumes enough Excedrin to effect an upward trend on the New York Stock Exchange is the parade chairman. Joseph Schneller, accepted this role. Vern Hagenbring of Hagenbring's Department Store has the dual role of parade marshal and float chairman.

Civic, commercial and church groups had their own float consultants in the persons of Barney Erickson, Krause and Kehe Realtors; Loretta Pawlowski, First Arlington National Bank; and the Rev. R. O. Bartz, St. Peter's Lutheran Church, respectively.

Marge LeMeilleur, and First Arlington National Bank's Wayne Walter helped iron out the kinks in technical procedures, rules and regulations.

THE POSSIBILITY of TV coverage was explored by Bernie Wood, owner of Ma & Pa's Country Candy Store and Admark Advertising Agency. Mary B. Good, advertising manager for Chas. Klehm & Son Nursery, handled newspaper publicity, and Chief of Police L. W. "Bill" Calderwood produced the "stars" of the parade — sports personalities and political figures, as well as our own championship Arlington High Football Team (9-0 record).

Seventy-six trombones? That was Dave Lynk's job. Dave is associated with Arlington Park Racetrack. He enlisted drum and bugle corps units, precision marching groups, and bands.

The "muscleman" was Harold "Red" Best, Arlington Heights building commissioner. In charge of manpower, Best commandeered about 185 volunteers as parade workmen, clowns and usherettes.

The Voices of Christmas parade was two months in the planning. It will be over in little more than an hour.

Downtown Area Slips Into Holiday Attire

Christmas trees, garlands and small Italian lights will all be planted and secured by tonight to add to parade watchers enjoyment on Saturday.

Decorated Christmas trees will be located at Arlington's municipal parking lot on Dunton, on Evergreen by the North Western station and on Northwest Highway on the island at the Highland intersection. The trees are inserted into fixed holes which are used annually.

Smaller trees in parking lots along Davis will also be decorated.

THE NATIVITY scene will be placed at the northwest corner of Davis and Arlington Heights Road. Harold Bell, Chamber of Commerce executive manager, said the grouping will be set back from the road to add dignity to the setting and that greenery will surround the stable and statues.

Evergreen garlands and strands of Christmas lights will be affixed by heavy wire to light poles along Northwest Highway from Evergreen to Highland.

Bell noted that the majority of compliments last year focused on the small Italian lights used by the Chamber. "The twinkling effect of the wind-blown lights was also enjoyed by Palatine and Barrington residents on their return train trip from the city," he said.

The chamber official said that 100 strings of the lights will be used this year and many will be placed on evergreen and maple trees on Northwest Highway. Four adjoining blocks along the highway in the downtown area will sparkle every evening for motorists and commuters.

THE CHAMBER has ordered 6,000 light bulbs, many of which will be held for use as replacements. Bell said the wind at this time of year can easily damage the tiny lights.

The village decorations are a joint effort of the chamber and the public works department. The retail committee of the chamber set aside $2,000 this year for purchase of the trees, garlands and lights and the public works department climbs the light poles and plants the trees. Cost of downtown decorations last year totaled $1,389.

Gene Wilroth, public works director, said that his department is planning to have the lion's share of the decorations in place by tonight. Final touches and last-minute details will be done on Friday.

Clown Troupe To Represent Arlington Optimists Club

It will be unusual for five Optimist Club clowns to spoof for healthy parade watchers Saturday.

"Our main purpose is to entertain patients in veteran and community hospitals," said Dave Lynk, who has performed alone as Dodo the Clown for four years in hospitals. He originated the Arlington Heights clown troupe, the only Optimist Club clowns in Illinois.

UNDERNEATH make-up and costumes will be charter club members Lynk, assistant to the general manager at Arlington Park; Lee Lindquist, chemist for H. B. Fuller Co., Palatine; Ron Seibt, vice president of General Telephone and Directory Co., Des Plaines; Bob Hoese, assistant principal of Forest View High School, and Stewart Grant, finance director for the Village of Arlington Heights.

The clowns will make their debut as a group Saturday. "We'll be out to make people laugh and to have fun with the youngsters," said Lynk. "Probably the hardest thing will be walking the three-mile parade route!" he said.

After clowning Saturday, the men plan to entertain wounded veterans from Viet Nam at Great Lakes Naval Hospital before Christmas.

AS PART OF its purpose to be "friends of youth," the Optimist Club will sponsor the clowns throughout the year as they entertain hospitalized children and adults in the Chicago area.

The club, now in its second year, has 25 members. All are residents of the Arlington Heights area.

The organization will participate for the second year in Operation Hand Clasp, sponsored by the U. S. Marine Corps in Viet Nam. In 1967 the local group sent toys, athletic equipment and clothes for Christmas in three Viet Nam villages. This year they plan to send several hundred pounds of summer clothing.

THE LOCAL Optimist Club is the only civic organization to honor 1967-68 state champion cross country and gymnastic teams of Arlington High School at special banquets.

In the spring the club will give its first "Respect of Law" award to a civilian who has helped a law enforcement agency. Next summer it will send two local boys to the Illinois Policemen Association's camp.

Guardsmen Local Drum, Bugle Corps

A northwest suburban group is among the six drum and bugle corps that will participate in the Arlington Heights Christmas parade.

The Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps of Mount Prospect includes youths from nine junior high and eight high schools in Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

Sponsorship and support come from local companies, organizations and businessmen in addition to self-support activities of the corps through its numerous activities.

This past summer the corps appeared in many parades and competitions for which they were awarded a total of 14 trophies. Some recognized the best musical unit in the South Holland Tulip Festival, the Roselle Rose Parade and the Calumet Park Labor Day Parade.

In addition there were best of show in the Roselle Rose Parade, The Addison Sescom '68 parade and the Oregon and Argo-Summit parades. It was the first place competitive unit at the July 6 Berwyn contest.

The corps also competed at the Illinois State Fair and the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars competitions for the first time.

Corps plans for next summer include purchase of new uniforms and an extended trip to the southeastern states to compete in national contests.

Pomberets Put Snap Into Hersey's Spirit

The 45-member Pomperets, girls' drill team from Hersey High School — District 214's newest — will have an extra snap in their step when they march in Arlington Heights' Sesquicentennial parade the day after Thanksgiving.

Since their start last summer, the girls in bright uniforms have been able to give service as well as spirit to their school.

They helped with registration arrangements this fall when Hersey opened and proudly acted as guides for open house the weekend that author John Hersey came to dedicate the school that bears his name.

MRS. MARJORIE Kimsey, advisor for the Pomperets, says the group's name reflects both their outfit and the flashy pompons used in their athletic event appearances.

With orange pant dresses, the girls wear brown sweaters, berets, knee socks and sneakers.

Girls on the team work out as a group from 4 to 6 p.m. two nights a week.

SO FAR the group boasts two football game routines, both featuring flourishing pompons. Routines using batons or dancesteps may be developed later, Mrs. Kimsey says.

Starting out with inexperience and a $1,000 bill for material for uniforms, the girls have made a dent in both.

They have run a car wash, sponsored a dance, sold pop and pennants and have managed in three months to reduce their uniform debt to $200.

Off-Duty Police Volunteer Time In Parade Help

Arlington Heights police officers will listen attentively to weather forecasts prior to the Christmas parade on Saturday.

Weather conditions will be considered when making last-minute plans for deployment of policemen along the parade route. Sgt. Harold Hildebrandt said that a prediction of rain or heavy snowfall will indicate that fewer residents will be able to attend the Christmas pageant.

Present plans call for 25-30 policemen to be on duty during parade hours with at least one officer stationed at each intersection on the parade route.

There will be no extra cost for police services during the day. Those men not ordinarily on duty volunteer their time as a public service.

Giant Balloons To Create Fantasyland in Arlington

Up, up, and away, the balloons will float through town Nov. 30.

It's the Voices of Christmas Parade, a $225,000 balloon extravaganza. Pageant-lovers will see a bit of glamor and exotica from the Far East as a Chinese princess on an Oriental litter and her billowy coolie servant hover over Arlington Heights.

A camel caravan, 180 feet long, will bring a bit of Arabia to suburbia.

SEE JULIUS Caesar arise from the pages of history in his Roman toga and laurel wreath.

The Old West will be revisited with the introduction of one of the tallest balloons in the parade — a 15 foot cowboy, with 10-gallon hat and chaps. There'll be a bull-dozing escapade with an ornery steer and the great stagecoach robbery, a 125 foot long balloon spectacular.

The parade's silver bumpered racing car would probably never make it to the Mobil Economy Run, but it's sure to be good for a laugh, just the same.

FAIRYTALE characters and fantasy balloons will include green-eyed Sleeping Beauty and her prince, Charming, a rubber Humpty Dumpty, a rat, the mouse and the cheese, and a 30 foot octopus straight from the "ocean floor." Dianosaur (sic), a female monster in the fashion of Flinstone's Dino, and one of the parade's most attractive novelties, will visit. Giant apple, lollipop, candy cane and one 13-foot tall ice-cream cone will stretch the appetite and the imagination of the parade crowd, especially the children.

The balloons, fashioned of heavy duty rubber, are impervious to wind, hail and pea-shooters. The balloons will be whisked from Peoria to the Arlington Park Racetrack, where a compressor type of fan will facilitate "the blow-up." Parade eve will find 10 men working from 11 p.m. through the night inflating the forty gargantuan balloons. It will require six hours to pump out the air after the parade.

Thirty husky lettermen from area high schools will man the balloonstays down the Campbell Street to Dunton to Miner parade route. Manpower Director Harold C. Best is co-ordinating muscle through Jack Martin and Bruno Waara, District 214 administrators.

One hundred fifty Boy Scouts, under Jack Starke, Arlington Heights-Rolling Meadows District BSA executive, have volunteered to help maneuver the smaller balloons and act as parade clowns. As of this printing, the following troops were scheduled to participate: Troop No. 159, St. Simon's Episcopal Church; 162 Lutheran Church of the Cross; No. 135 First Methodist Church; No. 161 Our Lady of the Wayside; No. 7 Lions Club; No. 56 Faith Lutheran Church; No. 32 Arlington Heights Presbyterian Church; No. 268 Ivy Hill Homeowners' sponsored scout group.

Giant Balloons To Create Fantasyland in Arlington

PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS WED., NOV. 27, 1968

Up, up, and away, the balloons will float through town Nov. 30.

It's the Voices of Christmas Parade, a $225,000 balloon extravaganza. Pageant-lovers will see a bit of glamor and exotica from the Far East as a Chinese princess on an Oriental litter and her billowy coolie servant hover over Arlington Heights.

A camel caravan, 180 feet long, will bring a bit of Arabia to suburbia.

SEE JULIUS Caesar arise from the pages of history in his Roman toga and laurel wreath.

The Old West will be revisited with the introduction of one of the tallest balloons in the parade — a 15 foot cowboy, with 10-gallon hat and chaps. There'll be a bull-dozing escapade with an ornery steer and the great stagecoach robbery, a 125 foot long balloon spectacular.

The parade's silver bumpered racing car would probably never make it to the Mobil Economy Run, but it's sure to be good for a laugh, just the same.

FAIRYTALE characters and fantasy balloons will include green-eyed Sleeping Beauty and her prince, Charming, a rubber Humpty Dumpty, a rat, the mouse and the cheese, and a 30 foot octopus straight from the "ocean floor." Dianosaur (sic), a female monster in the fashion of Flinstone's Dino, and one of the parade's most attractive novelties, will visit. Giant apple, lollipop, candy cane and one 13-foot tall ice-cream cone will stretch the appetite and the imagination of the parade crowd, especially the children.

The balloons, fashioned of heavy duty rubber, are impervious to wind, hail and peashooters. The balloons will be whisked from Peoria to the Arlington Park Racetrack, where a compressor type of fan will facilitate "the blow-up." Parade eve will find 10 men working from 11 p.m. through the night inflating the forty gargantuan balloons. It will require six hours to pump out the air after the parade.

Thirty husky lettermen from area high schools will man the balloonstays down the Campbell Street to Dunton to Miner parade route. Manpower Director Harold C. Best is co-ordinating muscle through Jack Martin and Bruno Waara, District 214 administrators.

One hundred fifty Boy Scouts, under Jack Starke, Arlington Heights-Rolling Meadows District BSA executive, have volunteered to help maneuver the smaller balloons and act as parade clowns. As of this printing, the following troops were scheduled to participate: Troop No. 159, St. Simon's Episcopal Church; 162 Lutheran Church of the Cross; No. 135 First Methodist Church; No. 161 Our Lady of the Wayside; No. 7 Lions Club; No. 56 Faith Lutheran Church; No. 32 Arlington Heights Presbyterian Church; No. 268 Ivy Hill Homeowners' sponsored scout group.

Drill Team Expected

A precision drill team of 24 recruits from Great Lakes Naval Station is expected to perform in the Arlington Heights parade Saturday. The men will demonstrate precise movements they have learned while drilling together only 12 weeks.

Dignitaries To Be In Reviewing Area

Illinois Gov.-elect Richard Ogilvie is among the guests invited to be in the reviewing stand for the Arlington Heights Christmas parade Saturday.

Also invited are State Sen. John A. Graham; Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman; Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman; Rep. David J. Regner; Mayor John G. Woods and trustees Charles O. Bennett, Roy A. Bressler, George E. Burlingame, Francois N. Palmatier, John J. Walsh, and John F. White.

OTHER GUESTS will include School Dist. 214 Supt. Edward H. Gilbert, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, and Mr. and Mrs. Webb Everett. Mrs. Everett is manager of Arlington Park.

Also invited are Austrian Counsul George Gerstberger, U.S. Naval Reserve Commander Tom Shirley, Col. George Charlton, and Col. Robert Detwiler. With them on the reviewing stand will be Ed Keegan, president of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

Wayne Lauer, announcer from local radio station WEXI, will introduce the guests and passing units from the reviewing stand located in the parking lot next to Schneller Furniture Co., 114 W. Campbell St.

GIANT BALLOON PARADE

220 Piece Band - 20 Marching Units

- 9:45 Saturday, Nov. 30

CHILLY WEATHER won't deter the Coronets girls' drill team from marching in Saturday's Sesquicentennial parade in Arlington Heights with the same snappy style that has led to their winning national honors in VFW competition. Mrs. Lynn Chapin Lindstrom, instructor for the team, says the Coronets will double their membership to 81 before next year's summer marching season. Sponsors of the Coronets in their out-of-school appearances is Arlington Heights VFW Post 981.

Arlington High's Coronets

Award-Winning Drill Team

The instructor of Arlington Heights' nationally-known Coronets all-girl drill team will be commuting from Kenosha, Wis., Saturday to see her girls perform.

Mrs. Lynn Chapin Lindstrom has been making the trip regularly since June, when she married George Lindstrom who is in business in that city.

Saturday Mrs. Lindstrom will chock up another 100-mile round trip and once again take pride in the admiring glances her girls' team receive when they march in the parade planned as Arlington Heights' climax to Sesquicentennial Week celebration.

IT WAS IN 1962 that Mrs. Lindstrom helped organize the Coronets under the sponsorship of Arlington Heights VFW Post 981. She has served as their instructor ever since.

"Each year we've gotten better," she says of the girls' performance.

This year the Coronets dropped slightly in national rankings, picking up second place in the national VFW drill team contest held in Detroit, Mich., in late August. They copped first place at the 1967 competition.

"We only lost by a few points," says Mrs. Lindstrom of the 1968 contest.

The Coronets are not resting on their laurels. This year again they will add another new drill to their repertoire.

PLACES FOR other interested girls will also open up, Mrs. Chapin says, as the drill team expands its membership to 81 before next summer.

"This will make us the largest team in the country," she points out.

As part of Arlington High School's pep contingent, the Coronets practice twice a week during the high school's activity period.

To appear in outside activities where they are under VFW post sponsorship rather than the school's, Coronets members must commit themselves to a practice session every Sunday evening.

Mrs. Lindstrom's husband doesn't complain when she makes ready for the trip to Arlington Heights for the Sunday evening sessions.

THE TWO SHARE an interest in drill team work. That's how they met.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom hold seats on the Midwest Color Guard circuit board. He, too, has managed drill teams but plans this year to go into judging.

Reservist Navy Unit In Parade

Forty men from the Evanston Naval Reserve Training Center will march in the Arlington Heights parade Saturday. The reservists, many from Arlington Heights, will be from three divisions of Group Command 9-73 headed by Commander Tom Shirley, Wheeling High School principal. Lt. Comdr. Billy Bowers of Skokie will be in charge of the marching unit.

Paddock Float: Lovely View

Not all vehicular traffic in Arlington Heights' Christmas Parade Saturday will be sleighs and reindeer.

A circus train of lovely girls will also steam in, engineered by Paddock Publications.

The locomotive is coming straight from Santa's Village to whistle its own welcome to the official arrival of Santa in Arlington Heights.

RIDING THE five-car circus train will be three of the four finalists of the Paddock area Junior Miss Pageant.

Girls in newsboy outfits will also be on the cars to focus attention of Paddock's new carrier delivery service.

Boys and girls can earn some Christmas money by taking paper routes in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine.

The yellow and red stripe locomotive runs on wheels. Its cars are decorated with circus animals.

JUNIOR MISS finalists in the parade will be Barbara Darge of Elk Grove Village, Debra Benysh of Roselle and Pamela Weir of Arlington Heights.

The Car: Route to an Empty Wallet

by RICHARD M. HARNETT

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Those precious minutes you spend in the car driving to work are worth approximately five cents each, according to some sophisticated new calculations.

The Stanford Research Institute, one of the nation's leading research organizations, has computed the commuting motorist's "ture value of travel time" at $2.82 per hour per person.

Research scientists Dan Haney and Tom Thomas reported in an institute publication on a six-year study of the price to put on the commuters time.

The project was completed for the Bureau of Public Roads, which wanted a dollar value of benefits to weigh against the dollar value of costs for new roads and freeways.

THE IDEA of assigning a value of 4.7 cents a minute on a motorist's time admittedly has many defects. But the research was aimed at getting a logical figure that could be scientifically defended.

They qualified it by saying it applied only to peak hour commuter trips.

People have been trying to measure the cost of travel time for many years.

One of the first estimates was made in 1925 by the Bureau of Public Roads. Surprisingly, it was higher than the new one — $3 per hour.

IN 1931 TIME was cheap. The value of a commuter's hour on the road was estimated at 45 cents that year. Most estimates over the years have ranged between 60 cents and $1.20 an hour.

The highest value put on auto commuting time was $4.80 per car per hour. This was on the assumption the commuter's hour on the road was worth the same as his hour on the job; and that estimate was based on one and three-quarters persons per car.

Haney and Thomas studied the driving habits of hundreds of cummuters and locations where a toll road was available as an alternative to a free road. On the basis of the motorist's income, the amount of the toll, and other factors, they concluded his time on the road was worth $1.82 to $3.82 per hour.

"AN AVERAGE of $2.28 per person per hour is the best estimate," the report said.

Aware that the average commuter himself might not agree with their estimate of his time's worth, the researchers added: "All that can be said is that he acts as if this is the value of his time.

In conclusion, the report said, the study clearly indicated that the motorist "behaves as if his time had a value" but he does not know what this value is.

While the car commuter may think his traveltime is worth $10 or more an hour, and acts as if it is worth about $3 an hour, he is unwilling to pay more than 60 cents an hour for it.

"When asked about their willingness to pay for hypothetical improvements to their present routes, the answers produced a value on time of about 60 cents per person per hour," the report said.

Idealism Revisited

A Vision: The Happily Ever-aftering Martini

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Out of necessity, perhaps, we live in a pragmatic age. The merits of most things nowadays are judged by the results they produce.

Because pragmatism is so rampant, it is widely believed that idealism died with the age of chivalry. But that isn't true.

Idealism is not dead. It is alive and living in Michigan.

I made this discovery a few days ago when I was in Michigan arousing an audience of newspaper editors to a comatose condition with one of my fiery orations.

AT A PARTY given to celebrate the end of my address, I met a native of the state who had dedicated his life to an idealistic quest in the true spirit of Camelot.

He was searching, he said, for the perfect Martini.

Being something of a pragmatist myself, I didn't immediately realize I was in the presence of a genuine visionary.

"Where have you been looking for it?" I inquired, just to be polite.

"My search has taken me over hills, over dales and along dustry trails," he replied. "I have climbed rocks and crossed hills from the redwood forests to the gulfstream waters."

"THAT'S A long way to go for a drink," I said.

"You don't understand," he said. "It isn't the drink, it's the idea of perfection that I seek."

"I admire your devotion," I said, admiring his devotion, "but aren't you being a little quixotic? Aren't you only tilting with bartenders? How do you know that what you are seeking really exists?"

"I know it because I feel it in my heart. Somewhere out there," he said, waving a hand in the general direction of Pocatello, Idaho, "is a bar that is capable of mixing the perfect Martini.

"SOME DAY it will all come together — the right gin and the right vermouth blended in the right proportions at the right temperature, humidity and barometric pressure. And I want to be there when it happens."

"It sounds like an impossible dream," I said.

"Maybe so," he said, "but this is my quest: To follow that bar, no matter how hopeless, no matter how far."

"Suppose you never find it? Won't your quest then appear foolhardy?"

"I will know when I'm laid to my rest that the world will be better by far because one man strove with his last ounce of courage to reach the unreachable bar."

The Car: Route to an Empty Wallet

by RICHARD M. HARNETT

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Those precious minutes you spend in the car driving to work are worth approximately five cents each, according to some sophisticated new calculations.

The Stanford Research Institute, one of the nation's leading research organizations, has computed the commuting motorist's "ture value of travel time" at $2.82 per hour per person.

Research scientists Dan Haney and Tom Thomas reported in an institute publication on a six-year study of the price to put on the commuters time.

The project was completed for the Bureau of Public Roads, which wanted a dollar value of benefits to weigh against the dollar value of costs for new roads and freeways.

THE IDEA of assigning a value of 4.7 cents a minute on a motorist's time admittedly has many defects. But the research was aimed at getting a logical figure that could be scientifically defended.

They qualified it by saying it applied only to peak hour commuter trips.

People have been trying to measure the cost of travel time for many years.

One of the first estimates was made in 1925 by the Bureau of Public Roads. Surprisingly, it was higher than the new one — $3 per hour.

IN 1931 TIME was cheap. The value of a commuter's hour on the road was estimated at 45 cents that year. Most estimates over the years have ranged between 60 cents and $1.20 an hour.

The highest value put on auto commuting time was $4.80 per car per hour. This was on the assumption the commuter's hour on the road was worth the same as his hour on the job; and that estimate was based on one and three-quarters persons per car.

Haney and Thomas studied the driving habits of hundreds of cummuters and locations where a toll road was available as an alternative to a free road. On the basis of the motorist's income, the amount of the toll, and other factors, they concluded his time on the road was worth $1.82 to $3.82 per hour.

"AN AVERAGE of $2.28 per person per hour is the best estimate," the report said.

Aware that the average commuter himself might not agree with their estimate of his time's worth, the researchers added: "All that can be said is that he acts as if this is the value of his time.

In conclusion, the report said, the study clearly indicated that the motorist "behaves as if his time had a value" but he does not know what this value is.

While the car commuter may think his traveltime is worth $10 or more an hour, and acts as if it is worth about $3 an hour, he is unwilling to pay more than 60 cents an hour for it.

"When asked about their willingness to pay for hypothetical improvements to their present routes, the answers produced a value on time of about 60 cents per person per hour," the report said.

LWV Grade Schools Low in Public Contact

Schools can best put across their story to the public through face-to-face contact, the Arlington Heights League of Women Voters has concluded in a study of school-community relations.

Their position paper, approved last week by the LWV board, called for "school administrators, school board members and all those professionally involved" to take more responsibility for maintaining public support for the schools.

The LWV statement summarizes conclusions reached by league members who assessed communications practices used by High School Dist. 214 and its elementary districts — Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Wheeling Dist. 21, River Trails Dist. 26, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 and Elk Grove Dist. 59.

THE LWV GAVE parent-teachers groups poor marks and indirectly chided some schoolmen.

"The programming of parent-teacher groups is not doing an adequate job of furthering home-school cooperation," the LWV said. "Fund raising is destroying their usefulness. Parent education should be their main concern."

"Professional personnel should learn not to take a defensive position when the public has legitimate questions," the LWV added, calling for establishing "an official channel of communication" for parents to use when they have specific questions about the school program.

The League statement called "a successful education program" the best public relations tool a school can have.

IT SAID COFFEES, Citizens Committees, parent-teacher conferences and use of laymen — paid and unpaid — in the schools all were effective person-to-person techniques.

The LWV urged schools to develop "more creative presentations" showing the relationship between enrollment growth, good finances and a good education program.

The group suggested rotating school board meetings among different school buildings — as Arlington Heights Dist. 25 does — to encourage better attendance.

It also said that "an effort should be made to draw the non-college-bound student and his parents into the whole educational process."

THE STATEMENT said that "if a district can afford printed materials they should be utilized, especially those which go to all citizens." Such publications, the LWV said, "do not convince but are useful for keeping the public informed." Printed materials are particularly helpful for newcomers, the statement noted.

The statement approved by the LWV board was drafted by Mrs. W. J. Marier of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Duane Ainlay of Wheeling. The two also were in charge of the seven-district survey, planned in cooperation with Mrs. Edward Rechner of Prospect Heights.

Mrs. Ainlay told Paddock Publications she hopes the LWV conclusions will prove useful both to school administrators and citizens groups working with them.

"They might prove a good guide to Caucus committees in questioning prospective school board candidates," she pointed out.

At Whitewater

Richard J. Briebe, son of Mrs. Mary Priebe, 1215 N. Waterman St., Arlington Heights, and a student at Wisconsin State University at Whitewater, took part in the fall general assembly of United Council of Student Governments recently.

They Had 68 Guests

Miner Junior High School girls wore expressions of concentration and delight Monday as they prepared final stages of turkey dinner served to their parents at the school that evening.

The home economics class, under the direction of Mrs. James Riebock, started working two weeks ago when they baked and froze five decorated layer cakes.

Last week the girls prepared other portions of the meal and wrote formal invitations to parents and teachers.

The turkeys presented the biggest challenge and teenagers with sticky fingers found needles slipping out of and into fingers when they began sewing up the large birds.

THE RELAXING candlelight dinner served to 68 persons went off without a hitch and the girls then returned to the kitchen for a massive clean-up campaign.

Frank Santelli, Miner principal, praised the joint effort and said that the dinner was one event usually attended by all parents.

The delighted parents were bursting with pride as well as turkey.

A RAINBOW MAY BE A DANGEROUS SIGN

If at night you often see a rainbow around the street or car lights, this may be a warning signal of a possible glaucoma. It is not only one of the symptoms and is not a positive diagnosis. But to protect against blindness, you should immediately consult a physician.

If the diagnosis is early, many cases of glaucoma can be controlled by weak solutions of miotics, increasing the strength until the best reacting formula is found. When the tension cannot be lessened, immediate surgery may be imperative.

He's Gained Weight, Bronze Feathers

Pilgrims Wouldn't Recognize 'Tom' Today

by MARTHA MOSER

Tom Turkey has come a long way since the Indians chased him out of the brush and onto the Pilgrims' Thanksgiving table.

For one thing, the turkey moved from Massachusetts to a world capital in Minnesota.

But more importantly, a delicious metamorphasis came over the wild, long-legged gobbler that could run, fly or swim to safety.

The center of attention at the holiday table today would be unrecognized by the friendly American natives who introduced him.

TODAY'S TURKEY is most likely to have broad, white breasts and shorter and heavier legs. Before he showed up on the platter, his feathers were probably white, not bronze.

Since the 1930s, possibly no other livestock has been changed in shape as much as the turkey. Through genetics, the turkey now offers the housewife a better buy at less per pound than meats and comparable food-dollar savings with other poultry. It has little waste, is high in protein and low in fat and cholesterol.

Turkey flesh was made fitting for the holidays, traditional times of feast. It is at the dinner table a family's festive camaraderie heightens with the ritual of the head of the house carving meat.

Holidays may be the event that returns the family to the circle. In many families, mealtimes are the only occasions all members sit down together. Food leaves treasured memories.

NO WONDER the lady of the house insists on better and better food products and why some of the best selective breeding comes at the supermarket level.

Consumer demand was for a more attractive and bigger turkey and breeders responded with the many varieties of hybrids raised today.

And no matter what care has been used in stuffing and trussing the bird, it is no more than what the turkey has grown accustomed. Basting lavished on a browning breast is mere tokenism to essentially the farmer's "baby."

In addition to genetics, turkey raising is a science with barnyard chores thrown in.

THANKSGIVING gobblers are pecking their way into the world in early June after 28 days' incubation, no more and no less. At day one, the poults require their first in a series of expert handlers — to separate them by sex.

They prefer a 95-degree temperature and would like to hear a mother bird clucking. But they settle for bright marbles in the water jar and rolled oats in the feeder to entice them to drink and eat.

Poults are started on a 30 per cent protein diet which is dropped by two per cent every four weeks. At 10 weeks, the hens are fed less protein than toms because the female fattens faster. Both graduate from crumble feed to pellets.

At 22 weeks for the hen and 24 weeks for the tom, the turkeys have their size and "finish" and are ready for slaughter. Hens will average about 14 pounds and toms, 23 to 24 pounds as they go fresh to market.

NUTRITION has been improved greatly, a 35-year turkey raiser said. Howard Kauffman, of Waterman, Ill., recalled how difficult it used to be to get hens at 12 pounds or toms at 20 pounds before eviseration. Now, more and juicier meat is produced faster, more efficiently and with less feed.

Kauffman raised 40,000 turkeys this year but has raised as many as 225,000 in a year. His strain is called a broad-breasted large white turkey.

White turkeys, developed from mutants, are preferred today for dressed appearance. Bronze turkeys' pinfeathers contain unsightly ink if the bird is killed before its feathers have matured.

Cooks may have some highly arguable preferences for hens or toms for the Thanksgifing dinner. But it is not true one is better than the other, scoffs M. C. Small, executive director the National Turkey Federation, Mount Morris, Ill.

THE HEN is smaller and will have a little broader breast but not as deep a breast as the tom. Consumer preference studies show the most popular roasting turkey is 12 to 14 pounds, Small said. Figuring two pounds at most per serving, one gobbler is ample for most families.

Culinary skill is now being built into some turkeys with artifically added fat for self-basting. Turkey growing has become so highly specialized it is hard for even the novice not to turn out a perfect dinner.

Mom may know she does not deserve all the credit for her tasty gobbler.

But she still likes to hear: "It's delicious."

It's 'Work Season' for Red Kettles

Bright with fresh coats of paint for their 22-day "working season," the little red Christmas kettles of The Salvation Army will make their annual appearance in Chicago and suburbs Friday.

Placed at busy corners and shopping centers each day through Dec. 24, the kettles are the major appeal to the public for help in bringing Christmas cheer and other assistance to more than 48,000 distressed people in the metropolitan Chicago area.

"Applications for special Christmas assistance are already flooding in, and it looks as though The Salvation Army's shopping list will be longer than ever this year," said Lt. Col. Gordon A. Foubister, commander of the Northern Illinois Division and director of Greater Chicago Activities.

"On the other hand, because Thanksgiving comes so late this year, the Christmas kettles will be on the streets a much shorter time than usual.

"This means we have fewer days in which to raise the money needed for our Christmas and day-to-day work with the troubled."

Poults are started on a 30 per cent protein diet which is dropped by two per cent every four weeks. At 10 weeks, the hens are fed less protein than toms because the female fattens faster. Both graduate from crumble feed to pellets.

At 22 weeks for the hen and 24 weeks for the tom, the turkeys have their size and "finish" and are ready for slaughter. Hens will average about 14 pounds and toms, 23 to 24 pounds as they go fresh to market.

NUTRITION has been improved greatly, a 35-year turkey raiser said. Howard Kauffman, of Waterman, Ill., recalled how difficult it used to be to get hens at 12 pounds or toms at 20 pounds before eviseration. Now, more and juicier meat is produced faster, more efficiently and with less feed.

Kauffman raised 40,000 turkeys this year but has raised as many as 225,000 in a year. His strain is called a broad-breasted large white turkey.

White turkeys, developed from mutants, are preferred today for dressed appearance. Bronze turkeys' pinfeathers contain unsightly ink if the bird is killed before its feathers have matured.

Cooks may have some highly arguable preferences for hens or toms for the Thanksgifing dinner. But it is not true one is better than the other, scoffs M. C. Small, executive director the National Turkey Federation, Mount Morris, Ill.

THE HEN is smaller and will have a little broader breast but not as deep a breast as the tom. Consumer preference studies show the most popular roasting turkey is 12 to 14 pounds, Small said. Figuring two pounds at most per serving, one gobbler is ample for most families.

Culinary skill is now being built into some turkeys with artifically added fat for self-basting. Turkey growing has become so highly specialized it is hard for even the novice not to turn out a perfect dinner.

Mom may know she does not deserve all the credit for her tasty gobbler.

But she still likes to hear: "It's delicious."

It's 'Work Season' for Red Kettles

Bright with fresh coats of paint for their 22-day "working season," the little red Christmas kettles of The Salvation Army will make their annual appearance in Chicago and suburbs Friday.

Placed at busy corners and shopping centers each day through Dec. 24, the kettles are the major appeal to the public for help in bringing Christmas cheer and other assistance to more than 48,000 distressed people in the metropolitan Chicago area.

"Applications for special Christmas assistance are already flooding in, and it looks as though The Salvation Army's shopping list will be longer than ever this year," said Lt. Col. Gordon A. Foubister, commander of the Northern Illinois Division and director of Greater Chicago Activities.

"On the other hand, because Thanksgiving comes so late this year, the Christmas kettles will be on the streets a much shorter time than usual.

"This means we have fewer days in which to raise the money needed for our Christmas and day-to-day work with the troubled."

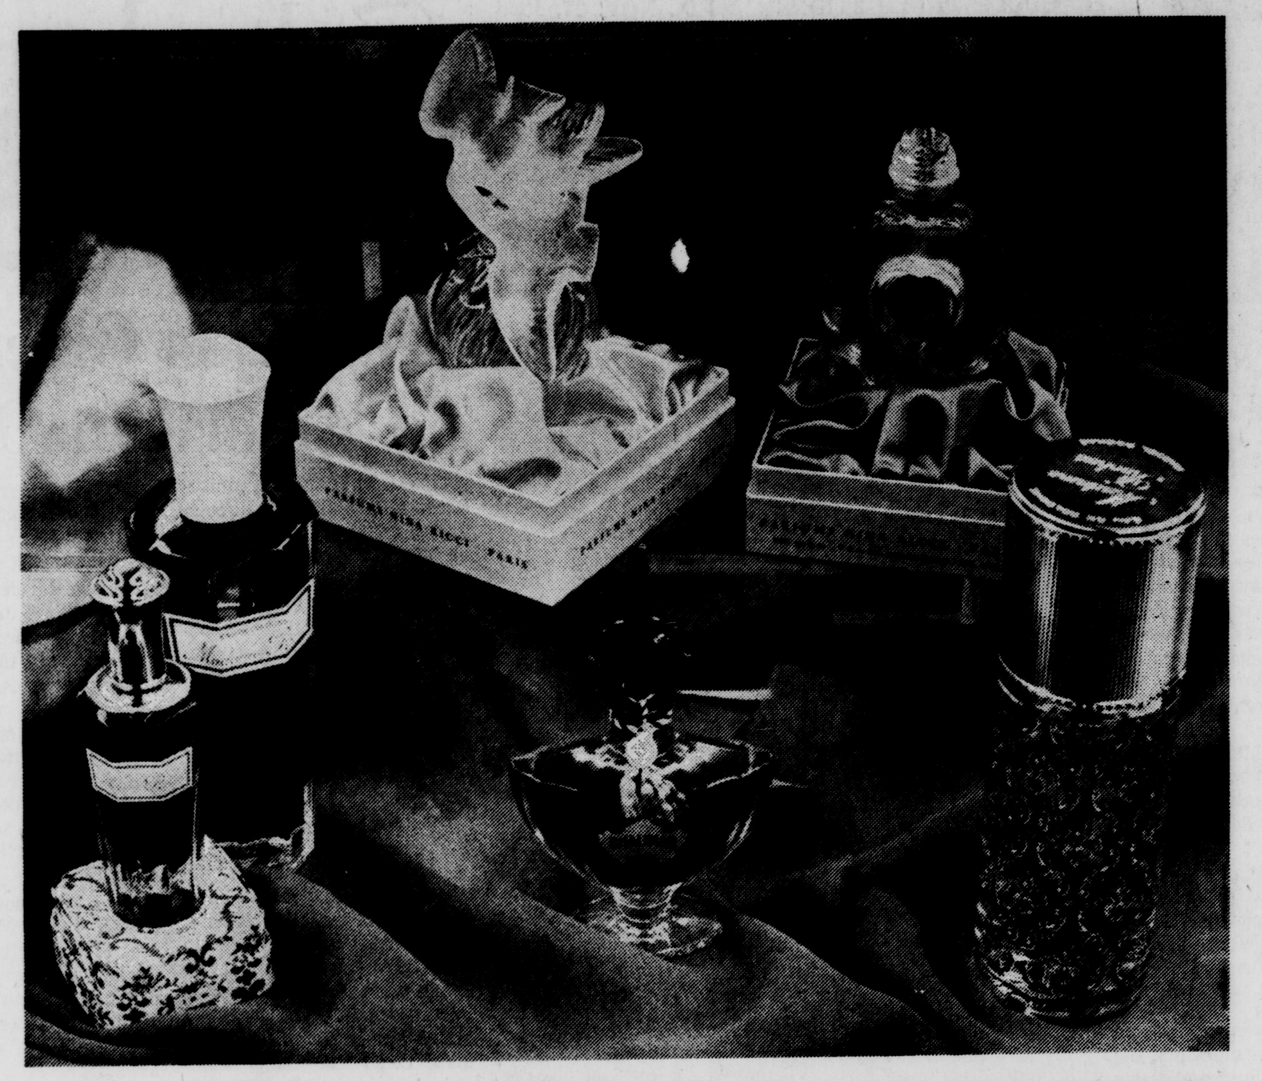
APPEALING TO BOTH eye and nose, Yardley's newest offering, Khadine, is an Oriental scent packaged in a colorful Mediterranean floral motif. It's available in a complete line of perfumes, bath products and such extras as sachets and pomander for scenting closets and drawers.



PRACTICALLY ALL fragrances come in attractive containers, but some perfume manufacturers offer more — bottles designed to add beauty to a lady's vanity table long after the fragrance has been used. Nina Ricci perfumes, for example, are bottled in the famous Lalique glass made in France.

The New Fragrances

Your Scent Signature

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Stay as sweet as you are. If you have a favorite perfume that you consider your individual "scent signature," it's not too early to drop hints to Santa. But if you feel challenged in a world ready to send men to the moon . . . dare to experiment!

Well-known fragrances as well as new ones — available in perfume, toilet water, cologne, solid and spray plus bath accessories — presently are displayed in bright, imaginative packaging. The new scents, created by both the makers of long-time favorites and newcomers to the perfume market, utilize ancient perfume art and modern technology, and many stress the absence of alcohol.

PERHAPS BEST known for Old English Lavender, Yardley, for example, has introduced a new line, Khadine, an Oriental jewel of a perfume for "the totally fragrant woman." It's packaged in colorful floral wrapping of Mediterranean motif, and its advertising suggests that use of Khadine may reveal the mysterious allure of a favorite harem beauty.

However, before you choose any fragrance, test it on one of your pulse spots for at least 10 minutes. Perfume experts advise that you never choose a perfume before you wear it. And the longer you wear it, the more sure you can be you've made the right selection.

FABERGE, maker of Aphrodesia, Woodhue and Flambeau, presents a new collection now. Kiku is a series "inspired by ancient traditions of ritual bathing.'' Also touted as "shamelessly feminine," the Japanese fragrance is bottled in a miniature kettle-shaped container of bright yellow plastic.

Revlon offers fragrances "to express your personality." Its classical-modern blend of jasmine and sandalwood, Intimate, is presented as "a bridge from the familiar to the exotic," and Aquamarine, a light refreshing floral scent.

For its newest perfume, Revlon claims a new technique. Ultima, a blending of rare oils which release their full potency only upon contact with warm skin, has undisputed lasting qualities and changes subtly with individual application, according to Revlon's perfume artists.

NEWEST TO the perfume world are the couturier houses. Pierre Balmain and Raphael claim for The House of Revlon to have captured the grace and elegance of fashion in their new fragrances. Balmain offers Jolie Madame, a "mixed floral with modern day flair," and Vent Vert (green wind), a leafy-woody blend. Others in the Balmain collection are Pierre Balmain and Miss Balmain.

Raphael presents Replique (reply), made of jasmine and rose with undertones of incense, and Plaisir (pleasure), also of jasmine and roses but with woody notes.

Yves Saint Laurent asserts his Parfum Y is "the original that can't be copied." And Jean Patou promises us "the night, the hour, the minute and finally the 'Moment Supreme!' "

ATTRACTIVE packaging can help spur impulse buying. Ready for the holidays at reasonable prices, Helena Rubenstein's Heavensent sells in tiny angels. To cash in on the present ring fad among the young set, Helena Rubenstein offers ornate rings with "hidden secrets." Solid perfume is contained in a hollow under the stones . . . with matching vanity cases available.

Max Factor's Sophisticat in a choice of colored eyes and feathers to match holds flacons of Hypnotique and Primitif. Other attractive gift items from Coty: green and white pixies, the Muguet Kids, with miniature bottles of Muguet des Bois; the Informals, black and white penguins offering L'Aimant Emeraude.

FOR THE more discriminating woman there is her favorite fragrance bottled in a vanity table keepsake of emerald-cut crystal, exquisite gold or silver filigree and other attractive containers — frosted, fluted, fabric-coated and bejeweled.

Battle of the Bulge

A Sure Weapon To Fight Fat

by ANN CHELLMAN

When he told me that I was getting a bit too big for my britches, it wasn't because I was making the scene as queen of the western world. I blamed the new pre-soak laundry product . . . surely it was shrinking my bell-bottoms.

Years of holding my own at the meal table with no visible after effects had conditioned me to believe that I was one of the lucky ones who didn't gain weight. Hindsight told me the lasagna, the kolacky, the baklava and the sauerbrauten had taken their toll. My interesting continental tastes had effected a well-rounded character in my home. . . me.

I CHECKED down the list of former fatties I had known to glean the full scoop on how to lose five pounds fast. The egg dieter claimed a loss of 10 pounds in two weeks by eating only eggs. (I was too chicken to try it.) Gorging on grapefruit seemed like a sour proposition.

The "drinking-man's diet" had little merit. After three martinis before mealtime, you don't miss the mashed potatoes. Unfortunately this regimen is not a good idea for someone who is expected to be around later doing the dishes.

I talked to the lettuce, celery and carrot devotees but, considering the astronomical number of my children, decided all that "rabbit food" could have disastrous results.

THE "WON'T power" diet bombed — overwhelmed by my tremendous will power. I also failed miserably in my attempt to stick to the "exercise diet" which expounded the theory that chubbies should do "push-aways" from the table. Just didn't have enough strength in my arms, I guess.

Thin friends had a field day . . . one really fun person suggested the "Rockefeller diet" . . . all you eat is money. The alternative to this tasteless proposition was the "Wall Street" diet. You don't eat the money; you just sit around and worry about it.

It began to seem as though I'd never get a hot line on the quickest strategy for fighting fat, until I ran into a friend I hadn't seen in several weeks. She had that wan, emaciated look that I was striving to attain.

"MY DEAR, you are an absolute willow!" I gushed. "Tell me, what is your wondrous secret?"

I waited impatiently for the news. I even prodded a little, "Were you on some mad, mod, easy-do diet? Is it some new fad with a fancy name? What do they call it?"

She said they call it "intestinal flu."

Addison GOP Sets Yule Party

Addison Township Women's Republican Club will mark its 12th annual Christmas-party meeting with a 7:30 p.m. potluck supper Tuesday, Dec. 3. The party will also include a grab bag, games and a sing-along.

The affair will be held in the Addison Township Savings and Loan Association, Army Trail Plaza, Mill and Army Trail Roads, Addison. Guests are being invited by the members.

Happiness Is Helping a Mother

Helping a mother make Christmas merry for her children is the best way generous people in Chicagoland can help those less fortunate this holiday season, according to the Metropolitan Chicago Welfare Council's Christmas Clearing House.

"This means a gift of money that will give a mother the joy of Christmas shopping to buy her children what they need or what she knows they really want," explained Christmas Clearing House co-director, Mrs. Lewis Willner.

For the 23rd straight year, the Christmas Clearing House, a seasonal operation of the Community Referral Service of the Welfare Council of Metropolitan Chicago, is appealing to individuals, clubs, employee groups and business firms to help make Christmas merry for thousands of persons served by nearly 100 agencies and institutions serving children, older people, families, the sick and the handicapped.

It can be done with a telephone call to RAndolph 6-0363.

"WHILE A GIFT of money is at the top of our shopping list of Christmas needs," Mrs. Willner explained, "it does include other kinds of gifts. We have requests from agencies for indoor and outdoor athletic equipment, record players and records, and television sets.

"Also welcome are gifts suitable for teenagers and sturdy wheel toys that children in nurseries can use all year long. Gifts of canned goods and food staples are also welcome."

To make certain that gifts reach those for whom they are intended by Christmas, the Clearing House has set Wednesday, Dec. 18, as the cut-off date for calls and offers of gifts.

The Clearing House reports back to those who make money donations how their gifts are used, Mrs. Willner noted.

Toy Maker Explains the 'Play' Game

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK UPI—Let's say you have a hate on for the toy makers.

You don't like the way they brainwash children with their advertising; you think they make too many toys; you think a lot of toys are cheap.

Lots of people have such chips on their shoulders. Saul Robbins meets them at cocktail parties, at almost any place three or more adults gather.

THEY LET go when they find out Robbins is president of Remco Industries Inc. in Harrison, N. J. The firm makes toys.

Take the brain-washing, allegedly via television ads.

Robbins says the ad code is very tough. The code authority is the National Association of Broadcasters.

"You can't say, "Go ask your mother,' and you can't overglamorize.

"YOU HAVE to disclose what is included and excluded — say batteries. You have to show the toys in a realistic play setting."

As other manufacturers do, Robbins' firm subjects its toys to extensive play safety and abuse tests.

Some toys are dropped out a window 15 feet from the ground; others are pushed dnwn a staircase. One doll going through such tests was still playable after 150 drops.

Robbins, former president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, said there is such concern for safety that ingredients in his chemistry sets probably are edible.

A TOY IS considered a hot item if 500,000 units move off the shelves. A Remco doll that tumbles this year is expected to hit the 800,000 mark. Crafts and science kits are heading toward the 700,000 mark, Robbins said.

Robbins got into toys in 1949. He figured a way to make a toy out of surplus earphones. The item was a remote conrol, long distance phone type of toy. Other items followed and many had remote control features, hence the name Remco — containing parts of both words.

The toy man thinks parents tend to buy toys that are too sophisticated for their children. Many, for example, look at age-gradings on toy boxes and buy toys for the age group ahead of child's actual age.

SOME OTHER points made by Robbins:

—"Even with the amount of toys sold today, our children have less play opportunities than our generation had."

—"The move to suburbia has hindered play opportunities. Our children are landlocked on a small lot of land and a fancy house. No longer can they dig up the yard and play marbles because there is a $3,000 investment in landscaping. No longer do they have the mobility to run for a sandlot baseball game. They can't pick up roller skates and enjoy them. There are no sidewalks."

IN SOME ways the children who live in housing projects in the cities have greater play opportunities.

They don't have vacant lots, but they have playgrounds. And they seldom complain to their mothers:

"I can't find anyone to play ball."

Madame President

Volunteer Opportunities Challenge Her the Most

by JUDY TREMORE

"There are other things in the world to participate in and do than play bridge," says Mrs. Paul Griffin of Palatine.

The president of Associate Newcomers of Arlington Heights practices this beilef by spending time each month at Great Lakes Naval Hospital at parties for the servicemen. In the past she was a driver in the Red Cross motor corps and she spent 12 years as a volunteer at a children's hospital in Denver, Colo.

In addition Margaret spent less interesting hours counting money and returned seals for the Easter Seal Society in Denver.

The Griffins came to Palatine five years ago when Mr. Griffin was transferred to the United Airlines offices here after 15 years in Denver.

AN ACTIVE Newcomer in Denver who was elected an honorary membership, she joined the Arlington Heights Newcomers and served as luncheon chairman and vice president.

For the Associates she was luncheon chairman also, a job she first held in Denver before being made a director of that group.

Bowling with the ladies and couples, and bridge have been Margaret's favorite activities.

Her volunteer work at Great Lakes is her main activity as a member of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club which she joined three years ago.

Margaret loves to cook and says she did a lot of "fancy" cooking in Denver which she calls "a party town." She thought nothing of having and serving for seven tables of bridge there.

THE GRIFFINS loved to drive through the mountains and stop to cook lunch before heading home.

She was a Red Cross driver because her husband heard a radio advertisement for drivers and encouraged her "because you're a good driver."

Margaret found the work rewarding and said it was one good way to make her realize how fortunate she and her husband are.

BEJEWELED CHRISTMAS tree is the creation of Mrs. Paul Griffin, president of Arlington Heights Associate Newcomers, who was active in Newcomers activities in Denver before moving to Palatine five years ago.

(Staff Photo)

Though the couple could travel a lot, Margaret says they haven't done too much. Mr. Griffin was on the go so much with his job that when he had a vacation it was more enjoyable to stay home.

When he retires next year, however, the couple will probably visit friends and travel more frequently.

MARGARET realxes best with a book or by playing solitaire while she's watching TV.

She has several antique dishes and says she can't resist old pitchers. She admits she goes to antique shops only occasionally because she doesn't know enough about antiques.

Her philosophy is, "If I like it, I buy it."

Hello Hostess

December Almanac For the Hostess

by MARY KAY MARSH

The Christmas season seems to start earlier and last longer every year. So we thought it might be a public service to mention other December red-letter days, just to give you something a little different to celebrate.

Let's see. Dec. 1 is Independence Day in Portugal. The 2nd is Pan American Health Day. Dec. 3 is birthday day for Illinois (1818) — and for Roland Hill, who introduced the first postage stamp. (Have you bought stamps for all your Christmas cards yet? For that matter, have you bought your Christmas cards?)

Carlyle was born Dec. 4. Martin Van Buren and General Custer had birthdays on the 5th. Dec. 6 is St. Nicholas Day. (And my, that name's familiar, too.)

DEC. 7 is Delaware Day, commemorating the 179th anniversary of the ratification of our Consitution by the first state to do so. The 8th is Bodhi Day in Hawaii, and both Milton and Joel Chandler Harris were born on Dec. 9.

Dec. 10 is the day of the Nobel Peace Prize Presentation in Stockholm. (Peace on earth — what a wonderful thought.)

Indiana became a state on Dec. 11, 1816. On Dec. 12, 1955, the Ford Foundation announced a $500 million gift to educational and other institutions, a record-breaking bequest made in the history of philanthropy. (And have you finished your Christmas shopping yet?)

Dec. 13 is St. Lucia's Day. (That's Christmas-y, too.) And Amundsen reached the South Pole on Dec. 14, 1911. (Though we're more interested in the North Pole at this time of year.)

DEC. 15 is Human Rights Day. It's also the anniversary of the birth of Dr. L. L. Zamenhof, founder of the International Language, Esperanto. (Who needs Esperanto to wish the world a Merry Christmas? The feeling's international.)

Posadas (nationwide Christmas celebrations) begin in Mexico on Dec. 16. The 17th marks the first airplane flight by the Wright Brothers. (And wasn't it thoughtful of them to come up with the airplane, so all the kids can make it home for Christmas?)

MacDowell was born on Dec. 18. And the 19th is the birthdate of Enrice Rastelli, the only juggler in history able to juggle 10 balls or 8 plates. (You probably know just how he felt, as you juggle all those Christmas lists.) The U.S. took title to the Louisiana Purchase on Dec. 20, 1803. (Such a nice Christmas present for a young country!)

DEC. 21 is Forefather's Day, commemorating the 1620 landing at Plymouth Rock. (And wasn't it good planning that they got here just in time for Christmas? Though we don't suppose they paid much attention to it.)

But YOU might as well. This is just that time of year when the season's the reason — and a wonderful reason it is to celebrate.

PARTY LINE: Here's an unusual recipe for a spiced tea. The Indiana reader who sent it suggests this for the Sugar 'n Spice Party of a few weeks back. This ready-mix gives a warm and instant welcome to drop-in guests. Try it, too, when you become a droopy "drop-out" from Christmas preparations.

Hot Spiced Tea: Mix together 2 cups Tang, 2 cups sugar, 1 small package lemonade mix (sweetened), 2 t. cinnamon, 1 t. ground cloves, ½ cup instant tea. To serve, put 2-3 teaspoons of mix in a cup and fill with boiling water.

Tribute Is Given To American ORT

Tribute to ORT's (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) global program of vocational education and training was given last Friday, by the Beth Tikvah Congregation in a special ORT Sabbath observance. Rabbi Hillel Gamoran, spiritual leader of the congregation, officiated in the service, which was similar to hundreds of others held in synagogues and temples throughout the nation.

"These observances honored the work of ORT, the vocational training program of the Jewish people, whose operations have provided security, dignity and independence to more than a million impoverished, persecuted and uprooted Jews since it began in 1880," stated Mrs. Burton Sokolsky of Lake County Region of Women's American ORT. ORT Sabbath in the United States is sponsored by Women's American ORT, the largest ORT group in the world, whose 600 chapters from coast to coast comprise a membership of 80,000.

MRS. SOKOLSKY also commented, "ORT Sabbath gives us an opportunity to join with our co-religionists in a ceremony of thanksigiving for what ORT has been able to achieve during its nearly nine decades of existence. Countless thousands of our fellow Jews in dire need have been given new life and livelihood because of the ORT training that they were able to receive in so many countries of the world."

"ORT Sabbath," she continued, "is as well a time for us to rededicate ourselves to the task ahead of us. The great problems that are faced by the young and threatened democracy of Israel are of great concern to us and we know that the efforts of the ORT network of this nation, the largest single ORT network in the world, play a decisive role in aiding Israel to solve her problems and meet the challenges of the future."

"And we know," she concluded, "that wherever Jews are in need throughout the world, wherever economic and political insecurity and instability threaten them, ORT will, and must, come to their assistance."

ORT, AS THE largest nongovernmental vocational training agency in the world, currently operates 600 vocational installations in 22 countries on five continents, Mrs. Sokolsky reported. She added that it teaches 70 modern skills, ranging from fashion designing to electronics.

Women's American ORT is a nationwide membership organization, affiliated with the American ORT Federation, which currently receives funds, exclusive of membership dues, from the Joint Distribution Committee, a member agency of the United Jewish Appeal.

Nehru Look Is Out In Formal Tuxedos

CHICAGO(UPI)—The Nehru look is dead, according to men's fashion authority Benjamin Gingiss.

The president of Gingiss Formalwear said his firm plans to call back all Nehru formal tuxedos sold by the chain to its customers.

"We must keep faith with our customers," he said. "When a man buys a formal outfit from our company, he has a right to expect that it will stay in style for a reasonable time.

"The Nehru formal dinner jacket had a life cycle of less than six months," Gingiss added.

GINGISS SAID use of the Nehru suit by "a few men on the stage created a flurry of interest which made it necessary for us to carry them.

"All customers who have purchased 'The Nehru' from Gingiss will be entitled to return this suit and receive in exchange a tuxedo with longer style expectancy," Gingiss said.

As for disposing of the Nehrus, Gingiss said he most likely will "send them back to India."

Elk Grove VFW Unit Paid Up

Elk Grove Village VFW Auxiliary was one of two Auxiliaries in the entire VFW Fourth District to receive an award for 100 per cent paid membership by the deadline date of Nov. 16. The award was given the men at the Fourth District Round-Up dinner that evening in Cicero.

Attending from Elk Grove were the local Post 9284 Commander Jack Keenan; Mrs. Robert Hake, Auxiliary president; Mrs. Robert Christensen, Auxiliary senior vice president; their spouses, and Mr. and Mrs. John Pingel.

Membership in the VFW Auxiliary is open to any woman whose husband, father, brother or son has fought in service on foreign soil. Mrs. Christensen may be called at 439-2821 for details.

Bethel Girls Hold Candy Fund Sale

The month of November and first week of December is fund-raising time for members of Illinois Bethels of the International Order of Jobs Daughters, and Bethel 103, Arlington Heights, is a most active participant. Proceeds from the sale go to both state and local philanthropic and organization work for the girls.

The timing is geared to the holiday season, because the candy selections make attractive, easy gifts.

ADDITIONAL information about the Bethel or the candy sale may be obtained from Mrs. M. Savino at 437-0138.

Jobs Daughters is open to girls from 12 through their teens, with Masonic affiliations.

Review Follows Social Period

A book review by Martha Hopkins will follow a coffee period at the Tuesday, Dec. 3 meeting at 1 p.m. of the Plum Grove Club Women's Auxiliary.

Guests are welcome to the meeting during which Mrs. Hopkins will discuss "John Elliott, Apostle to the Indians," by Ola Elizabeth Winslow, a story dealing with the translating of the Bible into the language of the American Indian.

Further information may be obtained by calling 358-6827.

Moose Women Set Smorgasbord

Des Plaines Women of the Moose are inviting all area families to dine at their smorgasbord Sunday, Dec. 8, at the Moose Lodge, River Road just north of Rand Road. Both hot and cold foods, desserts and beverage will be available.

Serving will be from 1 to 6 p.m.

Members of the sponsoring group will also be selling bazaar items for Christmas shoppers.

Blood Technologists Earn Workshop Grants

Blood bank technologists from two area hospitals were awarded grants to attend a workshop on blood banking techniques from the Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan at the recent Blood Donor Month kick-off luncheon.

Mrs. Dorothy Lamoureux of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, and Mrs. Betty Erickson of Memorial Hospital of DuPage County will attend advanced blood banking seminars at either Dade Reagents, Inc., Miami, Fla., or at Ortho Pharmaceuticals, Raritan, N.J. in 1969. The women were among 25 selected from the 53 participating hospitals.

"THESE AWARDS will help maintain the high standards of each Cooperative Blood Replacement Plan member hospital," stated Dr. Frank E. Trobaugh, president of CBRP and director of the blood bank at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital.

CBRP, presently celebrating its 12th anniversary, is a nonprofit organization which serves as an intermediary between blood banks and donors, each assuring the other of an unlimited supply of fresh whole blood.

A ONE-PINT blood donation, made at any of the 53 member-hospitals and blood banks, becomes the "premium for a policy" which assures the donor of unlimited free blood replacement anywhere in the United States. Also, each membership donation aids the participating hospital in maintaining its inventory of whole blood.

A one-pint blood donation provides unlimited free blood replacement for an individual for four years, a husband and wife team for two years, or an entire family (including all children under 19 years of age) for one year.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines are among hospitals offering the plan.

Madame President

Volunteer Opportunities Challenge Her the Most

by JUDY TREMORE

"There are other things in the world to participate in and do than play bridge," says Mrs. Paul Griffin of Palatine.

The president of Associate Newcomers of Arlington Heights practices this beilef by spending time each month at Great Lakes Naval Hospital at parties for the servicemen. In the past she was a driver in the Red Cross motor corps and she spent 12 years as a volunteer at a children's hospital in Denver, Colo.

In addition Margaret spent less interesting hours counting money and returned seals for the Easter Seal Society in Denver.

The Griffins came to Palatine five years ago when Mr. Griffin was transferred to the United Airlines offices here after 15 years in Denver.

AN ACTIVE Newcomer in Denver who was elected an honorary membership, she joined the Arlington Heights Newcomers and served as luncheon chairman and vice president.

For the Associates she was luncheon chairman also, a job she first held in Denver before being made a director of that group.

Bowling with the ladies and couples, and bridge have been Margaret's favorite activities.

Her volunteer work at Great Lakes is her main activity as a member of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club which she joined three years ago.

Margaret loves to cook and says she did a lot of "fancy" cooking in Denver which she calls "a party town." She thought nothing of having and serving for seven tables of bridge there.

THE GRIFFINS loved to drive through the mountains and stop to cook lunch before heading home.

She was a Red Cross driver because her husband heard a radio advertisement for drivers and encouraged her "because you're a good driver."

Margaret found the work rewarding and said it was one good way to make her realize how fortunate she and her husband are.

BEJEWELED CHRISTMAS tree is the creation of Mrs. Paul Griffin, president of Arlington Heights Associate Newcomers, who was active in Newcomers activities in Denver before moving to Palatine five years ago.

(Staff Photo)

Though the couple could travel a lot, Margaret says they haven't done too much. Mr. Griffin was on the go so much with his job that when he had a vacation it was more enjoyable to stay home.

When he retires next year, however, the couple will probably visit friends and travel more frequently.

MARGARET realxes best with a book or by playing solitaire while she's watching TV.

She has several antique dishes and says she can't resist old pitchers. She admits she goes to antique shops only occasionally because she doesn't know enough about antiques.

Her philosophy is, "If I like it, I buy it."

Hello Hostess

December Almanac For the Hostess

by MARY KAY MARSH

The Christmas season seems to start earlier and last longer every year. So we thought it might be a public service to mention other December red-letter days, just to give you something a little different to celebrate.

Let's see. Dec. 1 is Independence Day in Portugal. The 2nd is Pan American Health Day. Dec. 3 is birthday day for Illinois (1818) — and for Roland Hill, who introduced the first postage stamp. (Have you bought stamps for all your Christmas cards yet? For that matter, have you bought your Christmas cards?)

Carlyle was born Dec. 4. Martin Van Buren and General Custer had birthdays on the 5th. Dec. 6 is St. Nicholas Day. (And my, that name's familiar, too.)

DEC. 7 is Delaware Day, commemorating the 179th anniversary of the ratification of our Consitution by the first state to do so. The 8th is Bodhi Day in Hawaii, and both Milton and Joel Chandler Harris were born on Dec. 9.

Dec. 10 is the day of the Nobel Peace Prize Presentation in Stockholm. (Peace on earth — what a wonderful thought.)

Indiana became a state on Dec. 11, 1816. On Dec. 12, 1955, the Ford Foundation announced a $500 million gift to educational and other institutions, a record-breaking bequest made in the history of philanthropy. (And have you finished your Christmas shopping yet?)

Dec. 13 is St. Lucia's Day. (That's Christmas-y, too.) And Amundsen reached the South Pole on Dec. 14, 1911. (Though we're more interested in the North Pole at this time of year.)

DEC. 15 is Human Rights Day. It's also the anniversary of the birth of Dr. L. L. Zamenhof, founder of the International Language, Esperanto. (Who needs Esperanto to wish the world a Merry Christmas? The feeling's international.)

Posadas (nationwide Christmas celebrations) begin in Mexico on Dec. 16. The 17th marks the first airplane flight by the Wright Brothers. (And wasn't it thoughtful of them to come up with the airplane, so all the kids can make it home for Christmas?)

MacDowell was born on Dec. 18. And the 19th is the birthdate of Enrice Rastelli, the only juggler in history able to juggle 10 balls or 8 plates. (You probably know just how he felt, as you juggle all those Christmas lists.) The U.S. took title to the Louisiana Purchase on Dec. 20, 1803. (Such a nice Christmas present for a young country!)

DEC. 21 is Forefather's Day, commemorating the 1620 landing at Plymouth Rock. (And wasn't it good planning that they got here just in time for Christmas? Though we don't suppose they paid much attention to it.)

But YOU might as well. This is just that time of year when the season's the reason — and a wonderful reason it is to celebrate.

Carole Lee Renner Becomes Mrs. Lawrence Richardson

After a 10-day honeymoon in the Bahamas and in Miami, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Richardson are living in Arlington Heights and working in a nearby suburb. They exchanged vows and rings Oct. 19 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, and were then feted at a reception at the Carousel Restaurant.

The bride is the former Carol Lee Renner, daughter of the William Renners of 1202 Orchard Drive, Prospect Heights. The groom's parents are the John Richardsons of 628 Larkdale Lane, Mount Prospect.

THE NEWLYWEDS both attended Prospect High School, the bride in the class of '64 and the groom a '63 graduate.

Their wedding was performed amid a bridal white and turquoise color scheme. The bride's attendants were all gowned alike in turquoise velvet and crepe, the empire bodice of velvet trimmed with satin ribbon and featuring elbow-length puffed sleeves. The sheath skirt was of crepe.

All three wore a matching bow headpiece with a shoulder-length veil and carried white feathered fuji mums surrounding turquoise-tinted pompons.

MRS. JOAN Corman of York, Pa., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Cheryl Johnson, Spring Lake, N. C., and Joanne Richardson, the groom's sister.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a white satin A-line gown with a chapel train. The empire bodice and long sleeves were trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace, and the bride's headpiece was a cluster of roses made of matching lace and satin. Her illusion veil was triple-tiered and elbow-length.

White glamellias and stephanotis composed her cascade bouquet.

ROBERT LANGE of Rolling Meadows was best man, and ushers were David Pistorious, Rolling Meadows, and Lawrence Malburg, Buffalo Grove.

For the 3 o'clock ceremony, performed by Father Robert Strzelecki, the bride's mother wore a coat and dress ensemble of aqua brocade with matching hat and shoes. Mrs. Richardson's ensemble was in beige, and both mothers had a white orchid corsage.

ONE HUNDRED fifty guests greeted the newlyweds at the dinner reception immediately after the rites.

Upon returning from their honeymoon, the couple are living at 1 S. Dryden in Arlington Heights. The bride works for Parker-Hannifin Corp. and the groom for Mid-American Electric Co., both in Des Plaines.

Dec. 4 Club Program Features Violinist

Acclaimed by music critics as "a splendid violinist," Francois D'Albert will give a recital at the regular meeting of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club Wednesday, Dec. 4, at 1:15 p.m. in Recreation Park Field House.

Dr. D'Albert, president of the Chicago Conservatory College, was born in Hungary and made his American debut in 1956 at Cleveland's Severence Hall.

EDUCATED AT the Royal Liszt Academy of Music in Budapest, Dr. D'Albert was a member of the mast class of Eugene Hubay, and later won the national Hubay Prize. He made his official debut under the baton of the late Ernst von Dohnanyi and has appeared with major orchestras of Vienna, Hamburg, Paris, Oslo, Stockholm, Helsinki, Dublin, Belfast, Geneva and Montreal.

Hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Carleton Heiberger and Mrs. G. M. Kendrick.

'Victorian Mod' Show Proves Not So Mod

It became apparent to the 300 guests at the recent Prospect Heights Woman's Club fashion show that the "Year of the Victorian Mod" is not so mod. The crowd expected to see a great number of "way out" styles, according to the show's title, but they found most of the ensembles much more conservative.

Coat and dress ensembles, in a range of fabrics from satins to wools in rich and vibrant hues, drew the greatest applause from the audience.

ALL OF THE hemlines were longer, a turnabout from the mini skirt, which prompted many a remark that the fashions were refreshing and beautiful as compared to the many mod styles of today

The show, which took place after luncheon in the Sheraton O'Hare Inn, featured ensembles from Queen's Ransom of Barrington. Mrs. Carol Herrmann was commentator.

A HIGHLIGHT of the afternoon was an auction conducted by Mrs. Kenneth Sandstrom, former ways and means chairman. A painting by the ex-president Mrs. Robert Wroble was auctioned, and Mrs. Bayard Kelly, club secretary, was the buyer. The painting was done on a piece of antique wood.

Last year Mrs. Wroble won an award at the 7th District meeting for one of her paintings.

'Victorian Mod' Show Proves Not So Mod

It became apparent to the 300 guests at the recent Prospect Heights Woman's Club fashion show that the "Year of the Victorian Mod" is not so mod. The crowd expected to see a great number of "way out" styles, according to the show's title, but they found most of the ensembles much more conservative.

Coat and dress ensembles, in a range of fabrics from satins to wools in rich and vibrant hues, drew the greatest applause from the audience.

ALL OF THE hemlines were longer, a turnabout from the mini skirt, which prompted many a remark that the fashions were refreshing and beautiful as compared to the many mod styles of today

The show, which took place after luncheon in the Sheraton O'Hare Inn, featured ensembles from Queen's Ransom of Barrington. Mrs. Carol Herrmann was commentator.

A HIGHLIGHT of the afternoon was an auction conducted by Mrs. Kenneth Sandstrom, former ways and means chairman. A painting by the ex-president Mrs. Robert Wroble was auctioned, and Mrs. Bayard Kelly, club secretary, was the buyer. The painting was done on a piece of antique wood.

Last year Mrs. Wroble won an award at the 7th District meeting for one of her paintings.

Forecast for Spring

'Do Your Own Thing,' Say Coast Designers

by JOAN SWEENEY

LOS ANGELES UPI — The trend in California dress and suit fashions for spring is that there is no trend.

"Do your own thing" seemed to be the theme for the dress and suit story, presented last week at the California fashions creators' annual Press Week.

Some designers favored softly shaped skimmers, others the belted look with fluid-pleated or A-shaped skirts. Jumpers, coat dresses and the shirtwaist all were there. Belts often were of patent, and scarves added color to many dresses.

HEMLINES WERE still above the knee, but no minis appeared. The length of suit jackets meandered from the waist to the lower hips and when at the longer length might be belted at the waist.

Pants were conspicuously absent in view of the past current craze for them.

Mr. Blackwell, one of the designers who had little use for pants, said:

"The fashion industry reminds me of the Asian flu. As soon as one gets it, everybody gets it. There are just too many pants taking the place of dresses. It's important that a woman be given the right to look like a woman."

BLACKWELL, WHOSE previous collections have often been notable primarily for their flamboyance, achieved elegance this time around with his subdued collection of beautifully detailed skimmers, costumes and evening wear.

One of his body flattering white skimmers had multi-colored jeweling from the line of the bust to waist. His white mohair coat with elbow length sleeves was worn over a white wool skimmer.

Georgette Trilere for Trimar preferred to belt, often in patent, her dresses with swinging skirts that were softly pleated or fluid.

SHE FAVORED coat dresses such as one in gray silk tweed with a wide black patent belt and portrait collar. Her jumpers could be worn with or without blouses.

Edith Flagg offered a collection of smart skimmers and costumes at moderate prices.

"I keep in mind the professional girl," she said. "I try to appeal to girls who like to be well dressed and stylish but have a budget."

Many of her dresses were crimplene, a washable wool-like polyester that should be perfect for the busy career girl.

SHE PERPETUATED a delightful jumper frog - a lilac crimplene dress with white sleeves and blouse detail.

Don Loper paired an "Americana" plaid coat that sported wide, wide lapels with a simple white silk linen dress. The gathered skirt of the dress was fastened at the natural waist with a red belt.

For evening drama, he created a draped white silk jersey gown with a silver bugle-beaded diagonal band below the bust that rose to a single jeweled shoulder strap. Its companion was a flowing floor-length cape of the same material that fastened at the back of the neck.

CHICAGO WATER GOES SOFT

New Miracle Laundry Product "Anything Goes!" Softens Wash Water To Remove Stains Safely

If you live in Chicago, we don't have to tell you about the frustrations of trying to get clothes to sparkle in hard water.

Instead, we'll tell you how "Anything Goes" softens your wash water.

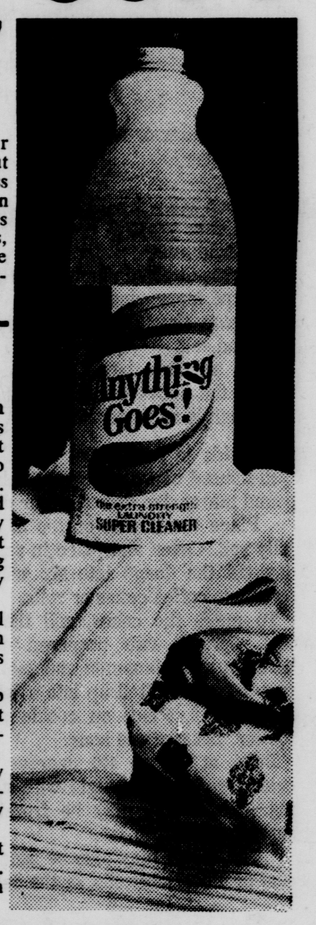
It conditions the water. Actually softens it so detergent can work more efficiently. It "paves the way" for cleaning so you get the full benefit of detergent strength.

You'll be prouder of your whites than you've ever been before.

Your colors will zing.

All over the Chicagoland area women are reporting how beautifully "Anything Goes" works.

Even in the hardest water "Anything Goes" helps lift out stains, restores original whiteness to clothes, works like magic on permanent press fabrics, cuts detergent costs, brightens clothes, is perfectly safe on any washable fabric or color, and is unconditionally guaranteed.



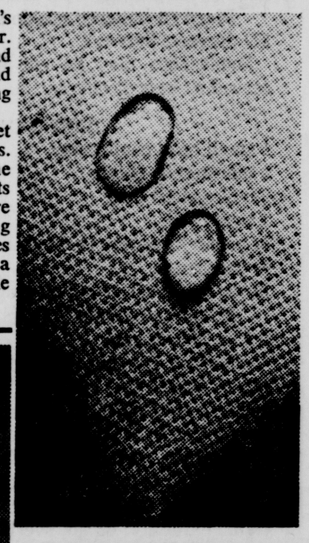
Chicago Housewives Agree: "Best for Puppy Stains, White Socks & Permanent Press"

"She's just a puppy," reported Mrs. J. F. "And had an accident on the bed. I soaked the bedding in 'Anything Goes' and now there isn't a mark or a stain. With the other brand I have to put a non-chlorine bleach in, plus the whitener in order to get the stain out properly. And even then it doesn't always come out."

"I've also noticed that my son's socks come out looking whiter. He plays on a softball league and those boys take their shoes off and run around in the dirt. 'Anything Goes' takes care of the stains."

"'Anything Goes' seems to get the whole stain out," says Mrs. R. J. "My oldest boy wears the permanent press trousers and gets grass stains on them which are very hard to get out. 'Anything Goes' gets them clean. Most times you use something and there's a little bit left. This gets the whole stain out."

Permanent Press Comes Clean!



As ironing becomes easier with miracle fabrics, washing becomes a headache. Stains on permanent press, spandex and the like, too easily become permanent fixtures.

That's because the resins and fibers in miracle fabrics actually repel water and detergents. It often takes minutes of soaking time just to get them thoroughly wet.

"Anything Goes" changes all that. By conditioning your wash water, permanent press clothes become saturated faster.

"Anything Goes" gets deep down between the fibers—without breaking them down in the process.

"Anything Goes" is absolutely safe to these new washable miracle fabrics. Just as it's safe to any natural fiber you can wash.

It is not a bleach. It will not burn, corrode, or harm fabrics. What it will do is help get them clean again.

Can Cut Detergent Costs in Half

When you use "Anything Goes" in a wash, you can use up to 50% less detergent. 50% less.

Yet the clothes still come out looking white and bright. They stay newer looking too, because there's less laundry sludge left in them.

The reason is that "Anything Goes" conditions your wash water. It paves the way for cleaning so you get more mileage from your detergent. Any detergent works better and more efficiently.

Clothes Escape Premature "Laundry Death"

If you read the washing instructions on today's delicate fabrics, you know that a good strong bleach means "sudden death" for many of them.

A good strong detergent takes a lot more time—but detergents can also remove life from clothes.

Fibers get listless before their time. Bright things get dull. White things get yellow or grey with buildup.

That's because most detergents contain harsh chemicals to condition the wash water. They do the job, all right, but it's a high price to pay. Your clothes are slowly being chemicalized to death.

When you use "Anything Goes" in a load you don't need all those additional chemicals to soften the water. "Anything Goes" is the water conditioner.

You can use up to 50% less detergent and still get things good and clean. And, of course, you don't have to use bleach at all.

You'll soon see the symptoms of "laundry death" disappearing.

Washes Out Stains: Safe For Any Washable Fabric

"Anything Goes" takes a little getting used to.

It lifts out stains like a powerful magnet. And at the same time "refreshes" your clothes—makes them look more like they looked when you bought them.

Yet "Anything Goes" is completely safe. So safe, in fact, you can actually pour it directly from the bottle right on to any washable fabric. It will not burn the fabric. It will not harm it. It will not dull the color.

This unusual quality makes it ideal for colored things, permanent press clothes, and other wash and wear fabrics that chlorine bleach should never be used on.

And because it is so safe you can even use it undiluted.

"I keep in mind the professional girl," she said. "I try to appeal to girls who like to be well dressed and stylish but have a budget."

Many of her dresses were crimplene, a washable wool-like polyester that should be perfect for the busy career girl.

SHE PERPETUATED a delightful jumper frog - a lilac crimplene dress with white sleeves and blouse detail.

Don Loper paired an "Americana" plaid coat that sported wide, wide lapels with a simple white silk linen dress. The gathered skirt of the dress was fastened at the natural waist with a red belt.

For evening drama, he created a draped white silk jersey gown with a silver bugle-beaded diagonal band below the bust that rose to a single jeweled shoulder strap. Its companion was a flowing floor-length cape of the same material that fastened at the back of the neck.

CHICAGO WATER GOES SOFT

New Miracle Laundry Product "Anything Goes!" Softens Wash Water To Remove Stains Safely

If you live in Chicago, we don't have to tell you about the frustrations of trying to get clothes to sparkle in hard water.

Instead, we'll tell you how "Anything Goes" softens your wash water.

It conditions the water. Actually softens it so detergent can work more efficiently. It "paves the way" for cleaning so you get the full benefit of detergent strength.

You'll be prouder of your whites than you've ever been before.

Your colors will zing.

All over the Chicagoland area women are reporting how beautifully "Anything Goes" works.

Even in the hardest water "Anything Goes" helps lift out stains, restores original whiteness to clothes, works like magic on permanent press fabrics, cuts detergent costs, brightens clothes, is perfectly safe on any washable fabric or color, and is unconditionally guaranteed.

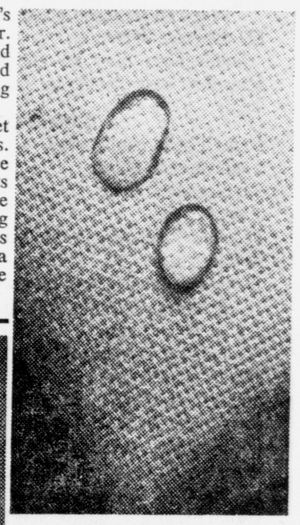
Chicago Housewives Agree: "Best for Puppy Stains, White Socks & Permanent Press"

"She's just a puppy," reported Mrs. J. F. "And had an accident on the bed. I soaked the bedding in 'Anything Goes' and now there isn't a mark or a stain. With the other brand I have to put a non-chlorine bleach in, plus the whitener in order to get the stain out properly. And even then it doesn't always come out."

"I've also noticed that my son's socks come out looking whiter. He plays on a softball league and those boys take their shoes off and run around in the dirt. 'Anything Goes' takes care of the stains."

"'Anything Goes' seems to get the whole stain out," says Mrs. R. J. "My oldest boy wears the permanent press trousers and gets grass stains on them which are very hard to get out. 'Anything Goes' gets them clean. Most times you use something and there's a little bit left. This gets the whole stain out."

Permanent Press Comes Clean!



As ironing becomes easier with miracle fabrics, washing becomes a headache. Stains on permanent press, spandex and the like, too easily become permanent fixtures.

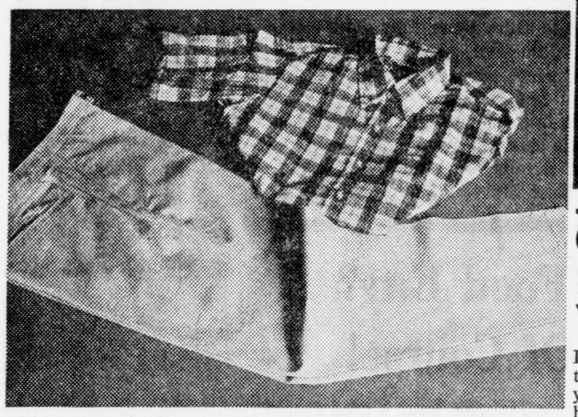
That's because the resins and fibers in miracle fabrics actually repel water and detergents. It often takes minutes of soaking time just to get them thoroughly wet.

"Anything Goes" changes all that. By conditioning your wash water, permanent press clothes become saturated faster.

"Anything Goes" gets deep down between the fibers—without breaking them down in the process.

"Anything Goes" is absolutely safe to these new washable miracle fabrics. Just as it's safe to any natural fiber you can wash.

It is not a bleach. It will not burn, corrode, or harm fabrics. What it will do is help get them clean again.



Can Cut Detergent Costs in Half

When you use "Anything Goes" in a wash, you can use up to 50% less detergent. 50% less.

Yet the clothes still come out looking white and bright. They stay newer looking too, because there's less laundry sludge left in them.

The reason is that "Anything Goes" conditions your wash water. It paves the way for cleaning so you get more mileage from your detergent. Any detergent works better and more efficiently.

Clothes Escape Premature "Laundry Death"

If you read the washing instructions on today's delicate fabrics, you know that a good strong bleach means "sudden death" for many of them.

A good strong detergent takes a lot more time—but detergents can also remove life from clothes.

Fibers get listless before their time. Bright things get dull. White things get yellow or grey with buildup.

That's because most detergents contain harsh chemicals to condition the wash water. They do the job, all right, but it's a high price to pay. Your clothes are slowly being chemicalized to death.

When you use "Anything Goes" in a load you don't need all those additional chemicals to soften the water. "Anything Goes" is the water conditioner.

You can use up to 50% less detergent and still get things good and clean. And, of course, you don't have to use bleach at all.

You'll soon see the symptoms of "laundry death" disappearing.

Washes Out Stains: Safe For Any Washable Fabric

"Anything Goes" takes a little getting used to.

It lifts out stains like a powerful magnet. And at the same time "refreshes" your clothes—makes them look more like they looked when you bought them.

Yet "Anything Goes" is completely safe. So safe, in fact, you can actually pour it directly from the bottle right on to any washable fabric. It will not burn the fabric. It will not harm it. It will not dull the color.

This unusual quality makes it ideal for colored things, permanent press clothes, and other wash and wear fabrics that chlorine bleach should never be used on.

And because it is so safe you can even use it undiluted.

She Guarantees This Yeast Recipe Is Easy, Foolproof

by LOIS SEILER

Those who have been afraid to try yeast recipes can take heart from Mrs. Hal C. Smith's experience.

"It took me seven years to muster the courage to work with yeast," Barbara Smith explained, "and the coffee cake recipe I tried was such a success that I've never worried about yeast recipes since."

The coffee cake has continued to be a favorite of hers for the past five years and Barbara guarantees that it is foolproof.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Bobby Smith helps his mother, Mrs. Hal Smith of Arlington Heights, drizzle a confectioners sugar icing over her homemade coffee cakes and rolls. This good cook uses an easy, foolproof yeast recipe that makes enough dough for six large coffee cakes, or the dough can be divided and used as necessary for coffee cakes and rolls. They are rich and buttery with an excellent texture and delicious flavor.

"I acquired the recipe from a friend of mine, who had it passed down in her family for generations," Barbara remarked.

"I've never seen a recipe like it in a cookbook, and it is so simple to make," she added.

THERE IS no kneading other than working in the original amount of flour, and it rises overnight in the refrigerator.

The recipe makes enough dough for six coffee cakes, or sweet rolls and dinner rolls can be made with a portion of the dough.

Barbara makes all the cakes at once, using a variety of fillings, then freezes them, or she makes one or two and freezes the remainder of the dough.

"With the latter method you can always have dough on hand for a fresh coffee cake," she commented.

THE DOUGH CAN be removed from the freezer the night before, placed in the refrigerator and be ready to roll out and fill the next day.

Sht sprinkles the rolled-out dough with cinnamon and sugar, sometimes adding raisins or apples or peaches. Canned Solo brand fillings may also be used.

The dough is then rolled up and formed into a ring or a figure 8.

"You can really make any type of cake you want with this basic recipe," Barbara explained, "and use any type of filling."

Occasionally she will even fill one with chocolate chips especially for her children, though she admits that this is too sweet for the taste of most adults.

AFTER THE cakes are baked, Barbara drizzles a thin confectioners sugar frosting over the top.

"It is really fun to make coffee cakes and rolls with this recipe, and there is very little mess," she said. She also prepares little sweet rolls, crescent and cloverleaf rolls from the basic dough.

But the ease of preparation is only one of the nice aspects of this appealing recipe. The most important feature is the excellence of the dough itself. A pound of butter or margarine is used in its preparation, which results in cakes and rolls with a rich and buttery texture and delicious flavor.

ANOTHER OF this good cook's specialties is an unusual Hot Chicken Sandwich. Turkey may be substituted for the chicken, and this is an excellent and entirely different way to utilize the Thanksgiving leftovers.

Barbara combines the diced turkey or chicken with a thickened mixture of cream of mushroom soup, pimiento cheese and onion. This is spread between bread, sandwich-style.

"The prepared sandwiches can be frozen at this point and even stored in the refrigerator for weeks," Barbara said.

When ready to use, she cuts the sandwiches diagonally and dips them into an egg-milk mixture, then into crushed potato chips and bakes them.

"THE BREAD gets a crispy, crunchy coating and the filling is hot and creamy with a delicious turkey and cheese flavor," Barbara commented.

She serves these for a ladies luncheon accompanied by an ambrosia fruit salad and relishes. Cut in fourths, they make elegant hors d'oeuvres for a cocktail party.

Another of this good cook's recipe favorites is a baked cauliflower dish. This, too, can be prepared ahead of time and baked before serving.

THE CAULIFLOWER need not be pre-cooked. It is simply separated into flowerettes and covered with a cheese-flavored white sauce.

Slightly-crushed saltine crackers are coated with butter and sprinkled over the top to give this dish added texture and flavor appeal.

"It is nice for a large crowd and goes well with anything — beef, ham or a holiday turkey dinner," Barbara said.

THE SMITHS moved from Norwood Park to their home at 2115 N. Fernandez in Arlington Heights two years ago. They have four children: Mike, 12, Patty, 10, Laurie, 8, and Bobby, 5.

In addition to cooking, baking and collecting recipes, Barbara enjoys reading. She is a member of Prospect Heights Book Review Club, the local PTA and is an area hostess for Wheeling Township Republican Women's Club.

The family attends St. John United Church of Christ.

YEAST COFFEE CAKE

¼ pound butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
4 large eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 small cake yeast
2 cups cold milk
7 to 8 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
3/4 pound margarine, very soft

Cream the ¼ pound butter and sugar together. Add the eggs and salt.

In a separate bowl, dissolve the yeast in the milk. Add this to the above mixture. Add the flour and knead in until the dough is no longer sticky.

Divide in four equal parts. Roll into large circles on a well-floured board. Using your hands, smear the softened 3/4 pound margarine over the four circles of dough.

Place the circles on top of each other and roll as for a jelly roll. Cover and place in refrigerator overnight. The next day cut the dough into six sections and either freeze it or form into coffee cakes or rolls.

To make the cakes, roll the dough out on a well-floured board. Spread with prepared canned Solo brand filling or sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Raisins, apples or peaches may be added. Roll up into a jelly roll and form into a circle or figure 8. Place on cookie sheet and snip edges with a scissor. Let rise one hour.

Bake at 375 to 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. While cakes are warm, drizzle with a thin confectioners' sugar icing. (The cakes may be frozen and then re-heated before serving, if desired.)

The dough may also be used to make sweet rolls or crescent or cloverleaf rolls, or the cakes or rolls of your choice.

BAKED CHICKEN SANDWICH

1 can cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1 3-ounce jar Kraft pimiento cheese
1½ cups cooked diced chicken or turkey
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 tablespoons flour
3/4 cup milk
12 slices white bread with crusts removed

Mix soup, cheese, chicken and onion together in a pan. Blend flour with milk and add to mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Then chill.

Place 6 slices of bread on a cookie sheet with an edge or a 9 by 13-inch pan. Spread with cooled mixture. Then cover with remaining bread and refrigerate overnight. (The sandwiches may be frozen at this point.)

Prepare the following:
6 tablespoons milk
2 cups finely-crushed potato chips

Combine the eggs and milk. Cut sandwiches in half diagonally and dip in egg-milk mixture. Roll in potato chips.

Place on buttered cookie sheet and bake for 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves 6.

Sandwiches may be cut in fourths, baked as above and served as hors d'oeuvres.

BAKED CAULIFLOWER

1 small head cauliflower
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¼ pound American or cheddar cheese, diced or shredded
¼ cup butter
10 slightly-crushed saltine crackers

Bread cauliflower into small flowerettes. Place evenly in a 9 by 13-inch pan.

Make a medium-thick white sauce by melting the 2 tablespoons butter and blending in the flour. Slowly add the milk and stir until thick. After the sauce starts to thicken, add the cheese and let melt. Pour over cauliflower.

Melt the remaining butter in a saucepan. Add the crushed saltines and coat well. Sprinkle over cauliflower.

Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until fork-tender. Watch carefully; do not overbake. Serves 10.

Week's Best Food Buy? It's Turkey, Of Course!

May you have a good reason for Thanksgiving!

Meanwhile, the markets are making a late week play for your food dollar. The emphasis in most stores is on beef. Blade cut chuck roasts, lowest at 45-49 cents, and rolled rump roast, cheapest at 89 cents, are the most common feature fare.

BEEF STEAKS are also quoted at current lows; round steak at 89 cents.

In pork lines, hams, butt raosts, bacon and spareribs are rated as better market buys.

Turkey is the main meal for the week, but price is only part of the value. Remember, the bigger the bird, the more meat you get.

12 slices white bread with crusts removed

Mix soup, cheese, chicken and onion together in a pan. Blend flour with milk and add to mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Then chill.

Place 6 slices of bread on a cookie sheet with an edge or a 9 by 13-inch pan. Spread with cooled mixture. Then cover with remaining bread and refrigerate overnight. (The sandwiches may be frozen at this point.)

Prepare the following:
2 eggs, beaten
6 tablespoons milk
2 cups finely-crushed potato chips

Combine the eggs and milk. Cut sandwiches in half diagonally and dip in egg-milk mixture. Roll in potato chips.

Place on buttered cookie sheet and bake for 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves 6.

Sandwiches may be cut in fourths, baked as above and served as hors d'oeuvres.

BAKED CAULIFLOWER

1 small head cauliflower
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
¼ pound American or cheddar cheese, diced or shredded
¼ cup butter
10 slightly-crushed saltine crackers

Bread cauliflower into small flowerettes. Place evenly in a 9 by 13-inch pan.

Make a medium-thick white sauce by melting the 2 tablespoons butter and blending in the flour. Slowly add the milk and stir until thick. After the sauce starts to thicken, add the cheese and let melt. Pour over cauliflower.

Melt the remaining butter in a saucepan. Add the crushed saltines and coat well. Sprinkle over cauliflower.

Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until fork-tender. Watch carefully; do not overbake. Serves 10.

Week's Best Food Buy? It's Turkey, Of Course!

May you have a good reason for Thanksgiving!

Meanwhile, the markets are making a late week play for your food dollar. The emphasis in most stores is on beef. Blade cut chuck roasts, lowest at 45-49 cents, and rolled rump roast, cheapest at 89 cents, are the most common feature fare.

BEEF STEAKS are also quoted at current lows; round steak at 89 cents.

In pork lines, hams, butt raosts, bacon and spareribs are rated as better market buys.

Turkey is the main meal for the week, but price is only part of the value. Remember, the bigger the bird, the more meat you get.

TURKEY GUIDE

Purchase weight ready to cook	Pound yield of cooked meat

Heavenly Snack

Bacon, mayonnaise, turkey and crumbled American blue cheese on toast will make a delicious post-holiday sandwich.

Second Audubon Film On British Columbia

"Four Seasons," the second Audubon Wildlife Film in the current series, will be personally narrated by Wilfred E. Gray on Tuesday, Dec. 3. Sponsored jointly by DuPage Audubon Society, Rotary Club of Wheaton and The National Audubon Society, it will be shown in Edman Chapel of Wheaton College, N. Washington and E. Wilmette Band Open To All Communities

The North Shore Band of Wilmette has recently started its new season. This group of musicians has been selected for an unprecedented fourth appearance at the Midwest National Band Clinic, held at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, every December. Even its rehearsals have been visited by composers and arrangers from as far away as Japan.

Although sponsored by the city of Wilmette, this band is composed of players from northern, southern, and western suburbs as well. Its conductor is John P. Paynter, Director of Bands, Northwestern University. Mr. Paynter believes one reason for the band's excellence stems from the fact that a large part of the membership is composed of educators who are involved in music as a profession.

Most sections of the band are filled, but there are a limited number of openings. All who are interested would be selected on the basis of openings and competency on his instrument. For further information, contact Wesley Hanson, 2237 Dodge Ave., Evanston, 328-3144; business phone JU 3-2700, Ext. 229, at North Park College.

Mrs. Galandak is a member of several art guilds and has exhibited in many shows and art fairs.
